BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he will not accept the resignation submitted by Works Minister C. M. Drury.

Trudeau also ruled out a public inquiry into the intervention with a Quebec judge that led to Drury tendering his resignation earlier today.

Trudeau said he agreed with the conclusions in Chief Justice Jules Deschenes's report tabled in the Commons today.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Works Minister C. M. (Bud) Drury resigned from the federal cabinet today and apologized with "much regret" for calling a Quebec judge during the process of hearing a contempt of court charge against a cabinet colleague.

Drury's announcement followed tabling of a report by Chief Justice Jules Deschenes of Quebec Superior Court on charges of interference by three cabinet ministers.

"I very much regret taking the action I did," Drury, a senior minister for almost 13 years, told a quiet, tense Commons. "I sincerely and deeply apologize . . ."

Treasury Board Chairman Jean Chretien and Health Minister Marc Lalonde, also alleged to have improperly contacted judges on other cases, also offered statements of apology and regret, but neither resigned.

Drury told the Commons March 3, he had not made any attempt to influence the decision of Mr. Justice James Hugessen who was presiding over a contempt charge against Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet.

Deschenes said he considered Drury's action improper.

"I have long respected and sought to protect the independence of the judiciary," Drury, a lawyer, said. "I deeply regret this action which the chief justice considers improper. I therefore tendered my resignation to the prime minister."

Progressive Conservative opposition leader Joe Clark called for a full public inquiry.

Clark said the former army brigadier had taken the honorable course in resigning. But he renewed a call for a full public inquiry into the allegations.

Clark said the opposition still will insist on determining the exact nature of the involvement in the Ouellet affair.

Ouellet was then facing a contempt of court charge brought by Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay of the Quebec Superior Court for remarks that Ouellet had made about Mackay court verdict finding three sugar companies not guilty of price collusion in Eastern Canada. Ouellet was subsequently convicted in the contempt case.

Lalonde said today he spoke to a Quebec judge after the external affairs department asked the prime minister's office for assistance in determining the end of a 1970 trial involving 10 Trinidad students.

Lalonde told the Commons that Prime Minister Trudeau was visiting the Arctic when Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad asked when a verdict could be expected for the students, charged after a computer-smashing spree at Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Chief Justice Deschenes said he did not know Lalonde's version of the 1970 incident and would not pass judgment. He said it was not worth reopening the case after six years.

In the Chretien case, he quoted Quebec Judge Harry Aronovitch as saying Chretien's call to him was not proper but "I did not consider it to be interference or intervention calling for formal protest."

Chretien today admitted calling superior Court Judge Harry Aronovitch but said he was only trying — as MP for the riding of St. Maruice — to confront the problem of unemployment in the constituency.

Leak No Accident

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard Holden, special prosecutor in the contempt-of-court case against Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, said today that copies which he possessed of correspondence between Quebec Superior Court Justice Kenneth Mackay and Justice Minister Ron Basford were leaked intentionally to the press.

Holden said Mr. Justice Mackay sent him copies of the letters because they concerned his role as prosecutor in the contempt case.

"They were not marked confidential," he said. "There was nothing to indicate I couldn't use them any way I wanted."

Holden had previously told reporters his secretary made the letters available to Globe and Mail reporter Richard Cleroux by mistake.

He said today he wanted the public to know "that Mr. Justice Mackay had nothing to do with making the letters public."

Gov't Slashes 60% Off Hospital Plans

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial health department has slashed $13.3 million — 60 per cent — from the proposed $22.3 million hospital building budget of the Capital district for this year.

The move jeopardizes all hospital plans from Sooke to the Gulf Islands and has left Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, "flabbergasted."

"When a budget's cut by 60 per cent in an area where everyone, including the provincial government, agrees we're so far behind, I just find it unbelievable," he said today.

Among the projects which may be stopped cold or drastically curtailed:

—A new 300-bed hospital to replace the largely obsolete Victoria General Hospital. ($2.5 million had been budgeted for a site.)

—A 75-bed acute care addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital, a $3.1 million item in the capital budget.

—A 150-bed extended care addition at Glengarry Hospital, for which $2.6 millions had been set aside.

—Renovations and equipment purchases at Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals worth about $6 million.

The state of Victoria's two general hospitals is "deplorable" now, Young said, and a tremendous flow of funds is needed just to bring them up to standard.

What the provincial spending decisions means in effect, he said, is: "You'd better not get sick — and if you do, you'd better go somewhere else."

Of the $9 million left in the budget, Young said "there's so much to be cut most programs won't even be started."

The provincial government should have been ready to borrow if necessary because the need is so great in the health care field, he said.

The decision of the province on the region's capital budget was received late Thursday and one of the commission's advisory committees met on it this morning.

John Clark, regional director of hospital planning, said following the meeting that it appears the committee will be recommending expenditures of only about $1.7 million on the planned $6 million for equipment and renovations.

The $22.3 million budget does not mean that amount would have been spent this year but that projects ultimately costing that would have been started, and some completed, this year.

The province has not specified which projects to cut, apparently leaving that to the commission.

Clark said the provincial move does not mean that funds will not be made available in future years for the proposed projects. At the same time, regional hospital planners have no guarantee that money will be made available to finish projects which have been started.

SHELL SHOCK came for Mrs. Rose Lakeland of 4141 North Road in Saanich when she shucked oyster while harvesting molluscs with her sister Mrs. Hazel Grindlay on Ladysmith beach. Mrs. Lakeland found 51 pearls in one oyster. She said the pearls may be used to make a brooch.

Drastic Rule Changes Set for AIB Appeals

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Appeal procedures under the Anti-Inflation Act will be drastically changed under legislation introduced in the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald.

The amendments to the Anti-Inflation Act will broaden access to the administrator for employees, companies and other parties subject to decisions by the Anti-Inflation Board.

The existing law permits only the Anti-Inflation Board or the cabinet to refer a case to the administrator for a decision.

In future, any party directly affected by a decision of the Anti-Inflation Board, and dissatisfied with the decision, may have the case referred to the administrator by making a written request to the Board.

The amendment is designed to remove one of the most serious complaints about the anti-inflation program.

Parties entitled to demand a referral to the administrator under the revised law would be the company involved in an AIB notification concerning prices or profits; the employer or employer organization, employee organization or "designated employee" in a compensation case; and, in the case of a dividend, the declaring or paying body.

Another amendment stipulates that a party directly affected by an order of the administrator, whether named in the order or not, may appeal the order to the anti-inflation appeal tribunal.

Nigeria Executes 32 for Coup Try

LONDON (UPI) — Thirty-two persons have been executed by a firing squad in Nigeria for their involvement in last month's abortive coup, Lagos Radio reported today.

Gallagher: 10 Years

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Irish guerrilla Eddie Gallagher was sentenced to 20 years jail Thursday for kidnapping Dutch businessman Dr. Tiede Herrema. The girl who helped him in the abduction last October, Marian Coyle, was jailed for 15 years.

Heat Off Pound

British currency began to slide again today, dropping to $1.9305 at the opening, but then rallied strongly to $1.9360, prompting a dealer from Barclay's International Bank to remark that "the heat seems to be off."

New Mine Disaster

PARTRIDGE, Ky. (UPI) — Eleven persons, including three federal inspectors, were found dead today 13 hours after an explosion ripped through the same Kentucky coal mine where 15 miners were killed in a methane gas explosion two days ago, the governor's office reported.

Royal Engagement

Shapp Pulls Out

BUGS FOR SMUGGLERS URGED BY SCIENTISTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bugging airports with real live insects might expose smugglers, drug pedlars and potential hijackers, a retired scientist said Thursday.

Dr. R. H. Wright said in an interview that mutants of fruit flies could be developed that are attracted to explosives, narcotics and other smuggled goods.

"You could just have the flies loose in the airport with somebody watching to see where they cluster," said Dr. Wright who has worked at the British Columbia Research Council and has conducted numerous studies using insects.

His suggestion has been published in the prestigious science magazine, Nature, in London, England.

$1 MILLION HEIST

LONDON (AP) — Two armed men dressed as airline officers got away with at least $1 million in cash, gold bars and gems in a warehouse holdup at London's Heathrow Airport late Thursday night, police reported.

They also grabbed five automatic pistols and revolvers with 50 shells, a spokesman said.

Detectives were still working out the full value of the stolen items today. A police source said it might reach as much as $2 million.

Most of the haul was in used U.S. banknotes totalling $516,600, the spokesman said. The bullion was valued at $160,000 and polished diamonds taken at $120,000.

Police estimated the other items were worth at least $300,000. These included emeralds, pearls, uncut stones and British banknotes.

"We believe the raiders had inside information about the packages stored in the warehouse strongroom," the spokesman said.

The raiders pulled pistols and ordered the duty clerk to open the strongroom safe. They tied him up with a sack over his head, then spent a half hour loading packages into an airline panel truck.

6 Rescued As Packer Hits Rocks

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Six persons were rescued today after their storm-whipped 85-foot packer crashed into rocks in Fitzhugh Sound, 275 miles northwest of Vancouver.

A search and rescue spokesman said five of the six abandoned the ship Canfisco in an attempt to make it to shore, while a sixth remained on board.

Four of the five made it to the rocky coast, where they were rescued by a search and rescue helicopter. The fifth failed to make it to shore and was picked up, along with the sixth person, by the fishing boat Gail Bernice.

The spokesman said two of the men were in hospital at Bella Bella, and the other four were receiving treatment. He said all six were suffering shock and possible hypothermia.

Shortly before midnight, the abalone fishing boat Twila Dawn radioed for help after its drive shaft broke during a storm.

The vessel, also with six persons aboard, was being towed to Prince Rupert by the search and rescue vessel Lumba Lumba.

Beirut Rebels Claim Control

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Moslem rebels seized two army barracks in southern Lebanon today, claiming complete control of all military posts in the southern region. The leader of the army rebellion said he was winning the struggle for power.

New shooting flared in Beirut between rival factions. Police sources said at least 20 persons were killed and more than 30 wounded in the capital in the past 24 hours.

Brig. Gen. Aziz Ahdab, who proclaimed himself "acting military governor" Thursday, said his rebel forces were winning and ignored President Suleiman Franjieh's refusal to resign.

Supporters of Franjieh claimed the takeover had fallen through, but it was not clear if the embattled Christian president had the necessary military support to stay in office.

In a surprise move, the ultranationalist "Guards of the Cedars" — a small but volatile Christian force — announced support for Ahdab's revolt. "We are placing our capabilities at his disposal," a spokesman for the guards said.

In southern Lebanon, Moslem rebels of the "Lebanese Arab Army" seized the army barracks of Sidon and Tyre, thus gaining complete control of all military posts in the southern region, reports said.

(In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defence Minister Shimon Peres warned of Israeli countermeasures if Lebanese developments threatened the chain of Jewish settlements along the border. Military sources said the Israeli army went on increased alert along the northern frontier with Lebanon.

Election Results Jolt U.K. Labor

The Wilson government bounced back Thursday from a humiliating defeat in the house of Commons to win a confidence vote by an unexpected 17-vote margin on its proposal to slash $10 billion in public spending. The vote was 297-280.

But after winning the showdown, the Wilson government was shaken by a spectacular hammering today in by-elections in Carshalton, a bedroom community near London, and Wirrall, near Liverpool.

The voting showed an eight per cent swing away from Labor, the Conservatives retaining both seats, but winning by greatly increased majorities compared with the 1974 general elections.

Wilson and Lord Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey virtually bludgeoned Labor's left wing rebels back into line in the confidence vote, accusing them of dealing with the opposition threatening to call a general election that Labor might lose.

Several ill Labor members were brought in for the vote — including Peter Doig, who was carried in on a stretcher.

Olympics Gets Ready To Receive Top Brass

MONTREAL (CP) — Protocol and security will go hand in hand at the Summer Olympics, says Charles de Lotbiniere Harwood, director-general of protocol for the Olympic organizing committee.

Perhaps a dozen international figures of royal status or top government rank will attend the Games which will be opened July 17 by Queen Elizabeth.

"We can only guess at the number now because these people do not make their plans known long in advance," said the retired businessman and pioneer sportscaster.

The Olympic family itself includes such royals as Prince Philip, president of the International Equestrian Federation, and former King Constantine of Greece, honorary member of the International Olympic Committee.

Problems can arise because only Olympic protocol is recognized at the Games and related functions, not the usual rules of international and national precedence.

"Let me invent a case," Harwood suggested. "With Her Majesty opening the Games, it is obvious that the place of Prince Philip, her husband, is at her side."

In other Olympic affairs, however, Prince Philip ranks alongside other presidents of 21 international sports federations.

Only IOC members and honorary members will be introduced to Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger at the opening ceremony of an IOC congress to be held in the week before the Games.

Not being an IOC member, Prince Philip will merely be among 3,000 guests invited to the opening ritual.

"But if one hour later we were to take Prince Philip to a non-Olympic reception given, say, by the City of Montreal, then we would have to make sure he is in his proper protocol order according to his office," Harwood said.

He said it now is assumed that between 110 and 117 countries — out of a potential of more than 130 — will send athletes to the Games, but the final figure will not be known until six or eight weeks before the event.

In any case, the protocol department — now numbering 30, but expected to grow to nearly 600 — must care for main groups in the Olympic family besides undertaking many duties at the Games themselves.

The brass includes 78 IOC members and nine honorary members; presidents and secretaries-general of more than 110 national Olympic committees; and presidents, secretaries-general and two official technical delegates from each of the 21 world sports federations involved in the Games.

Harwood's department is responsible for everything from providing hotel rooms, hospitality and working facilities for Olympic bigwigs to ensuring split-second timing in the presentation of medals to athletes.

Harwood, 70, served as commissioner of the Telephone Pavilion at Expo 67 and retired in 1968 as an assistant vice-president of Bell Canada.

HEARSTS BOMBED AGAIN

REDDING, Calif. (UPI) — A bomb, apparently planted by a terrorist group, exploded Thursday at the Hearst family summer retreat, causing minor damage. It was the second bombing of Hearst property in four weeks.

Shasta County sheriff's deputies found the device in the foundation of a mansion owned by Randolph Hearst.

Hearst, president of the San Francisco Examiner, is the father of Patricia Hearst, who is on trail for the Symbionese Liberation Army holdup of a San Francisco bank.

Blacks or Destruction—Nkomo

Times News Services

SALISBURY — Black Nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo says the white leadership of Rhodesia has only two choices — accept majority black rule or be "destroyed."

But Nkomo, in an interview Thursday, said whites should not fear any recriminations under a black-led government headed by him.

Whites would be "treated like ordinary human beings ... and there will definitely be no recriminations."

Currently, Rhodesia's 250,000 whites control the country and its 5.9 million blacks.

Nkomo and Prime Minister Ian Smith met for 2½ hours Thursday in the longest session in three months of negotiations on resolving constitutional issues raised by Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence from Britain more than 10 years ago.

On the question of majority rule, Smith wants a transfer period of about 20 years, while Nkomo insists on immediate control.

Smith emerged smiling from the talks but made no comment. Nkomo said the fact talks were continuing was evidence they were useful.

"Once (Smith) said there would be no majority rule in his lifetime; now he says no immediate majority rule," Nkomo said. "That's very significant."

Nkomo said he will place no time limit on the talks, but he threatened to end discussions instantly if Smith refused to "move forward."

Nkomo said he welcomed Mozambique's closing of the 700-mile border with Rhodesia as a development that would force Smith to "move forward" in current negotiations.

By cutting Salisbury's access to the Indian Ocean, Mozambique was applying 10-year-old United Nations' sanctions against landlocked Rhodesia.

Rhodesia responded by seizing all funds held in Salisbury by the Mozambique government.

The seizure, which included funds held by Mozambique banks and businesses, was announced by Finance Minister David Smith.

The finance minister said the government will also freeze all outstanding payments owed by Rhodesians to people in Mozambique.

Security forces announced that nine persons have been killed this week along Rhodesia's eastern border with Mozambique, where black African guerrillas have been increasingly active.

They included guerrillas, black civilians and a white soldier. The security forces communique also accused Mozambique troops of firing at a police station on the Rhodesian side of the border.

Speed Seizure Worth Millions

TORONTO (CP) — Seven men were arrested Thursday following a series of raids in which police seized millions of dollars worth of methamphetamine, commonly known as speed.

Police said one of the raids was on a laboratory where they found about 200 pounds of partly-refined speed.

The raids, which involved drug squads from three Metropolitan Toronto police districts and the RCMP, were touched off Tuesday with the seizure of a pound of marijuana.

On Thursday, police seized 25 pounds of pure speed, four handguns, money and gold bars.

A further five pounds of pure speed were found in a subway station locker, and six pounds in two cars.

Police said the street value of the 36 pounds of pure speed alone is about $5 million.

Charged with conspiracy to traffic in speed and having speed for the purpose of trafficking are Donald McNamara, 41, of Burlington, Ont., Allan Starkman, 45, Donald James Scott, 37, John Martyn, 20, Jorge Darquea, 31, Joseph Kozak, 42, and Leonard Wineberg, 48, all of Toronto.

Drastic AIB Rule Changes

The amendments propose specifically that employees be permitted access through a class action to the administrator or to the appeal tribunal.

If employees engage in collective bargaining, their union could represent them in the appeal. Unorganized groups would be permitted to take action through one of their number designated for the purpose.

The guidelines are also being amended to establish definitely that the administrator and the tribunal can make their own determinations of the amount of a compensation increase justified by historical relationship.

The Supreme Court of Canada has been asked for an opinion on the constitutional validity of the Anti-Inflation Act, Justice Minister Ron Basford said.

The minister said in a statement the aim was to "resolve any doubts" about the matter which might harm the success of the anti-inflation program.

Anti-inflation guidelines, which can be altered by order-in-council, are also being changed.

Lower paid employees earning less than $3.50 an hour will be permitted wage increases of up to $600 a year. Under the present guidelines the limit was $600 on total compensation — including fringe benefits and incentives.

Gov't Views Hitler-Like, Says Lauk

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — Attitudes expressed by the Social Credit government are similar to those during the rise of Hitler's Germany, Gary Lauk, former minister of economic development, said Thursday night.

Lauk told a public meeting the Social Credit government is the "most right-wing government ever elected in Canada and is attacking our democratic processes."

He said he didn't mean to suggest forced labor camps and gas chambers are in the future but the government "will whittle away at our rights."

Lauk, New Democratic Party member from Vancouver Centre, said Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm and Edueation Minister Pat McGeer had extreme right-wing policies and narrow views.

He said the means test for mincome, announced earlier Thursday, came as no surprise but he was surprised that people in remote areas would be cut off welfare. He also said it will cost the government ten-fold by depriving single mothers of daycare and forcing them back onto welfare.

Her Car Miseries End in a Crash

VANCOUVER (CP) — More than $11,200 worth of car problems for Hannah Moses, 57, of Nanaimo have culminated with a crash.

She is in hospital recovering from injuries suffered when her car went off a ferry ramp at the north foot of Burrard Street earlier this week, plunging 25 feet to a railway track.

"I'm glad it's gone," she said. "Maybe I'll get some peace now."

Her problem began nine years ago when she bought the car new in Los Angeles in 1967 where she was living. Complete with air conditioning, it cost $3,500.

"I drove it on the freeways and never got a scratch," she mused.

A year later, she moved to Canada and went to work in Victoria, where she drove it very little.

In 1970, homesick for her native India, the social worker shipped all her possessions, including the car, to Madras, where she was born.

Shipping costs were $1,000 from Vancouver, but when the car arrived in India, the government charged her about $5,000 in customs fees for what was considered a luxury vehicle.

"But they wouldn't let me drive it, even after I paid," she said. "There is so much corruption there."

She was forced to keep the car in bond for five years, parking it with the doors sealed on a relative's property.

"I just couldn't live in India. You have to stand in a long queue to get a bushel of rice, and the government is always persecuting the poor. I'll never be homesick for there again."

In 1974, she returned to Canada, but the car was not immediately released from bond. When it finally was, shipping costs had risen to $1,700 for the sea voyage.

Last week, she was told the car had arrived in Vancouver but when she got here, she discovered it was still on the ship and would not be unloaded for several days.

On Monday, she received the car, in showroom condition, spent hours clearing customs, and drove away.

A block later it stalled.

"It stalled seven times in one block. A policeman helped me push it to the side and I finally got a cab to boost the battery."

Miss Moses said she was exhausted when she finally got the car going and had just got onto the ramp leading from the street to the Nanaimo ferry dock "when I felt faint and blacked out."

The nine-year-old car, with about 1,000 miles on it, mounted the sidewalk, tore through the railing and plunged onto the railway track.

"I'm lucky to be alive," she said. "But I'm glad to be rid of that car; it was a miserable thing."

Battered car is all that's left of $11,000 worth of grief

Cruise Ship to Nanaimo Firm, Restaurant, Centre Planned

The cruise ship Prince George has been sold to Wong Brothers Enterprises of Nanaimo at a profit to the British Columbia government.

Transport Minister Jack Davis said Wong Brothers submitted the highest of four bids and the ship was sold for $325,000, "a slight profit."

The former New Democratic Party government purchased the vessel from Canadian National Railways a year ago for $230,000 cash plus 28 acres of crown land in Prince George valued at between $50,000 and $70,000.

Davis said earlier this month that the government had hoped to sell the ship to an organization which intended to follow up on the NDP's plans to run a service to isolated coastal communities but the new owners have different plans.

Henry Wong, head of the company, said in an interview that long-rang plans call for establishment of a seafood restaurant and convention centre aboard the vessel with the possibility of establishing specialty rooms such as one catering to a special gourmet menu, and for French couisine and others.

Wong said the vessel will probably be towed to Nanaimo from Victoria because of prohibitive cost involved in finding a suitable crew to make the one-way voyage.

The vessel will require extensive renovations, he said, before it can be opened for business. The galleys aboard the vessel are fully-equipped but old.

Once the vessel is established at a permanent site, Wong said the restaurant will be his first priority.

"Eventually, the convention centre could be established, since there are more than 100 rooms on the ship, but that won't be for a while," he said.

'TORPEDOED' BY WHALE, RACING YACHT SINKS

PORTSMOUTH, England (Reuter) — A killer whale sank the Italian yacht Guia III in the middle of a transatlantic race, according to radio messages received here Thursday.

The 13.5 metre sloop went down some 20 minutes after the attack two days ago. The six-man crew was rescued by a passing Greek freighter after 18 hours floating on a life raft.

It happened in the middle of the Atlantic about nine degrees north of the equator. The whale, roughly the size of a small truck, charged and opened up a large hole.

The Guia III was on the last leg of an Atlantic triangle race sponsored by a British brewery. The 13 competitors from four nations had to race from St. Mald, France to Cape Town, then across to Rio de Janeiro and from there to this southern English port.

Worrying About Fine Print

As we approach the ides of March it appears the country is girding for another constitutional crisis. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that Prime Minister Trudeau and Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa are squaring off for another constitutional round. The rest of the country seems able to contain its excitement at the prospect.

Appearances are deceiving, though. What we may be witnessing is a government attempt to take the heat off a stumbling economy and two cabinet ministers accused of attempting to influence judges. Any number can win on Ottawa's wheel of fortune spinning out of control.

Last Friday the prime minister made a sneering attack against Bourassa, offending many Quebec Liberals and raising speculation as to Ottawa's real purposes. The Quebec premier has countered by stating that he is lining up provincial premiers to oppose any attempt by the Trudeau administration to unilaterally return the British North America Act to Canada from its Westminster resting place. Anyone who knows anything about Canadian politics will realize that a Quebec-led provincial conspiracy against the central government is a dangerous thing for national unity. So dangerous in fact, the Trudeau government has in the past gone to extreme lengths to make sure such a thing couldn't happen. Inexplicably, the prime minister now appears to be encouraging this type of confrontation.

In the tit for tat statements of the last few days Trudeau countered Bourassa's strategy by saying he was willing to fight a federal election on the issue of bringing the BNA Act home if the provinces continued to disagree. He termed it a way of testing the will of the people to slough off traces of colonialism. This is an astounding statement from a avowed internationalist, a prime minister who always admonishes the country about economic nationalism. Has Trudeau come round 360 degrees to an avid nationalism saying, "Canada is the only country in the world whose legislation can be amended in another country."? The statement is not correct figuratively or literally.

Perhaps Conservative leader Joe Clark is right in saying Trudeau may be on a fishing expedition for an election issue. But there is more to it than that. Like a general orchestrating a tank battle, the prime minister seems to be manoeuvering Bourassa into a position for a knock-down drag-'em-out fight.

After eight years of empty slogans and philosophical dead ends the prime minister is rolling up his sleeves and descending into the pits. It is almost as though, tired of his own political poses, he has decided to be himself. As the new manifestation takes shape the salient question remains: Who and what is Pierre Elliott Trudeau?

Perhaps we are witnessing an end run to gain waning English-Canadian Liberal support for a constitutional battle with a discredited Quebec regime. For most Canadians the constitution is about as exciting as a winter holiday in Winnipeg. Bringing it home and working out an acceptable amending formula are important goals. Nurtured on years of caution, compromise and cant over this document, it is suddenly beginning to glow in the dark, or so we are told.

We must have it now, seems to be Trudeau's message. Are we to tear the country apart to satisfy the prime minister's latest ego trip? If this is an over-simplification, it is no worse than the government's juggling of priorities. An election over the constitution is like having a dance for Boer War veterans. The issue now is economic. If we survive the current crisis there will be plenty of time to worry about fine print.

"... it's a simple but fair test ... walk through the burning coals and if you are indeed handicapped and unemployable, no blisters will appear ..."

It's Relative

As the man at the bar said, everything is relative. Take the automobile insurance rate increases announced recently in Saskatchewan — a whopping 19 per cent for the average compact car, up to 89 per cent for a one-ton farm truck. To listen to the Liberal opposition in the Saskatchewan legislature, this is perfidy unequalled since Tommy Douglas introduced medicare.

Liberal MLA Tony Merchant says the socialist administration is trying to fool the people about government auto insurance. It is particularly offensive, he said, at a time when governments are asking people to restrain themselves.

We read of his complaints with great wistfulness. Drivers in the prairie lily province don't know how good a deal they have. Perhaps Pat McGeer can send Norman Bortnick, the manager of ICBC and a former Saskatchewan government insurance official, back for a refresher course on how to keep B.C. rates at "just" 90 per cent above last year's.

A Good Decision

It is reassuring to see that one branch of the government of Canada, the judiciary as represented by the supreme court of Canada, has a respect for the proprieties of politics and public office. Its decision Thursday disqualifying Marshall Crowe from presiding at hearings of the National Energy Board on a pipeline application was right and proper.

Earlier, the federal court of Canada had ruled that only a sensitive person would object to Crowe's sitting on the NEB panel, as he was once a director (representing the federal government) of one of the companies applying to build the pipeline. But as the high court noted, more than mere sensitivities are involved. It is the old question of not only being impartial, but being seen to be impartial.

MAURICE WESTERN

Nfld. Vote on PM's Birthday

OTTAWA — If the calculations of Gordon Fairweather are correct, the prime minister established a record of sorts, March 4, although it is not one on which government spokesmen are likely to dwell at any length.

On that day, which happened to be the last permissible date, Trudeau announced that a byelection in the Newfoundland constituency of St. John's West would be held on his birthday. The trouble with this agreeable arrangement is that the voters concerned will not be going to the polls until Oct. 18.

Gamesmanship

By moving at this speed — from snow to snow, one might say — the government ensures a vacancy in representation of 13 months; the longest, according to Fairweather, in the 109-year history of the Canadian parliament. It might be supposed, however, that Newfoundland, with its exceptionally high unemployment rate, has a particular need of full representation in the House of Commons.

In contrast, the government acted with despatch last year when it faced the twin problems of filling the Hochelaga vacancy and creating an opportunity for the seatless former minister Pierre Juneau. It seemed determined then to discharge its full responsibility in these matters since a byelection was called at the same time for the constituency of Restigouche.

Last week, Trudeau omitted any reference to Ottawa-Carleton, although it has been the subject of intense speculation since the retirement of John Turner.

It is arguable that, as a general rule, governments, especially majority governments, are wise to take byelections as vacancies occur. While they often produce reverses, the results are nine day wonders which seldom have much significance for national polling. Gamesmanship is simply too conspicuous; it suggests a state of nerves in government which may be more damaging politically than a minor loss.

In the matter of representation, the record of the present government is not good. It has also been extremely neglectful of the Senate in which there are now 12 vacancies.

Some critics maintain that the Senate is of little value in any event; that we would be better off with a unicameral parliament. But Trudeau cannot possibly make this a defence. It is obvious from his constitutional proposals to the provinces that he considers the Senate an important body which will become more important. Why else would he have tempted the provinces with the offer of a share in the nominative process?

Yet some of these Senate vacancies are of long standing. In two cases, one in Alberta, one in Saskatchewan, they go back two parliaments to March, 1971. A Manitoba seat has been unoccupied since November, 1969. It ought surely to have been possible in all this time to find persons capable of representing the interests of prairie constituents in the upper House. The prime minister's failure, through all these years and sessions, to fill the ranks suggests a distinctly cavalier attitude to problems of representation.

But whatever may be thought of the Senate, the House of Commons is our most important political institution. It is incredible that the government, dealing at the beginning of March with a vacancy which has already existed for six months, should put off voting until Oct. 18. Does it require all that time to conduct a proper campaign in Newfoundland? What is the matter with summer?

Understanding of Facts?

In his remarkably brief explanation of the matter, Mitchell Sharp observed on Friday that the government had made its decision "with a full understanding of all the facts." Presumably such an understanding does not exist in the affected constituency. An interesting fact noted by Fairweather is that the chief electoral officer has made recommendations which would substantially shorten the time of national campaigns.

But what is sound for the nation is apparently unsound for local citizens. It is all very puzzling, especially as the government, which did not hold the seat prior to the resignation of the former member, cannot be said to have much to lose.

Petty People

I disagree with the opinion held by Mrs. J. Doyle of Sidney regarding unwed mothers.

Tell me, what are the advantages of orphanages? The children still would have to be supported plus a staff employed. Most foster homes already receive about two times the amount welfare mothers receive for their children's support. Also, how much love and attention would these "orphans" receive?

Welfare is not a permanent lifestyle. Unwed mothers need support till their children are able to cope with their only parent working. Welfare mothers do have a rough time but they must want their children badly since they wrack their brains day in and day out to make ends meet.

Everyone should pull his own weight but what about the fathers of these children? How many of them take on the responsibility whom they also created?

Furthermore, the only reason our children will have an unfair chance in life is because of the petty people like Mrs. J. Doyle who seem to judge children by their parent's status, marital and financial. — Unwed Mother.

Lampson School

The parents of Lampson Street school pupils have investigated the school board's reasons for closing the building. The reasons are that renovations are necessary and that the population is dropping. The school has been inspected and approved by the Esquimalt fire chief. The population in the area is rising rapidly due to the construction of 600 new apartment units and to the influx of young families with preschool children.

Recognizing that the department of education has allocated funds to renovate Lampson Street school and add a gymnasium, we question the ethics of the board's refusall to even allow the school to remain open. We accept the need for austerity and for redistribution of the children where population decreases are evident, but we question the basic facts in this case.

Finally, we have become disillusioned by the board's handling of this matter. The public meeting we all attended served to impress on us the disinterest of some of the trustees in the parents' opinions. We have moved solidly to support the school and to become active participants in the education process, only to find out that we are not at all important.—Mrs. Jean Stewart, BA, MSc, Special Counsellor, Victoria.

Newspapers piled in local recycling depot.

Recycling Cutback

An article appearing in the Times March 5, quoting Ald. Murray Glazier's views on the past and future of recycling in the capital region, sets forth an almost perfect example of the need for further (not less!) education regarding the operation under discussion.

Recycling is not properly assessed as a business. Just as solid waste disposal is a public service, recycling is a public service — with the difference that reusable materials are salvaged with at least some hope of financial recompense to the program. (Just how "profitable," one might ask, is the current waste disposal system in the Greater Victoria area?) It has been proven over and over again that the re-processing of already processed materials is in varying degrees economically preferable to the techniques of primary acquisition; the resulting reprieve for the environment should be obvious.

Mr. Glazier's observation that last year was "a great year for recycling because we were all conscious of it," was intended to support the thesis that even in a favorable year the Borden Street depot had been too expensive. Several qualifications are needed. One of these is the fact that the setting up of stable marketing outlets, both in Canada and abroad, was, during that year, seriously handicapped by business recessions in both North America and Japan. Also the Victoria centre was itself closed down for many weeks because of a CUPE strike.

The truly relevant point, however, is of course not an economic but an environmental one. If Mr. Glazier wishes to serve his community as a responsive alderman, he will surely become aware of its widespread concern for the future of regional recycling. And he will re-examine the long-range values of the program, not only because of its educational, societal and environmental merits, but because as a supporter he will no longer be "part of the problem." — Taliaferro and Mary Cox, for Environment 69 /Recycling, Bowser, B.C.

Save Wastes

I am concerned with reports that the Capital Regional District is considering cutting back in its financial support of the recycling depot. I appreciate that the recycling program costs money, although a certain proportion may be recovered by the sale of salvaged material but I am sure that there can be a saving in the volumes collected and transported to the dump if enough citizens are concerned and take part.

The main value of the program is in educating our citizens not to be wasteful. How can we afford not to make recycling a way of life when population growth is putting tremendous pressures on the limited supply of raw materials available for succeeding generations?

The recycling depot needs the support of all citizens in the capital region and the financial backing of our elected representatives. — Joe Barber-Starkey, 1232 Judge Place.

Absolute Torture

An article about the "absolute bliss" of eating pate de foie gras appeared in the Times March 4 and I wondered how many people realize that the geese that are forcefully stuffed with grain to produce the swollen livers from which foie gras is made, suffer absolute torture?

For a month before slaughter these geese are strapped down and food forced down their throats in unnaturally huge quantities, until their livers swell, and the larger the liver the greater the profit. — Eve Smith, South Pender Island.

Bush League

It is becoming downright embarrassing to admit we are British Columbians. Not only have we elected a bunch of stumbling rednecks as our provincial government, but now we have the Parksville town council fighting the fleur-de-lis in B.C.

Perhaps as a fellow Anglophile, I can put a few facts straight for the benefit of the Parksville council and their new found allies in the Saanich council. First, B.C. is the only repeat, only province in Canada that has a growing proportion of French-speaking people (Statistics Canada). Second, Canada is a country where only 44 per cent of the population speak English as their first language. Third, Quebec, that "ex-Catholic" province has Canada's lowest provincial birth rate (Statistics Canada) and correspondingly poses little threat to us. Fourth, though English is a widespread and oft-spoken world language, to a lesser degree, so is French.

In closing I would like to suggest to those among us who truly want to live in an English-speaking, monolingual nation that there is one nearby. It is called the U.S.A. Personally as one who has travelled on all continents, I revel in Canada's diversity and in the freedom that allows even bush league councils to show their provinciality.—R. C. Cameron, 1066 Chesterfield Road.

Westworld

The provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia have the capability of uniting into a great and prosperous nation. The official language would be English. A common market agreement could be negotiated with the countries of Ontario, Quebec and eastern Canada.

The prospect is an exciting one and a very natural course of history. It is only fitting a native Canadian name be considered for the new nation.

We in the west have been pushed too far, too hard, and too often by the Quebeckers controlling Ottawa. The francophones are taking over western Canada without firing one shot and turning the west into a colony of Quebec. Majorities being ruled by minorities!

So, instead of going down in defeat let us rise, up to become the first, second, third, etc. etc. citizens of the great nation of western Canada. — Robert Lynn Henshaw, Victoria.

Annoying Practice

Mr. P. J. Vaucher in his recent letter referred to the annoying practice of CBC television in providing instantaneous translation into English whenever a French speaker is heard. I agree that it must be most annoying to a person who is fluent in French.

As one who is not by any means fluent in French but would like to be, I feel deprived of a good opportunity to give my ear some practice. In the end the result is that the entire message of the speaker is lost.

The majority of listeners must get some idea that the French language is to be hushed up. If they heard more of it they might learn to accept it and like it. — R. D. Wainwright, 3250 Exeter Road.

Financial Empire

With reference to the news item CTC Challenged on Right to Rule, in the Times, March 2, may I add fuel to Donald Munro's submission?

The CPR has received from the people of Canada, for the purpose of building and running a railway system, $106 million and 44 million acres of land along the rail rights of way with deficiencies in fertile land made up in other regions. From this land acquisition and the underground resources the CPR is now emerging as one of the free world's major concentrations of economic power. The CPR's group of companies already has assets of $4.5 billion with capital expansion for 1975-76 estimated at $2 billion. The CPR has accumulated sufficient wealth to have stock reserves of $80 million while $200 million is invested and circulated in short term loans — which actually means they have their own banking operation.

The CPR owns Canada's third largest steel mill, Algoma Steel, Great Lakes Paper, Pan-Canadian Petroleum (the largest Canadian owned oil company, one largest Canadian owned oil company, one Cominco (which owns the Trail smelter, Pine Point Mines in the Northwest Territories, Fording Coal in Elk Valley B.C., Pacific Logging on Vancouver Island, 12 per cent (largest single stock block) of MacMillan Bloedel, a growing quantity of shares in Husky Oil, Northern and Central Gas Corp., Rio Algom, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines and Union Carbide Canada. Of course we must not ignore CPR's subsidiary, Marathon Realty, which has large complexes in the cores of most large Canadian cities and is one of the world's largest hotel corporations and their rather large shipping complex.

This vast financial empire was built on monies obtained from the land grants given to the CPR for building the railways. If they no longer wish to operate the railways, then let them return the same to the government complete with all rights-of-way land, and its above ground and underground resources. I'm sure one national railway can operate in this country if the rail rights-of-way and transportation facilities are obtained as the price paid for the breaking of the original contract. — J. J. Gibson, 920 Easter Road.

In 1976 Russia's Way Is Not Marxist Way

By HARRISON SALISBURY
New York Times

The state of the union, the Soviet Union, is not good.

That is the message, to paraphrase President Ford, which Leonid Brezhnev would convey to the 25th Congress of the Soviet Communist Party — if frankness prevailed.

But on this occasion, as on almost every occasion, there will be projected two Russias — the one that glistens with statistical successes to which Brezhnev will point with pride, and the real Russia, that vast world unto itself sprawling over one-sixth of the earth's surface, one-half of Europe, one-third of Asia, spanning 11 time zones and 6,000 miles from west to east, encompassing 250 million people and speaking in more than 100 different ethnic tongues.

The real world of the Soviet Union is almost too vast to capture in words or statistics; any portrait of it — Brezhnev's, that drawn by a knowledgeable outsider or painted by an individual Russian is bound to be colored by omission, ignorance, or the sheer burden of trying to compress a continent into a few paragraphs.

The picture which Brezhnev paints will be a flattering one to the Communist Party which, in its 59 years of rule, has transformed Russia from the most backward power in Europe into a superpower.

Brezhnev's emphasis, and that of the other Party speakers, will be on basic economics. The Soviet Union now not only leads the United States in many basic categories but also leads the world. It last year produced 770 million short tons of coal against 643 million by the United States; 3,440 billion barrels of crude oil against 3,056 billion by the United States; 134 million tons of cement against America's 69.6 million and so on. With these resources the Soviet Union has built a navy second only to the American since Stalin's death. It stands equal to the United States in nuclear arms.

These are no small acheivements for a party which started out with a furtive meeting in Minsk in March 1898, attended by nine persons representing six different revolutionary factions. It may have been christened by Vladimir Lenin as the "first Congress" of the Soviet Party but it was really more of a nervous conspiratorial huddle.

And yet, and yet, . . . Just what is this state created, led and directed since Nov. 7, 1917 by what Lenin proudly called "the vanguard party of the proletariat?"

Physically, it is the Czar's old Russian Empire with certain major changes. On the eve of the First World War, Nicholas II ruled a domain of 6.8 million square miles with a population of 139 million. It included Poland, semi-independent Finland and the Baltic states.

Lenin lost almost all the empire in the worst days of 1918-19. But Germany's defeat and the end of civil war and intervention restored to the Bolsheviks most of Russia — minus Finland, Poland and the Baltic states. Stalin restored the Empire after the Second World War. He got back the Baltic states, carved out a large chunk of Poland, some of Bessarabia and made good the Czar's losses in the Far East. He extended Soviet dominance over Eastern Europe and by the force of diplomacy and military weight, Stalin's successors have achieved one of Czarist Russia's oldest aspirations — they have made the Soviet Union a power in the Middle East and the eastern Mediterranean.

Today the Kremlin holds direct sway over 8.6 million square miles. The population has risen to 250 million souls, as the Czar would have said. Even that great population figure falls shy of Soviet aspirations. But they try vainly with bonuses to mothers and with propaganda to counteract the steadily dropping birthrate, a by-product of Russian urbanization and that most chronic of Russian problems, overcrowded housing. Young couples sharing a curtained room with their parents refuse to have children.

Filling up in Russia . . . what you get depends on who you know

The Czar's Russia used to be called "the prison house of nations." Some Soviet critics feel this epithet can still be applied. About 60 per cent of the Soviet population is Slavic, Great Russians, that is, the basic Russian stock, make up half the total. The rest is divided into more than 100 ethnic groups, the largest being the Ukranians, first cousins of the Great Russians, deeply resentful of what they regard as Russian efforts to suppress their proudly-held identity.

All of Russia's ethnics are uneasy and unhappy. This is one of the problems Brezhnev will not touch upon at the Party Congress. The issue is simple; a demand for ethnic and racial equality and justice. The Soviet Union is divided into 15 "national republics" and many more ethnic regions and districts. But genuine equality does not exist. As the ethnics of the Ukraine, the Baltic states or the Caucasus see it Great Russian dominance is the rule. The Georgian Party chief is certain to have a Russian "controller" at his side.

After Stalin died and his Georgian Chief of Police, Lavrenti P. Beria, was removed and executed, a Georgian was overheard saying: "Now, they treat us Georgians worse than the Jews." Year after year Moscow purges poets, editors and party leaders in Tashkent, Kiev or Riga on charges of "bourgeois nationalism," "feudal tendencies" or "chauvinism." In other words, for being local patriots.

But no one ever purges Moscow or Great Russian chauvinism. In fact, in the "hard hat" sector of the Moscow bureaucracy there has arisen the "Russity" movement committed to glorifying the "Russianness" of Russia and its ancient Russian culture (even its Orthodox church). Mimeographs have circulated among young party members, the Communist Youth, calling for "purity of Russian blood" in terms remarkably like Hitler Youth racist language.

The taboo on talk of chauvinism at the 25th Party Congress will extend to its close relative, antisemitism. As Russian officials have long insisted: "There is no antisemitism in Russia. There is a law against it."

But, in the other Russia, the real Russia, antisemitism is chronic. Russia was the traditional home of the hateful prejudice. Many of Hitler's antisemitic fables were drawn from Russian sources. Today antisemitism is encouraged by official propagandists. They slightly cloak their pamphlets, directing them against "Zionists." Every effort of Soviet Jews to leave the country is attacked as a special sort of treason.

Yet, about 150,000 Jews have migrated from the Soviet Union in recent years. The Soviet census lists something over two million citizens as ethnic Jews (Jewish nationality is listed in the citizen's internal passport). The actual total is over three million, perhaps four. But many have assimilated or prefer to conceal their true identity because of the discriminations — inability to enter the foreign services, the higher cadres of the party, the upper echelons of the army and other elite posts, including academic ones.

But antisemitism is talked about in the real Russia, is understood by the small handfuls of Jews still able to attend the dwindling number of synagogues.

The Party Congress will emphasize the postive: the rise in the standard of living, or industrial wages now averaging 146 rubles (about $193) a month against 126 rubles five years ago. Meat consumption has risen; the average Russian ate 40 more eggs in 1974 than in 1970.

But no one will whisper about the private stores to which high party and government officials have access, the famous one at No. Two Cranovsky Street within shouting distance of the Kremlin Palace of Soviets where the Congress meets. Or the cozy establishment like that in the elite suburb of Zhukovka, "Khrushchev's store," as the privileged call it, where almost any need of a Party Secretary — or his wife — can be met.

These and many other comforts go with membership in that curious party fraternity known as the "nomenklatura," the "nomenclature," that is, the holders of those enumerated positions which automatically carry with them special privileges.

It was, the insiders say, the late Krhushchev's insistence on doing away with some of these cozy things (the right, for instance, of Soviet army Marshals to enter the Kremlin without a "propusk," or pass, a privilege shared with Politburo members) which in the end cost him his job.

The Communist Party is organized from the bottom up. Small cells exist in every unit of Soviet society — office, factory, shop, school, institute, laboratory. These form a local organization directed by a party secretary, appointed by the district or republic secretary, all controlled by the Party Secretariat in Moscow. In theory, the Party Congress, meeting every three to five years, is the supreme authority. In reality, of course, the party is run by an inner oligarchy, the 12- to 14-member Politburo.

Privately some of the party secretaries may grouse over the 100 per cent turnover in labor force in eastern Siberia every three years and even complain angrily "It was different in the days of Comrade Stalin!" By which they mean that Comrade Stalin provided them with a prison labor force of six or seven million men, constantly available, constantly replenished as it died off in the desolate, inhuman cold and privation of the east Siberian mines, industrial sites and timber operations.

Not that the party bosses do not know the realities. They are for the most part big, tough, husky bureaucrats, predominantly of peasant background or peasants once-removed, ward heelers, not technicians, educated in industrial schools, not scientific institutes, men who have come up the ladder a step at a time. They know the real Russia but they also know that to hang onto the ladder they must protect their flanks.

They know that the people of their regions, like those of all Russia, are thoroughly depoliticized; they grumble but do not protest. They complain about living conditions but they do not petition. They would not think of challenging the party's leadership.

The party secretaries, and most of their constituents, see nothing wrong or surprising over those two chronic Soviet customs "pokazuka" ("for show") and "maskirovannoye," masking or concealing reality.

The citizens of the other Russia, the real Russia, see nothing wrong or unusual in the use of influence to get ahead in life or improve conditions. They know that to get the plumbing fixed (if they have plumbing in their living quarters) they have to pay a bribe or have it done na levo, on the left, by by private arrangement.

Motivations become personalized and material. Work is done for pay and privilege. In a society of scarcity privileges take on added value. Even shopping becomes an in game. If you know a clerk she may tip you on the arrival of under-the-counter goods. If you see a queue you join first and ask later what is on sale — it must be something scarce. If you don't need it a friend will.

The Congress meets under a quasi-religious slogan, emblazoned from one end of the Soviet Union to the other in posters, banners, neon lights:

"Lenin Lived, Lenin Lives, Lenin Will Live."

But thoughtful Russians suggest that it might better meet under the slogan: "Marx is dead." By which they mean that Soviet problems today are resolved not by means of Marx's 19th century theories of an egalitarian industrial society in which the distinctions of white and blue collar have vanished but, instead, by the individual motivations of the most materialist-oriented social structure the industrial era has yet produced, one run by what Milovan Djilas called "the New Class," that is, the party elite and privileged, through methods, motivations and prejudices not dissimilar from those evoked before 1917 by some of the more shrewd of the Czar's ministers.

That Old-Time Religion

By FRANCES RUSSELL
The Sun

When is a deficit not a deficit? As recent weeks have shown, a lot depends on your politics. But, basically, it all depends on whether you live in B.C., or in any one of the other nine provinces.

B.C., alone among its sister provinces and Ottawa, still makes no clear-cut distinctions between current and capital expenditures in its budget.

The fuzziness — a hold-over from the W. A. C. Bennett years, which was never changed by Dave Barrett and is now apparently enthusiastically embraced by Premier Bill Bennett — can lead to such miracles as the sudden escalation of a $40 million debt forecast by the NDP to a $541 million debt proclaimed by Social Credit.

It also explains the NDP's defence that had they viewed finances the way the Socreds did, they could have shown a deficit of nearly $1 billion when they took over from the elder Bennett in 1972. All they had to do was add up the Hydro debt of $800 million on the Columbia River Treaty and another $200 million for the British Columbia Railway.

Capital expenditures are those that result in acquiring fixed assets, such as ships, buses, power dams, government buildings — anything that is purchased for a price and is used and, presumably, retains market value.

Current expenditures are those that provide various government services, such as health care, pharmacare, the costs of the civil service, education costs, expenditures generally that do not result in any visible or tangible asset.

Other provinces and Ottawa normally borrow for capital expenditures, amortize the cost over a period of years, and levy taxes for current expenditures. Some provinces, notably Ontario, choose to run deficits even on current account as a matter of fiscal policy. It is a technique known as "pump-priming" — a period of borrowing for current expenditures to leave more money in the hands of the public during a recession so the public will use its purchasing power to stimulate a sluggish economy.

In B.C., the picture is quite different. not only must most normal capital costs be financed out of general revenue, the government has completely rejected as fiscal policy ever undertaking deficit financing. And so, a stringent economic policy is followed, and government "software," the so-called non-productive side of government spending, such as health, education and welfare, must bear the brunt of fiscal belt-tightening.

Former premier W. A. C. Bennett was a firm advocate of the pay-as-you-go principle of government. However, even he recognized that it was impossible-to pay for all government endeavors out of current revenue. As a result, he permitted borrowing for B.C. Hydro and for the construction of schools and hospitals. But everything else of a capital nature, including the purchase of ferries, transit buses, even the smallest acquisition by a government department, all had to come out of the tax dollar taken in that year.

Former premier Barrett never made any basic changes in this system, which by his time had been rejected as simply outmoded by every other government in Canada.

There are good and logical reasons for borrowing for capital expenditures. Fixed assets are usually productive over a period of time, so it is a rational economic move to pay for them over a period of time, instead of penalizing the taxpayers in one year through a drastic reduction in services to pay for something that their children and grandchildren will be using. Private business employs this borrowing technique for capital expansion, too. A business choosing to acquire more fixed assets or to expand its plant may use some of its retained earnings, but also goes to the market for the money. Unless business did so, it could not expand.

There is a further refinement in the current-capital division brought about through the creation of Crown corporations by governments. Crown corporations are normally set up to be self-financing. While the government guarantees their debt, they raise their own money. Their operations should never appear in the current side of the government's budget.

The Bill Bennett deficit is at least half composed of Crown corporation debt: $175 million for the Insurance Corp. of B.C. $32.6 million to Hydro for transit losses and another $26 million to the transit bureau for buses. ICBC, it may be argued, is a special case, since while it is a Crown corporation, it is not involved in the acquisition of fixed assets but is providing a service. Transit, at least in terms of the purchase of buses (as a railway would be in the purchase of rolling stock) is acquiring a fixed asset, and municipal transit systems throughout Canada borrow for such payments.

It was not necessary for the province to place any of this debt in its own current budget. Yet that is exactly what Premier Bennett intends to do, whether to make a political point against the NDP, or to revert to the strict pay-as-you-go philosophy of his father, or a combination of both.

It is a rather frightening prospect for British Columbia. It indicates a fundamental attitude to government that is hardly in keeping with the demands on the modern state. It views the government as a completely neutral force. It is not to be a positive tool for social and economic betterment. It is merely to, in rhetorical terms, keep the trains running on time and operate the post office.

As one economist puts it: "This philosophy of economics isn't just pre-Gladstonian. It's Pre-Cambrian."

Back-To-Work Order Violated by Cancel

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board has ruled that Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd. violated the provincial government's back-to-work legislation last October by not calling workers back in accordance with the legislation.

Reg Ginn, Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC) president, said Thursday about 40 workers at the provincially-controlled Cancel mill at Prince Rupert would be entitled to back pay.

The legislation, introduced by the former New Democratic Party government, affected several industries and created a 90-day cooling-off period to help settle strikes. The legislation required industries to reinstate operations to the condition they were in prior to the strikes.

The sulphite mill at Prince Rupert was operating 24 hours a day, seven days a week which required four shifts at the time of the strike. When operations resumed following the legislation, three shifts were called back because a new work schedule was introduced.

Production workers were not called back until Oct. 14 and the union said they should have been called back by Oct. 10 or 11.

The PPWC also said that when the workers were called back some of them were placed in lower classifications resulting in a decline in income.

The company said that prior to the strike it had decided that the new work schedule would be introduced and planned to inform the union on July 14 but the workers went on strike July 11.

The company said it was not until Oct. 10 that the union told its members to go back to work and pickets still were up until that date. It said that until pickets were removed a leaking effluent line could not be repaired.

In ruling against the company, the board said the union and employees must also bear some responsibility for continuing the strike past the deadline laid down by the legislation.

The board said it hoped its judgment will enable the two sides to settle the dispute, but retained jurisdiction if there is no settlement.

THE WALLS came tumbling down outside The Downstairs restaurant and Wilson's Bowladrome at 1225 Esquimalt this week and by the time restaurant owner Steven Sagodi, seen here, arrived on the scene the vandals had disappeared. "I hope the boys of Esquimalt settle down a bit," Sagodi said. (Irving Strickland photo)

Novel Tax Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP) — A radical set of proposals for overhauling the municipal tax system was presented Wednesday to the provincial commission of inquiry on property assessment and taxation, meeting in Vancouver.

Placer Development Ltd. said in a brief taxes should only be paid on the basis of services received from municipalities.

Business and industry, the brief said, should only pay taxes for services which benefit them — such as water mains, sewers and roads.

"People" services, such as community services and recreation facilities, should only be paid for by people who use them.

"It is widely accepted that services to land and improvements should be paid for by taxes against property," the brief said.

"It is not as clear nor as widely held that services rendered to people occupying the land should equally be paid for by taxes levied against property.

"It is our opinion that these two types of services should be separated and paid for in different fashions."

The brief argued that not only business and industry would benefit from separating the two forms of municipal services but the poor and the aged as well.

"Old-age pensioners, for instance, would not contribute to the maintenance of tennis courts, ice rinks, swimming pools, etc., unless they use the facilities," the brief said.

"The 'people services' tax charge would put municipal community and recreational facilities 'on an equal footing with private non-profit enterprises such as winter clubs, sports clubs, tennis clubs, etc.,' " it said.

The brief also proposed a number of other changes to the present tax system.

Guide Prefers Jail

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A spokesman for 320 British Columbia hunting and fishing guides says he would go to jail rather than comply with the federal government's proposed gun-control legislation.

Jack Lowry of Prince George, business manager for the Western Guides and Outfitters' Association, said in an interview he is outraged by Ottawa's proposal to make all gun owners obtain a licence.

"I think every law-abiding citizen should have the right to own a gun without being subjected to a lot of red tape, and I don't intend to give up that right without resisting," he said.

"I'm not going to shoot anyone, but I'm not going to go along with these stupid bureaucratic controls either. I'll resist by going to jail if necessary.

"I have a crime-free record of 42 years as an armed citizen, and I'm very proud of that fact. The government should be cracking down on criminals — not honest citizens like me."

Lowry said he and other members of the association feel it is ridiculous for the government to claim citizens will be better protected by restricting gun ownership.

CBC to Meet Complainers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senior CBC officials will meet with members of a group protesting the government corporation's programming, a CBC spokesman said Wednesday.

The newly-formed British Columbia Committee for CBC Reform sent a letter to CBC president Al Johnson in Ottawa saying that in the name of efficiency the CBC centralized its operation in Toronto at the expense of local programming on the West Coast.

"CBC Television in B.C. could be unique, but instead it has become a pale imitation of something the Americans do better, so that our television audience in this province turns to stations south of the border and is quite rightly outraged when threatened with elimination of these channels (on cable)," the letter says.

It also says the committee resents "being subjected day by day to Toronto's outflow of one packaged (radio) show after another ... allowing only minimal time slots for regional productions by local artist and producers."

The committee includes professors, poets, doctors, lawyers, businessmen, architects, film makers and writers. Among those who signed the letter were writers, George Woodcock and David Watmough, and architect Arthur Erickson.

RAIL SIDES TALKING

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Railway officials and representatives of the striking Teamsters Union held informal talks Thursday night in an effort to resume negotiations and end the dispute that has shut down the railway.

Gordon Ritchie, a company spokesman, said the talks began late in the afternoon after railway officials had waited during the day for the union to contact them.

Ritchie said the two sides have met for informal discussions a few times since the strike began more than a week ago.

Meanwhile, the provincial government plans no action to bring an end to the B.C. Rail strike, Premier Bill Bennett said Thursday.

Bennett said he would allow the normal bargaining process to take place without government interference.

However, he said, those responsible for the strike must "weight and consider the economic consequences of their actions to Interior B.C. communities."

Weapons Charge Against Landers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Glen Thomas Landers, 29, was charged Thursday with five weapons offences following a siege in an east-end house Wednesday.

The siege ended after a man surrendered peacefully to police following a 3½-hour standoff during which two warning shots were fired. No one was injured.

Landers is charged with two counts of possession of a restricted weapon, two charges of possession of a dangerous weapon and one charge of possession of a concealed weapon.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Throat swabs by public health nurses show increasing evidence of diphtheria infection, Elsie Gerdes, of the northern interior health unit, said Thursday. She told parents to ensure children are immunized.

MERRITT (CP) — Workers at Craigmont Mines have voted 82 per cent to accept a one-year contract.

The agreement provides increases ranging from eight to 12 per cent and is retroactive to Jan. 20. Base rate will go to $5.54 from $5.15 an hour while tradesmen rates will go to $7.54 from $6.74 an hour.

There are about 325 United Steelworkers of America members at the mine.

SQUAMISH (CP) — RCMP said Thursday they are treating the death of a Chilliwack woman whose body was found Sunday beside the highway two miles north of Lions Bay as homicide, even though the cause of death has not yet been determined.

They identified the body as that of Ruth Gwendolyne Mallenby, 26, who had been reported missing from Vancouver last Feb. 27.

The body was found 50 feet down an embankment below a viewpoint parking area at Brunswick Point on the Squamish Highway.

RICHMOND (CP) — A charge of attempted extortion, laid against Henryk Langsam, 33, of Vancouver, has been stayed. The charge was laid after a man telephoned six bomb threats and a demand for $500,000 to Vancouver International Airport on Jan. 12.

TAX TIPS: '76

Tax tips are supplied by the Victoria branch of Revenue Canada, 1415 Vancouver Street. Further information may be obtained by contacting that office at 386-2176.

Q. I am a farmer and I used 1969 as the year of averaging for income tax purposes and am eligible to average again in 1975. Am I required to average again using 1975 as the year of averaging, or can I wait until a year in which averaging would be more beneficial to me?

A. You may choose any year you wish as the year of averaging, provided that returns have been filed as required and that the averaging period chosen does not overlap another period for which you have averaged.

Q. I retired from farming and now live in the city. My farm lands are rented to a tenant. I make six or more trips each year to the farm to supervise seeding, summer fallowing and harvesting. Can I claim the expense incurred in travelling to and from the farm?

A. Travelling expenses incurred while travelling to and from your farm cannot be claimed as a deduction from your rental income.

Q. Is a farmer required to make Canada Pension Plan deductions from the wages paid to farm help?

A. Deductions for the Canada Pension Plan must be made from all wages paid for farm labour, provided the employee has reached 18 years of age but has not yet reached 70, and has received cash wages of $250 or more and has worked for 25 days for the employer during the year.

Q. What is the income tax situation if I sell land with standing crop?

A. If the agreement specifies an amount for the standing crop, the amount is income to the vendor and an expense to the purchaser. If the agreement does not specify an amount for standing crop, then no portion of the selling price is attributable to the standing crop as far as the purchaser and vendor are concerned. To complete the answer, your transaction insofar as the land value is concened is subject to the capital gains provision which was introduced in 1972.

Q. In valuing my farm properties for capital gains purposes, should I make separate valuations for my residence and out buildings?

A. Yes. It is advisable to establish the value of your farm residence because, if it is your principal residence, there is an option available on the sale of your farm which would exclude it from capital gains tax.

Q. I operate a restaurant and buy fish directly from the fisherman. Am I required to deduct and remit Unemployment Insurance premiums on his behalf?

A. A fisherman is not insurable for any sales of fish he sells direct to restaurants. Therefore, no employee and employer premiums are required.

Q. How do you determine the earnings from which the fish buyer will establish the insurable earnings of a captain owner for purposes of calculating his Unemployment Insurance premiums?

A. The earnings of the fisherman who owns the boat or gear used in making the catch, and who is a member of the crew, is for any week considered to be the greater of 1—Gross returns of the catch less (a) amounts paid to other members of the crew, (b) 24 per cent of gross catch or; 2—$50.00.

Q. On occasion fish are bought from boats where boat expenses are not known until the boat returns to home port. How should we as the buyer handle this situation?

A. Generally, before you can determine the insurable earnings and the premium deduction required for members of a crew, the declaration made to you as the buyer must include boat expenses. The Income Tax Department recognizes the problems created when the boat expenses are not available at the time the catch is sold and under these circumstances it is prepared to accept reasonable estimates of the boat expenses.

Q. My wife shares in the catch as a member of the crew. Can she by insured? I am also a crew member.

A. The wife of a fisherman is not insurable for a catch by a crew of which her husband is a member. The wife's share must be added to the husband's earnings for purposes of calculating his insurable earnings.

Q. I am self-employed fisherman operating my own boat without help. Can I declare my actual expenses to the buyer of my fish or must he use the 25 per cent assumed operating costs?

A. The 25 per cent assumed operating cost must be used. Unemployment Insurance Regulations require that this amount must be deducted regardless of the actual operating costs.

Q. What is the responsibility of the fish buyer where no declaration is made?

A. Under these circumstances the buyer has no responsibility. However, some other person will most likely be the "designated employer."

Q. How does one determine the insurable earnings of a fisherman's helper who is paid on a share-of-the-catch basis?

A. The fisherman must declare to the buyer the share arrangement. The actual monies paid to the helper in accordance with the share arrangement are the amount on which a premium for Unemployment Insurance is required. This is subject to the minimum and maximum insurable earnings for the pay period.

Q. Last year I bought a new boat for $15,000 but the government gave me a subsidy of $7,000. Can I claim depreciation on the full cost of the boat?

A. No, the subsidy must be used to reduce the amount on which you may claim depreciation (capital cost allowance). In your particular case, you would base the deduction on your net cost of $8,000.

Q. As a fisherman and boat owner, can I claim my monthly payments on my boat and truck?

A. No, the instalments are not deductible. However, you should be entitled to claim depreciation on these two assets. Check your Farmer's and Fisherman's Tax Guide for further details.

New Energy Needed

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's economy may be badly shaken if new energy supplies are not delivered from frontier areas within a few years, V. L. Horte, president of the Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline, told a native land claims seminar Wednesday.

Proceeding with the Arctic Gas Pipeline is one of the best means of supplying the energy, Mr. Horte said. The pipeline is intended to transport natural gas from the Mackenzie delta to southern Canada and Alaskan north slope gas to the United States.

The delta gas, combined with revenues for transporting the Alaskan gas, might reduce the deficit in Canada's energy trade by as much as $2 billion a year, he said.

Building the line would provide 2,000 long-term jobs, Mr. Horte said.

These and other secondary job opportunities are more than enough to provide full employment in the Mackenzie valley region, he told the seminar sponsored by the Canadian Association in Support of Native People.

He said the jobs provided would not replace hunting and trapping but supplement them.

He said traditional lifestyles could be preserved for those who do not wish to enter the wage economy.

Mr. Horte said Arctic Gas endorses the settlement of northern native land claims as an opportunity to help meet the aspirations of northern native people.

Cut Crime by Forced Drug Treatment—MP

OTTAWA (CP) — A backbench Liberal MP Thursday called for forcible detention and treatment of known heroin addicts as a means of reducing the level of crime attributable to drug abuse.

Art Lee (Vancouver East) said during the third day of second-reading debate in the Commons on the government's peace-and-security legislation that forced treatment would take addicts off the streets so they would not commit crimes to support their habit.

Lee said the legislation, including amendments to gun control, wiretapping and parole laws failed to deal with hard drugs, which he said were the cause of most violent crime in Vancouver and perhaps all of Canada.

Tougher law enforcement resulting in arrests of traffickers had led to increased drug prices and more crime as addicts tried to raise money, he said.

The government and the Commons justice committee should examine forced treatment as applied in Japan, which had some success in reducing addiction.

He said a section of the Narcotics Control Act which had never been proclaimed allowed preventive dention and custody for treatment of addicts with previous drug convictions.

Lee noted that a federal study of drug use had recommended three years ago that temporary, involuntary detention be used to get addicts off drugs.

"I think the adoption of such a system after careful examination by the committee may well be a step in the right direction of eliminating one of the major causes of crime," he concluded.

John Gilbert (NDP — Toronto-Broadview) rapped the government for loosening restrictions on wiretapping, saying civil liberties were being sacrificed in favor of small gains in crime detection. He added that Justice Minister Ron Basford had given in to pressures from the police.

The legislation would repeal the notification provision that says police must inform persons their telphones have been tapped within 90 days after completion of the tapping.

The amendments also would make acceptable in courts wire evidence acquired through illegal wiretapping.

FALSE AD FINES

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer affairs department published a list Thursday of nine offenders convicted and fined a total of $2,500 for misleading advertising during the final three months of 1975.

The fines ranged from $25 to $500 an offence.

Among the larger ones:

—Easy Tile and Building Supply Stores Ltd. of Toronto was fined $500 after being convicted of advertising indoor-outdoor carpet at a "lowest price ever" of $2.59 a square yard. Investigators found that on at least three occasions earlier, it was sold for $2.47 a square yard.

—Jean Garofoli Ltd. of Hamilton, operating as Garfunkle Furniture in Hamilton, was fined $500. Investigators found a "super special dishwasher — Reg. $449—now $229" in fact ordinarily sold for $229.

—Taxis Lasalle (1964) Inc. of Montreal was fined $150 each after pleading guilty to two charges. The company was advertising "free wash with every tank of gas" and directing customers to pumps at the rear of the station. Investigators found the price per gallon for gas at the front of the station was cheaper, so the car wash in fact was not free.

As a result of amendments to the combines investigation act that came into effect Jan. 1, the range of prohibitions against misleading advertising has been increased.

The department's misleading advertising division now is preparing to monitor nationally broadcast commercials to make sure they do not violate combines laws. It also is creating a new unit to carry out national investigations so that it can investigate suspected offences in more than one province.

The department statement also warns retailers that the amended combines law makes it an offence to influence upward the price of a product sold by another person.

This means, for example, that suppliers who sell a product at a 'suggested retail price" must clearly indicate that it may also be sold at a lower price, the statement says.

Horner Back, Willing

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Horner, MP for Crowfoot, Alta., and defeated candidate for the Progressive Conservative leadership, returned to Parliament Thursday saying he is still disappointed but ready to work with the winner, Joe Clark.

Horner, who has been on his ranch since the leadership convention Feb. 22, said he remains bitter about news-media treatment of his candidacy, reiterating that news organizations failed to take him seriously.

Further, he charged that in making surveys of delegate preferences, some media people "deliberately tried to persuade delegates not to vote for me — I can document that."

HORNER

Trees to Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greater Vancouver Regional District will get 100,000 trees from the provincial government and the North Vancouver District will get another 10,000, Mayor Ron Andrews of North Vancouver said Wednesday.

Beware U.K. Disease—Economist

By MARGARET PITON

OTTAWA — Canada is in distinct danger of catching the "U.K. disease" of low productivity growth combined with high unit labor costs, Conference Board in Canada vice-president Robert de Cotret told the Ottawa Board of Trade Thursday.

"We've put everything into place for us to catch it, and we seem to be doing very little to innoculate ourselves against it," de Cotret said.

He noted that it is not inevitable that Canada catch the disease, but that certain long-term policies like the energy policy are having very harmful short-term effects. If the policy on exports of energy hadn't been changed, Canada's exports would have been $1 billion higher this year than they will be, he said. However, he emphasized that this doesn't mean the energy policy is undesirable.

De Cotret said there is no doubt the economy is recovering, and in a similar fashion to other postwar recoveries, just at a much slower rate.

He pointed out that there are three main causes for the weakness of the recovery, of which the external environment is the most important.

The economic situation in Canada's major trading partners is not improving very fast, which means Canadian exports can't grow very fast, he said. In addition, Canada is in danger of losing its competitive position in world trade because of "the U.K. disease."

While Canada's merchandise trade is still in surplus, the surplus has shrunk a lot, de Cotret noted. Since Canada has traditionally had a large deficit on service transactions (interest and dividends paid to foreigners), this means there is now a record trade deficit which must be balanced by an inflow of foreign capital. This in turn leads to an increase in the value of the Canadian dollar, which further harms exports.

Certain government policy decisions also risk inhibiting recovery, de Cotret stated. Decisions by governments at all levels to try to cut expenditures have in some cases given rise to the "myth that they should cut back the deficit at the same time as expenditures," he said.

If the deficit is cut, this means the "automatic stabilizers" which have been built into the economy like unemployment insurance don't work, he noted. A large part of the government deficit occurs as a result of these stabilizing tools which are used to maintain demand at times of recession, and these tools should be allowed to work, he emphasized.

WE NEED MORE, PROFS TELL MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — About 50 university professors and researchers lobbied MPs on Parliament Hill Thursday saying they need more money and more say in where that money goes.

Meeting MPs in groups of two or three were representatives of the 18,400-member Canadian Association of University Teachers (CAUT), the 3,100-member Canadian Federation of Biological Societies and the 750-member Canadian Society for Clinical Investigation.

They argue their work will suffer because government research grants have been frozen and that access to education will decline if the government decreases its share of paying university operating costs.

FIRTH

'Nothing to Loose' On N.W.T. Claim

MONTREAL (CP) — Wally Firth, MP for the Northwest Territories, said Thursday he expects "a few compromises" in the land claim by native peoples of the N.W.T.

"But I think we'll get most of what we want," the New Democratic Party member said.

"We don't necessarily want to block the Mackenzie Valley pipeline, for example, but we want a land settlement before we can consider construction."

Mr. Firth, elected to the House in 1972, represents the 18,000 Dene Indians who plan to file a land claim for 450,000 square miles of N.W.T. land by November.

He also warned that there may be violence if the claims are not met.

"There are some people up there who have nothing to lose—they have no jobs. They are quite capable of taking this kind of action," the former broadcaster said.

"A few years ago, the court house at Hay River was blown up, and in broad daylight. And later, a United States Air Force shack at Hay River was also levelled."

Mr. Firth said the Dene will ask for land, mineral, energy and "maybe even air-space" rights in a bid to gain control of "our traditional home."

"We don't want to chase southerners out and we'd like to share whatever resources we have with them, but we want recognition of our rights."

The Inuit Tapirisat of the N.W.T. claimed outright ownership to 250,000 square miles of land and royalties for use of another 750,000 square miles Feb. 27.

Electoral Changes Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — A British Columbia MP urged his colleagues Thursday to develop a method of electoral redistribution which would reflect population more accurately.

John Reynolds (PC—Burnaby-Richmond-Delta) said in the Commons that the newest redistribution formula only gives British Columbia five new Commons seats even though it is the fastest-growing province in the country.

There are more than 200,000 people in his Lower Mainland riding and even with redistribution, there probably will be at least 120,000 in the proposed new riding.

At the same time, there are ridings with much smaller populations in other parts of the country, he said.

The Commons was debating objections by British Columbia MPs to the report of the province's electoral boundaries commission.

MPs from the B.C. interior argued for changes in the proposed new boundaries.

Len Marchand (L-Kamloops-Caribou) objected to the proposed transfer of the city of Merritt from his riding to the new riding of Okanagan-Similkameen. The people of Merritt have no affinity with Penticton but firm relations with Kamloops, he said.

George Whittaker (PC-Okanagan Boundary) said the commission basically did a good job but he agreed with Marchand that Merritt belong with Kamloops rather than in the new riding, which is similar to his own.

Reynolds, speaking on behalf of Bob Brisco (PC-Kootenay West) said Creston should remain in Kootenay West rather than be transferred to the proposed new riding of Kootenay East.

The proposed Kootenay East riding is a growing area because of coal development and its increasing population in the next five years should make the shifting of Creston into the new riding unnecessary.

NEB Delays Decision On Pipeline Hearings

OTTAWA (UPI) — The National Energy Board today postponed until next week a decision on action to take following a Supreme Court of Canada ruling that NEB chairman Marshall Crowe should be disqualified from presiding over hearings on the Mackenzie Valley gas pipeline.

The board met briefly and then adjourned to allow legal advisers time to study the supreme court decision.

An NEB spokesman said the board must decide not only who can take over for Crowe at the hearings, but whether the five-month probe must be scrapped or can proceed from where it adjourned.

"The board will have to decide whether to go back to square one in the inquiry. That will probably be necessary and means wiping out the work of 36 sitting days. A lot of evidence has been gathered, a lot of people's time taken and a lot of money spend," he said.

The court recommended Crowe step down as chairman of the hearings Thursday after three public interest groups testified they feared he might be biased because of his prior business association with one of the competing pipeline applicants.

The NEB has the power to accept or block the construction of gas and petroleum pipelines in Canada.

The NEB spokesman said Crowe had promised to abide by any court decision when he first asked the federal court if he would err in continuing as pipeline inquiry chairman. The federal court had said at that time he could continue with the job.

But interest groups appealed the decision to the supreme court. The high court reversed the lower court verdict Thursday.

Hearing Requested

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Prince George Chamber of Commerce is writing a letter to provincial Agriculture Minister Don Phillips asking him to hold a public hearing here into the plight of northern egg producers. The producers had their licences revoked by the British Columbia Egg Marketing Board recently for not paying levies to the board. Chamber president Bob McFarlane said a letter to the board protesting its decision has remained unanswered.

Jazz Violinist Spans Generation Gap

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

It was nostalgia for some and unfamiliar territory for others, but it worked.

And it left no doubt in anyone's mind that when it comes to an artist like Stephane Grappelli, there is no generation gap.

The close-to-capacity audience at the Royal Theatre Thursday included hundreds of young people and a few hundred middle-aged and older. But they all rose to their feet at the end of the concert in a stormy standing ovation.

Not having heard all the great jazz violinists I can't bear personal witness, but I suspect that Grappelli is the greatest ever.

He plays a scintillating brand of jazz, his bow flickering over the strings like summer lightning, his left hand dazzlingly articulate on the finger-board, the wonderful vibrant beat pulsating through double-stopped passages and flights of harmonicas.

There are haunting moments of pure lyricism — Solitude, Don't Get Around Much anymore, Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, were among them. And these, never edging into sentimentality yet played with sentiment and grace, reveal the impeccable musician who can never put a tapping foot wrong.

The Diz Disley Trio was back-up for Grappelli but that statement doesn't begin to do justice to what we heard. All three — Disley and Ike Isaacs on guitar and Ed Gaston, double bass — are super instrumentalists, their solo work top rank in virtuosity.

But more than that, they are sound and sensitive musicians creating with Grappelli a great sense of ensemble performance as the substantial and firmly woven fabric upon which the solo riff is a glittering decoration.

There was a mutual warmth on stage, an ease of manner when words were spoken by Diz and in soft-voiced gently-accented English by Grappelli.

And a pulse-quickening surprise when Grappelli, at the very end as an encore, sat down at the piano and proved he's a good jazz pianist too.

Huge School Cuts Seen

Canadian Press

School board budget cutbacks threatened by Education Minister Pat McGeer could mean a 25 per cent reduction in school services this fall resulting in class sizes increasing by one-third, Bill Broadley, British Columbia Teachers Federation president, said Thursday in Vancouver.

Broadley said at a news conference that recent calls by McGeer for cutbacks bringing school budgets within the federal guidelines also could mean layoffs of between 6,000 and 7,000 teachers out of a total of 28,000.

"This will be the most significant change in school programs ever in such a short period," Broadley said.

"It means class sizes could increase so that a class with 24 students becomes a class with 32 students, while a class with 33 students becomes a class with 44 students.

"This means we can't identify the children in early grades with learning disabilities, so these children fall behind and could eventually turn to juvenile delinquency. This creates a costlier problem in the future.

"Another thing that could happen is that special education programs for children with hearing disabilities and speech defects might be eliminated.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Bill Ross said he felt Broadley's assessment of the impact of the cutbacks was accurate.

"We figured that to keep our budget strictly within the 10 per cest guidelines, we would lose 300 teachers and that's about 20 per cent," he said.

All cuts affecting this year's budget would have to be made in September because teachers' contracts prevent any cuts before that, Ross said, "and that knocks hell out of your teaching staff."

Ross said he would be surprised if the education department took such drastic measures all in one year.

"You can knock the system down, but you can't do it in one fell swoop," he said.

Another way to cut back on budgets is to consolidate schools, but that is also something that takes at least a year's planning time, he said.

SIX-WHEELER READY

LONDON (Reuter) — A revolutionary, six-wheeled Tyrell-Ford racing car may make its first start in major competition at the Spanish Grand Prix at Madrid on May 2.

Another Sea-Law Plunge But Outlook Is Gloomy

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Representatives from more than 140 countries have begun assembling here for another crucial plunge into the muddied and immense task of writing a new law governing the use of all the world's oceans.

But there were few signs of optimism among the early arrivals, with the prevailaing mood one of caution and uncertainty.

The assembly, which opens Monday and continues until May 8, is the third session in the current International Law of the Sea Conference which began in Caracas, Venezuela, in mid-1974 and resumed for six weeks in Geneva last year.

Diplomats from both East and West describe it as one of the most important tests of the decade for international co-operation and development. Failure to agree, they say would raise unlimited potential for future world conflict.

Should the New York meeting show firm signs of progress, a final ratification conference would be held in Caracas early in 1977.

The most bedevilling issue facing the delgates — already under heated discussion here — is how to mine and share the revenue from the virtually unmeasurable wealth contained in strange-looking, potato-sized mineral nodules lying on ocean beds hundreds of miles out to sea.

And despite some quiet expressions of optimism by officials from several Western countries that a compromise will be reached, delegates from some undeveloped countries indicate a great gap still exists between opposing positions.

Basically, the undeveloped states want to set up an international assembly with represtatives from all countries, each having one vote, to develop the mineral nodules.

Quebec Joins AIB Fold

OTTAWA (FP) — Quebec Thursday became the seventh province to sign an agreement with the federal government under the anti-inflation program.

Finance Minister Donald MacDonald announced that under the agreement, Quebec will administer the program with respect to the provincial public sector under its own legislation.

Included under provincial control are all government departments and agencies, provincial Crown corporations and municipal institutions, school boards, hospitals, universities and other public bodies performing a function of government in Quebec.

The agreement also stipulates that Canada and Quebec will take such measures as may be required to provide for implementation by Quebec of the compensation guidelines for the Quebec construction industry.

Between $3,000 to $4,000 damage was done in a fire in a top-floor suite in a new four-storey condominium at 877 Ellery Thursday.

Esquimalt firemen said the fire started in a box which had been placed on top of a stove by an unidentified tenant who was in the process of moving into the suite.

A spokesman said an electrician had been working in the suite prior to the tenant's arrival and had turned off the power. When he finished he turned the power back on but was unaware an element on the stove had been left on.

E & N Hearing Requires Second Week

Chairman D. H. Jones of the Canadian Transport Commission railway committee served notice Thursday that hearings into E and N Railway discontinuation proposals will stretch into a second week in Victoria.

Speaking for himself and commissioner E. H. LaBorde mid-way through the fourth day of hearings at the Custom House, Jones said:

"We are prepared to sit next week until this case is completed" — short of sitting late at night or on the weekend.

"We want to do a proper job in this case because there are important issues," Jones said.

He was referring to an application by the E and N — subsidiary of CP Rail Ltd. — to end its Dayliner passenger service north of Victoria and to abandon trackage north of Parksville to Courtenay.

The railway claims it is uneconomic to rebuild two unsafe bridge-trestles (at French Creek and Tsable River) at an estimated cost of $2.2 million, and that operating the Dayliner passenger service is a losing proposition.

CP also filed material showing the freight service between Parksville and Courtenay lost money in 1973, 1974 and in the six months of 1975 until all service on the line terminated. A profit of $12,390 was made in 1972.

The railway's application is generally opposed by individuals, the B.C. government, city of Victoria, Nanaimo and Cowichan Valley Regional District in current sittings, and by others at previous sittings in Courtenay.

The provincial government began presenting its case Thursday and likely will continue next week after some further individual submissions Friday. Counsel Melvin Smith for the government, Lawrence Fast for the regional district, and Norman D. Mullins for CP Rail, are expected to have lengthy argument on whether the commission has jurisdiction to order suspension of service.

"The province is very much opposed to any and all attempts to make Parksville and not Courtenay the northern terminus of the E and N Railway," Smith told the committee, and said he would ask the CTC to order the immediate reconstruction of the bridges over French Creek and Tsable River.

Regarding the passenger service, he said the government will "argue the terms of the commission's order of October 1970, imposing certain conditions on the E and N and CP Rail, have not been substantially complied with in letter or spirit of that order."

In addition, he said, there are statutory obligations for the railway continuing its Victoria-Courtenay service in both freight and passenger capacities, and finally, he will argue the CTC does not have jurisdiction to order discontinuance of passenger service.

The jurisdictional question was raised Monday by Barbara Wallace (NDP-Cowichan-Malahat) who will offer further argument.

Leading off the government's case was professional engineering consultant Nelson Hepburn, Nanaimo-born and Victoria-raised civil engineering graduate of UBC who is now senior consultant with McElhanney Surveying and Engineering Ltd., of Vancouver.

He said he was responsible for design, construction and supervision of 20-25 bridges on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway (now B.C. Rail) in the 15 years he was with A. B. Sanderson and Co., consultants, and has been involved with rail and highway bridges and ship terminal construction over most of his professional career since 1950, including the 5,000-foot trestle approach to the Peace River bridge, for which he was responsible.

Hepburn was hired by the government transport and communications department to survey French Creek and Tsable River bridges and he confirmed the railway's position that both had "reached the end of their capability to carry railway traffic" without reconstruction. But he disputed the cost of replacement, which he placed as little as $1.2 million for a 15-year-structure and $1.7 million for bridges with a 50-year life.

The railway's last witness was Walter Murray, Victoria-based district manager of freight marketing and sales for CP Rail, who said although upper Vancouver Island held potential for freight sales, he could see no major development north of Parksville before 1985.

Smith asked what he felt about the suggestion that CP is not interested in rail freight on the island.

"It couldn't be further from the truth. My job is to dig up carload traffic of any kind, shape or place on Vancouver Island. My job depends upon it and I work hard at it," Murray said.

He said in order to justify his existence, he aimed at increasing his freight sales revenue by 25 per cent annually, a figure which surprised Smith. Was it realistic to aim so high, Smith wondered.

Murray said he reached it "quite often" and was "well on my way to it" this year.

But he agreed with Smith that on the mainline a 10 per cent increase a year would be more realistic.

The railway has filed figures showing the Parksville-Courtenay line had a 120 per cent increase in freight revenue in six years, or an average 20 per cent a year.

Murray said there had been more satisfactory customer service since the Parksville-Courtenay line was closed.

"I haven't heard a complaint in five months now," he said.

"That's because we've got them all," the chairman put in.

John Low, of Tahsis Co., disputed that service had improved and suggested it has in fact declined as far as his company was concerned.

SMITH SCHOOL TO CLOSE

Smith School, the only independent school in the Alberni area, will close June 30 because of financial troubles.

Board chairman Helen Patenaude said the school had a $10,000 deficit last year which has now climbed to $50,000.

The school had 11 teachers and 200 students in grades one to 10.

Mrs. Patenaude said the school sought financial assistance from the provincial government but was told no decision could be made until near the end of this year and "of course this was no good for us."

Qualicum Death Drowning

A Victoria man found dead on the beach north of Qualicum Beach last week died of drowning, an autopsy showed.

Parksville coroner S. W. Beeston said it was impossible to determine how long James Lawrence Whidden, 37, had been dead because of the length of time the body had been in the water.

Police believe the air may have been leaking from Whidden's inflatable boat and that he may have been trying to pump it back up when he realized it was sinking.

The boat was found near his body, but was deflated and was under overhanging trees, making it difficult to spot from the air during the intensive search for the man who was last seen alive several weeks before while launching his boat in the Englishman River.

Valve caps which prevent air leaks were missing and the hand pump was in place when the boat was found.

Whidden's body was found last week by his brother-in-law.

Ex-Sally Ann Head Dies Here at 89

Funeral services were held in St. John's Church Wednesday for Mrs. Ethel M. Lennox, who was president of the Sally Ann during the Second World War.

Mrs. Lennox, who died Sunday at the age of 89, was the daughter of A. J. Bechtel, a pioneer citizen who came to Victoria during the gold rush days. Her husband, Dr. William Joseph Lennox, predeceased her.

(PORTAGE INLET—OFF ADMIRALS RD.)

Situated on sheltered waterfront just three miles from city centre, this unique and delightful property exemplifies the charm of Victoria. Heavy hand-split shakes, leaded windows and Tudor styling blend with expert landscaping. The exceptional views (from every window), the boating, the wildlife that visits daily, all combine to provide the living pleasure the city is famous for. There are three bedrooms and a special feature is the 19' Master Bedroom with sliding glass doors to balcony overlooking the water. The truly delightful guest cottage is semi-furnished. The bridge, the tall trees, and a most unusual Oak and Arbutus tree add atmosphere that can only be had by years of growth. Not an old property, but an unusual one with a Disneyland flavor. A retired couple or small family would find this a perfect home plus investment (or for Mum and Dad).

DISTINGUISHED Canadian composer John Weinzweig will be in Victoria next week as a guest of University of Victoria music department. The internationally noted Toronto-born musician will deliver several lectures to students of the department, ranging in topic from songs of the Canadian Eskimo to a discussion of the awakening of Canadian music and an analysis of some of his own works. On Thursday he will give a public lecture at the MacLaurin Building on the topic, Canadian Composers in Words and Music.

BRASS GROUP AT THE BELFRY

Western Brass, this city's professional ensemble, will be heard in a comprehensive concert tonight at The Belfry Cultural Centre, 1291 Gladstone.

The brass chamber players are Boyde Hood and Jeff Reynolds, trumpet, Thomas Eadie, trombone, Joan Watson, horn, and Dean Monterey, tuba.

Two Canadian works are on the program: Suite from the Monteregion by Quebec composer Morley Calvert, and Aphorisms for Brass by Forsyth.

Contrapunctus No. 9 from the Art of the Fugue by J. S. Bach and three movements from Centoni No. 5 by Samuel Scheidt recall 17th and 18th century styles. Other music is by Ewald, Frackenpohl and Cheetham.

The concert starts at 8 p.m. and tickets will be available at the door.

Former Nazi, SS Trooper Eyes Top Rotary Post

VIENNA — Wolfgang Wick, a former Nazi party member and SS trooper, said Thursday he is determined to remain a candidate for president of Rotary International at the New Orleans election in June.

Wick was named for the post by an 11-member nominating commjttee earlier this year. After objections by Dutch Rotarians and others, he resigned the nomination, but the committee again chose him.

Wick said he belonged to the Nazi party "during the time it was legal here" but denied any important role in Nazi Austria.

"I was 28 pears old then. To say that anybody can hold an important post at such an age must rely on fancy, not on acts," said in a telephone interview.

SALT LAKE CITY — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes now is living at the Princess Hotel in Acapulco, Mexico, says a document filed in U.S. District Court on Thursday. The document was filed by Edward Clyde, a lawper representing Hughes' Summa Corp. in a $9-million suit alleging that the company fradulently sold mining stock.

PARIS — Singer Tom Jones said Thursday he plans to take up residence in the United States this year because of high taxes in Britain.

Jones said he planned to keep his British passport, but would live in the Los Angeles area.

NEW YORK — Pianist Arthur Rubinstein unveiled a bust of himself Thursday in Carnegie Hall, where he made his U.S. debut 70 years ago.

Rubinstein will perform at Carnegie Hall on Monday.

"I've been coming here for 70 years," said Rubinstein. "No artist as long as me."

ASKERN, England — Dr. Janusz Mozdzierz says he'll abandon his patients and move away if Ronald Haywood goes ahead with plans to open a funeral home two doors from his office.

"I feel that the siting of this funeral parlor is in very bad taste. It is not exactly the best tonic for the morale of my patients," said Mozdzierz.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Susan Murphy wore a nun's black habit to her death threat trial, contending she was a sister in the church of mass murderer Charles Manson.

"I'm a sister in Manson's church, I want to wear black," she declared. "Manson is my judge. I don't think anyone else can judge me."

Agent Lost 20 Years in Chinese Jail

WASHINGTON — John Downey wanted to go to law school after he got out of Yale. But when a CIA recruiter appeared on campus and said he was looking for a few bright young men, Downey decided to take a couple of years off and see the world.

That was in 1951, after the Chinese had crossed the Yalu River into Korea. Downey was sent to the Far East. His mission, reportedly, was to train nationalist Chinese in espionage and assist them in infiltrating the mainland. But his career with the CIA was cut short one night in late 1952 when he and another agent and seven Taiwanese were shot down and captured in the foothills of the Manchurian mountains.

Downey spent the next 20 years of his life in Chinese prisons, the victim of a cold war in which the U.S. refused to acknowledge his role — the condition the Chinese had set for his release. Finally on March 11, 1973, after President Nixon said the magic words — that he was indeed a spy — Downey, 42 years old, was a free man.

There had been early hardships, months in leg irons and solitary, then long, placid years filled mainly with reading and exercising. Downey learned the Oriental art of patience. He returned looking boyish and fit, almost as if he had never been gone.

Indeed, in the three years since his release, Downey has managed to move apart from the preceding 20 as if they belonged to another life. "It does seem like something else," he said in a telephone interview last week. "You know, another place and time." Downey entered Harvard Law School in the fall of 1973 and will graduate this June. Last May he married Audrey Lee, a Chinese native who was then a research associate in molecular biophysics and biochemistry at Yale.

He maintains that his ordeal had few lasting effects on his way of life. "When you come away from something like that, it doesn't take you very long to be just like everyone else again. You come out and think, I'll never forget this or that, but in six months you are looking at things the same way everyone else seems to."

ENTHUSIASM of this young cast for the Peanuts cartoon characters helped them to create, with the aid of their Monterey School teacher Sandra Webster, their own adaptation with music which they call Happiness Is. In turn they got an enthusiastic reception in the recent Schools Drama Festival, being chosen for the final gala performance, and invited to repeat it at UVic's Student Union Building theatre Wednesday and for the B.C. Music Educators Association program series this week. From left, David Bedford (Linus), Deanna Graham (Freeda), Phillip Thompson (Charley), Kim Stevens (Snoopy) and Anne Tolson (Peppermint Patty). HOFFA TAXES WANTED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Internal Revenue Service has asked the family of missing James Hoffa for $578,927 in back taxes, claiming the ex-teamsters' boss illegally used a union "cash termination" plan and a tax loophole to avoid paying taxes in 1971.

Hoffa's lawyer, however, filed a petition with the U.S. Tax Court in Washington, asserting the IRS allegations are "arbitrary, excessive, and capricious."

In a letter to the Hoffa family on Dec. 23, the IRS alleged Hoffa, who disappeared July 30, received over $1.7 million from a teamsters' fund in 1971 for which he was not eligible.

On that year's income tax return, Hoffa claimed the money, which he received in one lump sum from the Teamsters' cash termination benefit program, was not taxable because it was a "capita asset held more than six months."

The IRS maintained, however, that because Hoffa remained with the Teamsters' union until "normal retirement age," he was ineligible for the cash termination benefits. Instead, the IRS said Hoffa should have received annual annuity payments under the Teamsters' regular retirement benefits program.

Hoffa vanished from a restaurant parking lot near his home last July and has not been seen or heard from since. Authorities have expressed fears he was the victim of a gangland slaying.

Hoffa was released from federal prison on Dec. 23, 1971, after his sentence for jury tampering was commuted by President Nixon. In the months before his disappearance he was said to be trying to re-enter union politics.

Victim Identified

COURTENAY (CP) — A man who died in a house fire at Saratoga Beach Monday night has been identified as Keith Kenneth Parson, 69. Two neighbors had tried unsuccessfully to rescue Parsons. Mrs. Parsons was in Victoria at the time.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 23-year-old Victoria area man was charged Thursday in Victoria provincial court with escaping Oct. 15, 1975, from the Wilkinson Road provincial jail in Saanich.

Douglas Gordon Martin, also known as Jamie Cookson, 225 Gorge East, was remanded to today by Judge William Ostler at the request of Legal Aid duty counsel Douglas Macfarlane.

(Jail officials said Oct. 13 that one of three inmates heading outside for potato-picking duties suddenly bolted out of a door and ran through a yard to freedom. The suspect was reportedly arrested Tuesday in Vancouver.)

In the court section of Judge Harold Alder, a U.S. citizen who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of assault causing bodily harm was sentenced to 90 days in jail.

Kenneth Wayne Bartholow, 230 Gorge East, cut his brother-in-law on the chin, head and one finger with a knife in a dispute Saturday and 24 stitches were needed to close two chin cuts. Bartholow is to be deported after his jail time ends.

Four persons were jailed by traffic court Judge F. S. Green following pleas of guilty to separate Saanich charges of impaired driving.

They were John Louis Perrault, 39, of 969 Scotia, stopped Saturday, 20 days to be served intermittently; Derek John Craig, 23, of 2827 Quadra, stopped Feb. 24, 16 days intermittent; Phillip George Adam Hunter, 20, of 1111 Oscar, stopped Sunday, 16 days, and Stephen George Monnon, 22, of 307 Vancouver, stopped Saturday, four days intermittent.

Full or partial six-month driving bans were ordered for al but Hunter while all but Perrault must take the provincial impaired-driver course.

Luc Norman Charette, 29, of 2719 Mt. Stephen, pleaded guilty to a Saanich charge of stealing three items worth a total of $63.64 March 2 from two stores in the Woolco complex. He was fined $250 by Ostler on one count and given a suspended sentence and one-year term of probation on the other.

Brock Robert Ballandine, 27, of 1758 Fort, was fined $75 after pleading guilty to a Victoria charge of possession of a concealed switchblade. He told police that "it was a new toy, you know" and Ostler replied: "Far too many people consider objects like this to be toys." The judge ordered the knife confiscated.

Francesco Natale Gaudio, 28, of 67 Marler, was found guilty by Ostler following a trial on a Victoria charge of assault causing bodily harm Oct. 1, 1975. The victim was his wife, from whom he was separated. Ostler fined Gaudio $300 and put him on probation for one year.

David Alfred McNeil Jones, 21, HMC Dockyard, admitted possession of a small amount of marijuana Sunday when police in Saanich stopped a car for a traffic violation, and also admitted a narcotics-possession conviction and fine of $75 last Nov. 20. Ostler fined him $150.

34,000 Transfusions

Blood donors in British Columbia gave 124,000 pints through Red Cross clinics last year — but that's an average of less than four pints each for the 34,000 patients who needed transfusions.

Some modern medical techniques, such as open heart surgery, kidney and leukemia treatment, sometimes require much more, Red Cross spokesmen Joan Wallace said Thursday.

Researchers are discovering new ways to use blood more efficiently, she said, and it is now possible for a single blood donation to assist three different patients.

Red cells can be separated for anemia cases, plasma can go to burn victims and another fraction of the blood called cryoprecipitate, a clotting agent, is used to treat hemophiliacs, she said.

Red Cross blood clinics will be held daily next week in Victoria. Following are locations and times:

Monday and Tuesday at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St., from 2:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. each day.

Also on Tuesday, at the Lansdowne campus of Camosun College, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

wednesday through Friday, at UVic's Student Union Building, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Alta. Move 'Aggression'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Provincial Liberal leader Gordon Gibson says the Alberta government's decision to transfer head offices of Pacific Western Airlines out of the province amounts to "economic and political aggression against the people of British Columbia."

Gibson told the annual meeting of the Kamloops Liberal association the decision to move the offices to Calgary from Vancouver should be fought in the courts.

He said Premier Bill Bennett should fight the move and an immediate cease-and-desist order should be imposed by the courts before a single employee is moved.

Gibson also asked his party to re-evalute its stand on allowing private companies to compete with the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia.

"There are good arguments for both sides of the question," Gibson told the meeting.

He said he wants input from party members and people engaged in the industry "and right now I don't know where we will come down (in terms of a policy)."

Gibson said there is no doubt the Social Credit government is clearing the way for re-entry of private companies through the dropping of territorial discounts and subsidies on under-age drivers.

Stolen Flag Used for Drapes

A 25-year-old Qualicum Bay man who used a stolen Canadian flag as a drape in his home — and admitted other charges — was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Thursday to one extra month in jail.

Carl Arvid Erickson was charged with possession of marijuana, hashish, heroin, a restricted weapon and a known stolen Canadian flag Dec. 19, possession of known stolen household items Jan. 6 and possession of a known stolen power-saw Jan. 7.

Defence lawyer William McElmoyle entered pleas of guilty to the marijuana, weapon and flag counts and the rest were stayed or withdrawn.

Prosecutors Peter Birkett and Nicholas Lott said marijuana stems and seeds, a sawed-off .22 calibre rifle and the flag were found when RCMP searched Rickson's residence.

Lott said Rickson told police he had the marijuana because "he was under the impression it would soon be legalized." Birkett said Rickson's record included a 1973 narcotics-possession fine and Erickson was sentenced Jan. 6 at Parksville to six months for theft.

McElmoyle said Rickson was a city dweller who had moved to Qualicum Bay for peace and quiet but couldn't find work. He said three visitors to Erickson left the gun behind when they went to the U.S. and the flag from an area motel, was being used for drapes.

"Does your client consider that a suitable way to use a Canadian flag?" asked Ostler.

"Well, I don't know . . . perhaps he doesn't know," said McElmoyle.

Ostler said Erickson's possession of a sawed-off rifle could be dangerous, especially since he had a record. He ordered a total jail term of four months starting Thursday. Since Erickson must stay in jail to May 16 for the theft, the new sentence will amount to an extra month.

"With 50 tons of logs breathing down your neck..."

"With 50 tons of logs breathing down your neck, it's nice to know you won't slide around. From Vancouver to Calgary, nothing fazed those little Fiats.

The 128 is unusually roomy. It took four big men. Comfortably.

Icy logging trails, deep snow, or fast highway cruising. Heavy loads, big people, hard work. They never put a foot wrong."

It was no modern Saga of the West! But it was quite a test of a car. Two cars, to be exact. A Fiat 128 sedan, and the new Fiat 3P hatchback coupe.

The occasion: A photographic session in the Rockies and the foothills of Alberta. Vancouver photographer Toby Rankin and one of the drivers, Montrealer Robi Roncarelli, know cars. Both raced and rallied in club events, as Rankin puts it, "in our impetuous youth". But the Fiat 128 was unfamiliar to them. And a surprise to both. Some sample quotes:

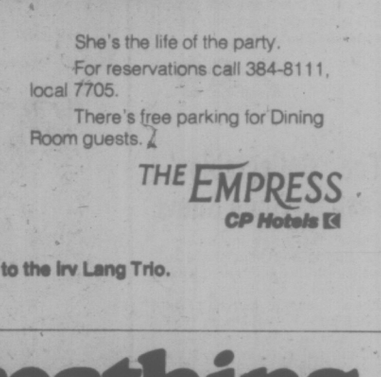
Rankin: "The cars would start off on steep hills, in packed snow, no fuss at all. With my car I'd have had to back right down to the bottom and try again." (Rankin owns a small import — a sporty, expensive one. But unlike the Fiat, it doesn't have front-wheel drive.)

Roncarelli: "Fantastic handling. Rankin would say things like 'take the bend a foot from the snowbank, slide the rear end round so I can take a side shot, then straighten out in front of the tree.' And it would do it like that." (The 128 has won the Canadian Winter Rally five times — a record that will most likely never come close to being equalled.)

Rankin: "That's a really solid car. No squeaks or groans — and some of those logging roads were rough."

Roncarelli: "The engine had the guts to keep going at high speeds mile after mile. It pulled powerfully up the mountains even at low revs."

Rankin: "We had crosswinds gusting to at least 40 and it was as steady as a rock."



"A car that can maneuver as well in the snow as the 128 would find our hills and downtown traffic a breeze to handle" —Vancouverite Rankin.

The writer: "I was in the back most of the time. Boy, there's a lot of room! I'm big, but my legs weren't cramped at all and the back seat's really comfortable. Most aren't"

Verdict: "Tremendous little cars!

Rankin said: "I like the hatchback. I can get my camera gear in and out fast and it makes a great platform for running shots!"

Fiat 128 3P Coupe. Fiat 128 Sedan.

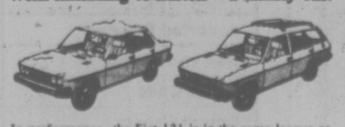
FIAT 128 SEDAN. Front-wheel drive. Independent suspension all round. Power-assisted disc brakes up front. Rack and pinion steering. 13 cu. ft. trunk. Steel-belted radials. 2-door, 4-door and station wagon versions. Guts, space, and great handling — the superior small car. FIAT 128 3P COUPE. The virtues of the sedan, plus a hatchback, fold-down rear seat and beautiful lines.

Note — The Fiat 128 costs more than most other small cars. But if you want more space, and guts, and front wheel drive, and super handling, as Roncarelli observed: "It's more than worth the extra money." But you'll have to take a test drive to know for sure, won't you? Do that!

The 131. High-performance engine with handling to match — a family car.



In performance, the Fiat 131 is in the same league as the Volvo 242, BMW 2002 and Audi 100LS. But it costs a lot less. It comes as a sedan or station wagon. Has 5-speed gearbox (five!) or an on-the-floor automatic you can shift for yourself if you have a mind to.

Classic Spider, or mid-engine X1/9. Some choice!

The Fiat 124 Spider — one of the world's few remaining genuine sports cars. Fast. Roomy. Comfortable. And open to sun, wind and admiration. On the other hand, there's only a handful of mid-engine sports cars. And only one at the price of the X 1/9. Some choice!

Businessmen Willing To Gamble on Centre For City Conventions

Victoria Times
FRIDAY, MARCH 12, 1976 19
SECOND SECTION

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria business associations said today they are willing to take the gamble that a convention centre would be successful, despite the pessimism of Mayor Mike Young.

In separate statements they presented a united front, saying there was evidence a convention centre could attract tourist and delegate dollars to the city in the off-season.

Young had said a convention centre would lose money because delegates would prefer to go to warmer climates in the winter months. If they don't select Victoria for a holiday they won't come here for a convention in the winter months.

—Vancouver is flooded with conventions in the winter months, while Victoria is losing out because facilities are lacking here for conventions larger than 800 people. The Vancouver Tourist and Convention Bureau has 30 pages of conventions on its books for 1976 alone.

—The chamber of commerce has had to discourage many groups enquiring about winter conventions because the groups were too large to be accommodated in Victoria.

—Hotels like the Empress Hotel have had to turn away business because they were booked solid in the off-season. (Empress manager Ted Balderson said this was true of some periods in the fall and spring months but convention business tended to be slack in winter.)

—The mayor's argument that conventions would only select Victoria in the summer months and not in winter (because tourists flock here only in summer and not in the other months) could be challenged on the grounds that people take holidays when their children are out of school but can go on conventions at any time of year. The tourist flow would always be highest in summer and Easter when families could travel.

Organizers More Nationalistic

—Convention organizers are becoming more nationalistic and prefer to meet in Canada, rather than going to Hawaii or Las Vegas. In Canada, Victoria has the best winter climate.

—In addition, there are tax advantages for Canadian companies to meet in Victoria rather than the United States. A company can write off as a business expense the full cost of an employee's convention expenses for a maximum of two meetings each year but the conventions must be held in Canada.

—Victoria can be successfully promoted as a fun city in the winter months because of its golf facilities and skiing, which is about 150 miles up-Island at Green Mountain. Golf can be played almost any day of the year but is particularly attractive in fall and spring. Fishing and sailing are also available in winter.

—Convention centres may be failures in Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Winnipeg but that does not prove it would fail here. Nobody would select Calgary for a winter meeting but many prairie people would be happy to be in Victoria in the winter. Temperature in Calgary Thursday was minus 14 while it was 7 here.

—The flow of winter visitors is increasing each year. A check of out-of-province licence plates in Victoria today would confirm this.

In addition to these arguments that the convention centre could very well show a profit, the business groups said it would be worthwhile even if it operated at a loss.

The businessmen said the facility should be thought of as a civic centre and not just a convention site. Therefore, it would add to the enjoyment of local citizens for the following reasons:

—Many touring cultural and musical events have to bypass Victoria (although they appear in Vancouver) because there is no suitable large hall in this city. The Memorial Arena is not suitable for opera, for example.

—If the civic centre does lose money, it is still worthwhile, because it will attract tourist dollars to the city that benefits the whole community. Delegates often take holidays in association with a meeting.

—A civic centre is as important as a road or park. It provides a service but it is not essential that it show a profit, although it may.

The businessmen reiterated that they would be willing to have their business tax increased one per cent to provide a starting fund for the civic centre.

Tight Look At Loans To Students

The department of education said Wednesday it is intensifying procedures for checking post-secondary student loan applications which are numbering 20,000 a year.

Spokesman John Walsh said more staff has been approved for the student services branch which administers the financial assistance programs, including loans, grants, special assistance for part-time study and federally-funded bilingual awards.

More than $25 million in federal and provincial funds will be loaned to students this year.

Walsh said there would be no cutback in the aid program but applications will be reviewed more carefully for possible errors.

He said that over the past few years the number of student assistance applications has tripled yet at the same time staff hired to process the applications has remained relatively constant.

Wally And Sam

Did someone say postmen and dogs are natural enemies?

In fact, he takes his dog Sam (short for Samantha) with him on his daily rounds. And can't you see the enjoyment written all over Sam's face?

Class Bumped By E and N For Americans

The Canadian Transport Commission hearing was told today a reserved E & N dayliner trip for a group of Victoria students was scuttled by inept and impolite railway officials.

The story of the tour that didn't go was told by George Olsson, principal of Sundance elementary school.

Olsson said he arranged a class trip to the forest museum at Duncan via the dayliner. There would be 108 students and about 20 adults travelling in two groups and he inquired of the railway if they could handle such a group.

Assured by the central booking office that this could be done he bought tickets ahead of time for the first trip Sept. 10, 1974, and got to the station in Victoria in plenty of time that date.

"But as the train pulled in a tour group of senior citizens from the U.S. arrived and began to go aboard," Olsson said.

He learned this was a package bus tour and the station agent who had been unaware of the bus tour was still selling tickets to other passengers arriving for the dayliner.

Olsson said only half the children and no parents were able to board the dayliner and he reluctantly decided that all would go back to the school and forego the trip.

"I told them what I thought of it," Olsson said, and he said he rebooked the tour for the following week.

One of the commissioners, E. H. LaBore, asked if the conductor had given them a chance to stand on the train.

Olsson said he wan't asked — "He said 'make up your mind, either get on or get off.'"

The CTC was also urged to consider Transport Minister Otto Lang's national transportation policies before deciding on whether to suspend the E and N's rail passenger service.

OLSSON

Cowichan - Malahat New Democrat MLA Barbara Wallace said Canadian Pacific Railway was asking a great deal of the commission in view of Lang's intention of making an encompassing review of Canadian rail passenger services. (See also Page 13)

The E and N has applied to abandon its dayliner service north of Victoria and drop trackage between Parksville and Courtenay.

Wallace argued the CTC does not have jurisdiction to order discontinuation of service and that the maintenance of railway service on Vancouver Island is inherent in the terms of union between B.C. and the parliament of Canada.

Ask The Times

Q. I believe former premier W. A. C. Bennett holds a degree from an eastern Canadian university. Could you please list his academic achievements above the secondary school level.—R.J.H.

a. The former premier was largely a self-educated man. He holds five university degrees but all are honorary and were awarded to him after he became premier. He took his elementary and secondary education in New Brunswick and Alberta respectively. His honorary degrees were from University of B.C. 1958, Notre Dame University at Nelson, B.C., 1965, Simon Fraser University 1966, University of New Brunswick 1966 and McGill University 1967.

Undue Influence? Not Likely

Victoria Mayor Mike Young said Thursday he wouldn't have accompanied Victoria realtors on a trip to Scottsdale, Arizona, if he felt there was "any possibility they were going to unduly influence me."

Young and Saanich Mayor Ed Lum accepted invitations to attend a six-day seminar in Arizona, at the request of Scottsdale city officials and the real estate boards of Victoria and Scottsdale.

In reply to reporters' questions following Thursday's city council meeting, the Victoria mayor said he could see no reason why anyone should object to his visit.

He said one or two local radio stations had asked who paid for the trip itself and his own accommodation, and the answer was that the only person who had not paid was the city taxpayer.

Young said the invitation was extended by the Victoria Real Estate Board which had paid for the charter flight and tours in Scottsdale, but he paid his own hotel bills.

"I don't know whether to ask the taxpayer to reimburse that or not," he added sarcastically.

Under further questioning, on whether it was advisable to accept the hospitality of a vested interest group, the mayor said: "I don't know what you're talking about."

When one reporter noted that the particular vested interest could be summed up in the single word "development," Young replied that very few of those board members on the trip "are into the development game."

And to the best of his knowledge the only property the board owns in the city is its business office.

CKDA Innocent

Radio station CKDA did not carry any stories critical of the two local mayors, Mike Young and Ed Lum, for going to Scottsdale, Arizona, with the Victoria Real Estate Board, a spokesman for the radio station said today.

The station was responding to a statement by board president Eric Charman that radio stations in Victoria had been critical of the mayors. Charman today confirmed that, to his knowledge, there had been no criticism on CKDA. Most of the criticism originated at C-FAX, Charman said, with a milder stance taken in stories carried on CJVI.

Stay-at-Home Research By Linguistics Head

University of Victoria department head Dr. Harry Scargill will go on a year's sabbatical this summer to research the history of Canada in words—all without leaving town.

Unlike most academics who have to seek out sources in far-flung libraries, museums, government offices or in the field of their particular studies, Scargill has his sources at UVic, which is home of the Lexicographical Centre he helped to found.

Scargill is head of UVic linguistics department, one of two heads who will go on sabbatical in the coming academic year to do research aided by Canada Council grants.

The other is political science chairman Dr. Walter Young, whose work on the life of M. J. Coldwell, an early leader of the CCF (now NDP) will take him to the National Archives in Ottawa, the Saskatchewan provincial archives and to interview former Coldwell colleagues in various places.

But like Scargill, much of Young's work will be done in Victoria. He has already gathered a good deal of material on Coldwell, including interviews with the ex-teacher who became a farm political leader in Saskatchewan, a pioneer of the CCF, its wartime leader in the House of Commons and national leader in 1942.

. . . year off

Eventually, he said, he will write a book on the life and career of one of Canada's more notable socialists.

Young said he planned to take the year off at the time he came to UVic two years ago and applied for the sabbatical a year ago.

Scargill said his research will examine how various economic and social features peculiar to the Canadian fabric have contributed words to the language of English-speaking Canadians. He will locate the use of certain words, outline their origin and why they have come into use.

Such Canadianisms as "red chamber," "fur trade," "riding" and others have played a part in the history of Canada.

"Words are just as important—more important—than archaeological ruins in telling how people got to be the way they are," Scargill said.

One of his chief sources will be the Dictionary of Canadianisms, on which he worked before and after coming to UVic.

Scargill said he had not yet chosen a title for his new history book, but toyed with the idea of Acadia to Zeballos—A History of Canada in Words.

Spearfishing Prohibited At Ogden Pt. Breakwater

The federal fisheries department has closed the waters off Ogden Point breakwater to spearfishing in an attempt to conserve certain species of fish being depleted by the underwater hunters, a department spokesman said today.

Victoria fisheries officer Larry Duke said the closure order, which takes effect midnight Sunday and is "pretty well permanent," forbids the spearhunting of ling cod, octopus, wolf eel, abalone and scallops.

"The intent is to conserve these species from being depleted. They are vulnerable to spearfishing," Duke said.

The order comes after about two years of pressure from local diving clubs to have the area made into a marine park.

The waters off Ogden Point, the divers say, are a perfect classroom area for novice divers, but the marine stock was being depleted by spearfishermen.

Duke said making the area into a marine park was a problem in provincial-federal jurisdiction.

"There is a split in jurisdiction in an area like that. The foreshore and inter-tidal area is provincial," Duke said, but the water itself is federal.

The creation of a marine park would also prohibit sportfishing off the breakwater, Duke said, "and that wouldn't go down too well."

But the department can impose closure orders for certain species of fish and that solves the problem, at least for a while.

"This was an effort to do something right away," he said.

Tim Stevens, vice-president of the Victoria Pacific Sea Searchers termed the action "super."

"Maybe we can see it recover to what it was 10 years ago."

Stevens said the closure order also prohibits specimen-taking from the water.

The closure boundaries run from Ogden Point Pier A, to Breakwater light, to Brotchie Ledge light to Holland Point.

It is the third preserve area in the Victoria area. The other two are at Ten Mile Point and Land's End.

Visiting Stopped At VGH

The flu epidemic has forced Victoria General Hospital to stop visits to patients exept in special cases, starting today.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital, visiting will continue but the public has been asked again to stay away from patients if they have symptoms of cold or flu.

Dr. D. R. Carlow, assistant executive director (medical) at Victoria General, said Thursday that about 25 per cent of the nursing staff and 40 or so patients have been hit by flu.

Elective surgery had to be cut by half Thursday and today, he said.

Among special cases where limited visiting will be allowed is parents visiting their children in the hospital, Carlow said.

Wanted: 500 Volunteers . . . Now

Volunteers to work with young people's groups, recreation, cultural, environmental and conservation organizations are badly needed in Greater Victoria.

And many are needed to help the sick and the aged, according to Barbara Hay, a member of the Victoria Volunteer Bureau which tries to find people to help struggling groups.

"At least 500 could be used in various community jobs, such as on executives of various organizations, instructors in crafts and as leaders of youth organizations," she said.

A survey conducted two years ago estimated there were between 4,000 and 5,000 volunteer workers, but Hay thinks this is a conservative figure as it did not take in all aspects of community work.

"We are deluged with requests for help," she said. "Some of the help required would take little of a person's time—one or two hours a week."

She said most offering their services are between the ages of 18 and 30.

"While we still need people in this age group, we would like more older citizens—retired people with skills and administrative experience," she said.

People are needed to drive the handicapped to doctors and to shopping and recreation centres, to work with children and senior citizens and to help feed the sick in hospitals.

"We even have one request for someone to construct learning toys for children," she added.

In youth work, she observed, the shortage of volunteers is acute.

"The demand is for people with skills to teach crafts and outdoor activities and to serve as leaders."

The Boy Scout Association has had to disband two groups because of the lack of leaders.

But apart from leaders, the association needs men and women with business and executive experiences to serve on group and district committees and the council.

Tony Hawkins, vice-president of the scout region, said Victoria has many retired people with managerial and executive experiences, but so far few have offered their assistance.

"We are not asking them to run a group of boys," he said. "We need them to help out at the executive, organizational and administrative levels," he explained.

LUMBERETTES MAUL NEWFIE HOOP REPS

HAMILTON — Victoria Home Lumber, displaying a well-balanced attack, lived up to a billing as favorites by mauling St. John's Black Horses 71-27 in the opening game of the round-robin portion of the Canadian women's basketball championship tournament here Thursday.

The B.C. champions, drawn in with Newfoundland, Alberta and Manitoba, were scheduled to complete preliminary play today.

In the other "B" Division St. Vital Grads nipped Edmonton TBA, 72-78.

Angie Dobie, who hit on 70 per cent of her shots, led overall scoring for Victoria with 16 points while Wendy Grant added 15 and Mary Coutts and Diana Morris each contributed 10.

Dee Freethy and Gail Klaver, on of the three additions made by the Victoria squad, each fired seven points while Lorraine Tutte had four and Sherry Stevenson had two.

No one on the Newfoundland team managed to get more than eight points.

In "A" Division play the same day, Saskatchewan tripped Quebec 62-47 and Ontario bounced Nova Scotia, 60-44.

The top two teams in each section following round-robin play will advance to the sudden-death championship with the "A" winner meeting the "B" runner-up in one semi-final and the "B" winner facing the "A" runner-up.

Scorpions May Rely on Speed To Chop Down Tall Albertans

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

The flu bug is still bugging some of the Scorpions but it is not expected that anyone will be sidelined for tonight's opening game of the western senior "A" Men's basketball championships against Raymond Union Jacks at the old University of Victoria gymnasium.

The two latest casualties are manager Bob Burrows, Sr., and forward Dave Mulcahy.

For Burrows, it probably won't matter to the team but Mulcahy, who missed one practice this week, would be a distinct loss. He is one of the club's top rebounders and played a strong part in last weekend's victory over Vancouver Athletics in the provincial final.

Three of the Scorpions' players and two of the teams' executive were below par for that series but the club came on strong to wear down the Athletics in the second half of each of the two games here.

Derek Sankey, who was outstanding for the A's, has agreed to play for the Scorpions in the playoff against Raymond and also later in the Canadian championships here on March 26, 27 and 28.

Sankey is the only player the Scorpions plan to pick up as it is felt the other team players "helped get us here and should be a part of the final," said Burrows.

"However, if there is an injury, then we may re-assess that position," he said. "Right now, we are going with what we've got, and they have done pretty well."

"And we'll play Sankey, too," he said. "There is no use in asking a player to help and then not using him; and I think he'll do all right."

All right," for Sankey is usually very good. In three games against the Scorpions in the B.C. playoffs, he scored 66 points.

The Scorpions are expected to use the fast break against what appears to be a much taller Raymond team; but the fact that the Scorpions have been playoff active in recent weeks, and the Jacks haven't, may help to offset that height advantage.

Raymond coach Rob Holt admitted his team hadn't had that much good competition recently. Still, the Jacks have three former national players in the lineup — Phil Tollestrup, his brother Tim and Allan Williams, and all are 6'6" tall or taller.

Game time is 8:30 p.m. Second game will be played at the same gym, Saturday at 8:30 p.m. with the third game, if necessary, Sunday at 1 p.m.

Raymond must win the series to qualify for the Canadian championship. That would make it a five-team event. If Scorpions win, the tournament will match the four regional championship teams in the sudden-death affair. In any event, the Scorpions will qualify.

Kiniski, Steinke Retain Crown In Tag Contest

Gene Kiniski and Seigfreid Steinke retained the Canadian tag-team title in a championship bout against Don Leo Jonathan and George Wells when both pairs were disqualified in the feature battle of a professional wrestling card Thursday night at Memorial Arena.

In other bouts, Kinji Shibuya took two out of three falls against Dennis Stamp. Dean Higuchi outgrappled Sky Hi Morse, Keith Franks topped Johnny Khan and Tami Samoa and Yasu Fuji fought to a draw.

BRIER CHANGE PLANNED

REGINA (CP) — The Canadian Curling Association gave its approval Thursday to a reduction in the number of ends rinks are required to play at the national men's championship.

During its annual meeting, the association decided future Canadian men's tournaments will have 10-end games instead of 12.

Twelve-end games have been played in the championship since it began in 1927. Other Canadian curling championships have 10-end games, as does the world tournament.

Oak Bay Reaches Final

Oak Bay tripped James Bay Athletic Association 72-68 Thursday night at Spectrum Community School to win their best-of-three Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League playoff semi-final series in straight games.

But the latter club isn't down-and-out yet.

James Bay meets London Boxing Club Seniors tonight at 7 p.m. in Shoreline Junior High School for the second game of another best-of-three series to decide a Victoria representative for the B.C. playoff tournament March 19-21 in Port Alberni. Seniors won the first game of the series earlier this season.

Meanwhile, Oak Bay advances to the league playoff final against Seniors. Dates and times of the final series will be announced later.

Tom Hatcher led the Oak Bay attack with 30 points while Mike Taaffe added 14. Harry Hunter was the top marksman for James Bay with 18 points.

OAK BAY (72) — John Lauvaas 8, Tom Hatcher 30, Corky Jossul 4, Mike Taaffe 14, Ken Christenson 4, Don Horwood 2, Dan Wade 4, Del Christenson, Rick Humber 6.

Sparkes Back in Race As Surprises Continue

REGINA (CP) — The Canadian men's curling championship is coming down to the wire, and while Newfoundland and New Brunswick have surprised the experts by leading the field, Bernie Sparkes of Burnaby, B.C., is closing fast.

"This has given us the chance we've been looking for all week," said Sparkes after winning both his games Thursday to run his string of wins to four after a slow start. "We'd just like to get into a playoff."

Sparkes, in his eighth national final and second as a skip, was involved in the longest game of the championship so far. He didn't need his last rock in the 14th end, but he was pushed that far before Wayne Sokolosky succumbed 6-5 when he missed a freeze to a B.C. rock at the button.

After the 10th round, Sparkes climbed into third place in the standings with a 6-3 record.

Jack MacDuff of St. John's, Nfld., who made believers of the skeptics with a 10-7 ninth-round win over Sokolosky in 11 ends, and Dave Sullivan of Fredericton, N.B., were on top of the standings with 6-2 records. Both teams had byes in the 10th round.

Sokolosky, who said he "just got off to a shaky start" Thursday, dropped to a 5-3 record, the same as Clare DeBlonde of Winnipeg.

Howard Brazeau of Fort Smith, N.W.T., and Jim Ursel of Montreal were at 4-4, while 4-5 marks were shared by Alf Romain of Halifax and Rick Lang of Thunder Bay, representing Northern Ontario.

Roger Anholt of Moose Jaw, Sask., was at 3-6 with two teams tied for last with 2-7 records—Joe Gurowka of Mississauga, Ont., and Ken MacDonald of Charlottetown.

In other ninth-round games, B.C. defeated Nova Scotia 10-2, Manitoba defeated Ontario 11-7, New Brunswick beat P.E.I. 6-3 and Saskatchewan defeated Northern Ontario 8-5. Quebec and the Territories had the byes.

Tenth-round play saw Northern Ontario edge Ontario 7-6, the Territories fall 8-5 to Manitoba, Quebec defeat Saskatchewan 6-3 and Nova Scotia down P.E.I. 9-6.

MacDuff, a 25-year-old air traffic controller, who already has surpassed the best-ever Newfoundland record of four wins in the National final, gave some of the credit for his showing to a veteran of many championships.

He was referring to Sam Richardson, who played third for brother Ernie in four national and world championships. He now skips his own rink and during the championships is the host driver for the Newfoundland team.

"Having a man like that on our side is a great inspiration," said MacDuff. "He told us that B.C. was a good come-around rink and that we should try to keep the house wide open. We did that and won a big one."

Richardson said MacDuff still has three big games left against Saskatchewan, the Territories and Ontario, but he believes he may win.

"I talk to them a bit about strategy. I don't want to jinx them by making any predictions. They have three big games left, but remember they have beaten four of the top teams."

Sullivan faces the bigger task in his three remaining games against Manitoba, Quebec and Northern Ontario.

Victoria Clubs Unbeaten In Chase for Hoop Crown

VANCOUVER — All three Victoria representatives confirmed their claim to power Thursday by finishing atop their respective divisions as play in the preliminary round-robin competition concluded at the B.C. high school girls' basketball championship tournament.

The island teams join Burnaby Central, Richmond, Mennonite Educational Institute, Salmon Arm and Cranbrook in today's quarter-final games. Semi-finals are scheduled for tonight.

Thursday's most exciting match was the Reynolds-Richmond encounter with Donna Rogers scoring a field goal with five seconds remaining to lift Reynolds to the win. Tracie McAra led the winners with 11 points while Jamie Alexander paced Richmond with 12.

In the Reynolds-Prince Rupert game, Miss Rogers and Claire Turner scored 10 points each for the Roadrunners.

Vicki Fitzpatrick scored 14 points and Shelley Godfrey added 13 for Victoria High and Cindy Smith was top scorer for Mount Douglas with 20 points.

In other games, Burnaby Central beat Dawson Creek, 35-27; Penticton edged Trail, 47-43; Cranbrook nipped Chilliwack, 38-36; Mennonite Educational Institute of Clearbrook thumped Trail, 65-44; Vernon dropped Prince Rupert, 49-31; Cranbrook beat New Westminster, 37-27; and Burnaby Central downed Abbotsford 33-31.

Hodge's Three Goals Prove Sweet-Tasting

By The Canadian Press

Hodge's three goals, which brought his season total to 20 and his career total to 300, helped the Bruins down Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2 in a National Hockey League game.

"Considering the guff I've taken this year from those guys (the Boston management), it makes me feel good that I reached that 300-goal mark," said Hodge. "With all the stuff I've had to put up with this year, I guess I'm happy."

The win extended the Bruins home winning streak to 13 games and halted a Toronto unbeaten string at six games.

In Thursday's other NHL games, Philadelphia Flyers trimmed Buffalo Sabres 6-1 and Los Angeles Kings edged New York Rangers 4-3.

In scoring three goals in a game for the fifth time in his 11-year NHL career, Hodge became just the 22nd player in league history to reach 300.

"I've been playing rather sporadically, you might say," he said. "I haven't been getting that much ice time.

"To get the 300th this way is much better than getting it with one goal, or something like that."

Hodge, who was a 50-goal scorer two seasons ago, saw little action at the start of the season, but Don Cherry started to give him more steady work in mid-January. He has scored 18 goals since then, even though just last Sunday night Cherry used him for two periods at left wing, a strange position.

Hodge has been playing with Jean Ratelle and Johnny Bucyk. Ratelle had two goals, his 27th and 28th, and a pair of assists, while the 40-year-old Bucyk got his 33rd goal and three assists.

The Kings clinched a playoff spot when Mike Corrigan scored his 17th goal with less than six minutes to play as the Rangers winless streak was extended to nine games.

The win was the fourth in a row for Los Angeles over the Rangers this season.

Gosselin Leads Bomber Charge

WINNIPEG (CP) — Centre Rich Gosselin scored three goals to spearhead a furious third-period rally that drove Flin Flon Bombers to a 6-4 victory over Winnipeg clubs in a Western Canada Hockey league game Wednesday night.

Flin Flon trailed 3-1 after forty minutes and 4-1 early in the third before exploding for five unanswered goals to claim the victory.

Gosselin a dimunitive 19-year-old in his third WCHL season, scored two goals in quick succession early in the third period when the clubs has been assessed a double minor penalty.

Gosselin got what proved to be the winning goal at 10:31 of the period and Mark Davidson provided the margin of insurance late in the game. Allen got the other Bomber goal in the first period.

Teachers Top Tourney

Teachers I captured the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Volleyball League championship with a 14-0 record following the conclusion of a round-robin championship round Thursday.

Two former University of Victoria players — Ken Lundeen and setter Nimbi Sehota — sparked the victory streak.

Following, in order, were Camosun College I (10-4), CFB Esquimalt (8-6), Royal Roads (7-7), YMCA I (6-8), YMCA II (6-8), Camosun College II (3-11) and Teachers II (2-12).

Teachers and CFB Esquimalt are entered in the provincial senior "B" championship tournament starting at 10 a.m. Saturday at CFB Esquimalt.

Legal Issues Extending Baseball Dispute

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Baseball players and owners haggled for more than five hours in gritty, head-to-head talks Thursday without making noticeable headway in the stalled talks over a new players agreement.

"I don't see how we could possibly reach an agreement before the middle of next week and open the training camps," said Johnny Bench, the Cincinnati Reds $200,000-a-year catcher. "The retroactive legal problems are still hanging over our heads and we can see no immediate resolution.

"An owner in the meeting pointed out that baseball is working on a pattern for all time and it is very important. It cannot possibly be done overnight. So we are in for some long negotiations."

Meanwhile, an owners' spokesman said: "We are ready to remain in Florida and continue negotiating until a settlement is reached."

Bench emerged as a spokesman for the players, although he is not one of the 24 player representatives, and until earlier this week had no role in the negotiations. It was his personal impatience over lack of progress in the negotiations that brought about Thursday's so-called summit meeting at a Tampa airport hotel.

Bench, with support of team-mate Pete Rose and a number of other players, had asked for an opportunity to forego the official negotiating team and sit down with the owners. The owners declined the challenge, but agreed to send along their regular bargaining group, the Player Relations Committee, headed by league presidents Lee Macphail of the American and Chub Feeney of the National.

The players, about 50 of them, first met with executive director Marvin Miller of the players' association for 2½ hours, at which time the various problems were explored and clarified. Then, they moved to a larger room and met with the owners' group.

No hard issues were tackled in Thursday's meetings, which dealt primarily with clearing up legal entanglements as much as possible. A negotiating meeting is scheduled Friday.

"The liability question is causing the logjam," Bench said. "It could be broken if the owners agree to accept liability for any suits that might be filed against the players' association for violation of individual rights."

Bench said he felt that if some agreement could be reached on the retroactivity of current contracts, the matter of the length of the reserve clause could be settled quite easily.

"We originally offered the clubs a six-year agreement, meanng a player could ask for free agency after completing a contract in his fourth year and playing out an option in the fifth. The owners have proposed a 6-2-1 formula, which is very close but not acceptable at this time. But I think that we could get some sort of compromise."

Bench said the players' association was concerned that it would be liable for any suits brought against it by players demanding the individual rights accorded them in a recent arbitrator's decision, now upheld twice in the courts.

In this case, the arbitrator ruled that pitchers Andy Messersmith of Los Angeles Dodgers and now retired Dave McNally of Montreal Expos automatically became free after playing a year without a contract.

Traditionally, a player belongs to one club for life unless traded or sold.

"We don't know what would happen if players, such as Mike Marshall, decided that their individual rights had been violated by the union contract," Bench said. "I understand we could be liable for suits that might amount to as much as a half-billion dollars."

Marshall, the controversial Dodgers' pitcher who attended these sessions, said afterward: "I don't want to hurt any players, but I feel I must protect the rights guaranteed me by Franklin D. Roosevelt. Anything that I did would be a class action."

Ken Holtzman, Oakland A's pitcher, also has said he might take advantage of his individual rights to gain free agent status. Bench said there are others in the same category, but he declined to identify them.

Bench said that his own personal lawyer had told him that the association would not be liable if the union negotiated an agreement for all the players, insisting that the union action would supercede individual considerations. He said owners felt that this was true and that the players were posing an issue that did not actually exist.

Water Low in Rivers

OUTDOORS
stewart lang

Steelheading has tapered off in all but a few Vancouver Island rivers because of low water conditions, but fishermen dunking lines in the salt chuck are picking up some nice catches in a number of areas.

Winter chinooks to 17¾ pounds are grabbing hootchies or strip trolled with 70 to 80 feet of line and up to one and one-half pounds of weight off Sooke Bluffs.

The only angler venturing out at Becher Bay on Wednesday — Art Moysychyn — landed four nice chinooks (the heaviest was 32½ pounds) while using strip, 80 feet of line and about two pounds of lead in the vicinity of Aldridge Point.

Earlier in the week, catches to 22 pounds were taken near Beechey Head, Church Rock and Bedford Island.

Morning has been the prime time for hooking chinooks up to 19 pounds on anchovies and strip trolled close to the bottom off the Pedder Bay kelp bed and Christopher Point.

Brotchie Ledge has been a productive spot off the Victoria waterfront for small chinooks. One of the successful methods has been trolling a hootchie almost on the bottom.

Fishermen jigging with herring off Discovery Island are picking up some good catches of both halibut and ling cod to 35 pounds.

Jacks form the main return in the vicinity of Wain Rock off Deep Cove and some good catches of chinooks to 17 pounds have been landed along The Wall and in Tod Inlet by trollers using strip or plugs. Some light-tackle enthusiasts using regular trout-type flies are picking up blues to 2½ pounds right on the surface in Coles Bay.

Bucktails incorporating either red or pink coloration are being used with some success for blues to three pounds in scattered locations around Finlayson Arm where bite periods have been extremely short.

A few chinooks to 18 pounds have been landed by mooching or trolling with Krippled-Ks, squirts or small hootchies in the southern portion of Sansum Narrows.

Nanaimo fishermen are trolling extremely deep (about 200 feet) to land a smattering of chinooks to 10 pounds and some excellent catches of ling cod are coming in from Dodds Narrows, Snake Island and Entrance Island.

Port Alberni anglers are having to dodge commercial herring boats in order to catch six-to-seven pound chinooks in most spots around the mouth of Alberni Inlet.

Although the tempo has slackened somewhat, bucktailers using purple and white, Grey Ghost or blue and white patterns are still landing chinooks to 24 pounds around Willow Point, the Bell Buoy and the Quadra Island lighthouse. Since these fish are feeding on herring to eight inches in length, large plugs are also being used successfully.

Steelheaders are picking up a few fish to 17 pounds in the San Juan River and a few tipping the scales to eight pounds have come in from the Riverbottom area of the Cowichan River.

The Koksilah might also be worth a try.

None of the other Island rivers are in good fishing condition although the odd fish has come out of the Nanaimo system.

Strong start helped Cheryl Manning make first appearance on list of winners in Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Cheryl topped women's fivepin division during 21st week of 13th annual event by rolling 324-284-234—842 series in Friday Classic League at Town and Country Lanes.

Skipper Takes Over As Pilot of T-Men

NANAIMO (CP) — Grant Skipper, 24, of Nanaimo has been hired to coach Nanaimo Timbermen of the Western Lacrosse Association this season. He replaces Gerry Shires.

Skipper said his top priority was getting the club into the playoffs this year after the Timbermen finished last among the league's five teams in 1975.

"This league is going to be a lot better with the folding of the pro league last year (National Lacrosse Association)," said Skipper. "Our team's going to be that much better."

He said he still has a lot to learn and would be relying heavily on the experience of assistant coaches Buddy Dumont and Don Ashbee, named at the same time.

Skipper has not played lacrosse for three years because of a shoulder injury in 1973 that required two operations and proved a persistent problem. He was playing with a Prince George Senior B team at the time.

In 1972, Skipper played with Coquitlam J-Hawks of the Western Canada Junior A Lacrosse League.

Last year he served as a director of the Timbermen and also has been director of a Nanaimo Senior B team.

Racers Help Oilers By Tripping Toros

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Oilers gave away another decision to Calgary Cowboys in the World Hockey Association Thursday night but moved closer to clinching a playoff berth in the Canadian Division.

The Oilers managed only 16 shots at goaltender Don McLeod in Calgary and were beaten 2-0 as Calgary clinched third place. But Indianapolis Racers did Edmonton a favor by defeating Toronto Toros 3-1.

Fourth-place Edmonton leads Toronto by 12 points and the Toros have six games in hand. Edmonton has nine games remaining and could finish with a maximum of 71 points. Toronto has 15 games left and also could finish with a maximum of 71 points.

In the only other game, goaltender Ernie Wakely blocked 30 shots and Bob Dobek, a member of the 1976 United States Olympic team, scored his first professional goal as San Diego Mariners defeated Houston Aeros 4-1.

Calgary's victory was much easier than the 2-0 score would indicate. McLeod, earning his first shutout of the season, had only three tough stops as Calgary cruised to the triumph after second-period goals by Rick Jodzio and Gavin Kirk.

McLeod preserved a scoreless tie late in the first period with a good stop on Rusty Patenaude. Jodzio and Kirk scored less than five minutes apart midway through the second period.

A second-period goal by Renald Leclerc sparked the Indianapolis victory. He attempted a pass from behind the net and the puck glanced off goalie Wayne Wood into the Toro net to break a 1-1 tie.

BEN CRENSHAW

Dad's Lesson Helped Ben

MIAMI (AP) — Ben Crenshaw credits a lesson he was given by his father last winter with his success on the 1976 professional golf tour.

"He noticed my setup was wrong last year, at the end of last year, and he kind of got me straightened out," he said Thursday after grabbing a share of the first-round lead in the $200,000 Doral Open golf tournament.

Crenshaw, who has already won two tournaments this year, shot a 66 Thursday to share top spot with slump-ridden Hubert Green.

Green, who used a new three-wood to maximum advantage played the par-fives four under in recording his best round of the season.

One shot back of them at 67 were former Doral champion Buddy Allin, who usually plays his best in Florida, and Mark Hayes, a non-winner who has been a threat in his last three starts.

BRAWL PROBE PLANNED

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association announced Thursday it will conduct a complete investigation of Wednesday's game in Winnipeg when police were called to restore order after a bench-clearing brawl.

A brief statement issued by WHA vice-president Bud Poile said there was a total of 184 minutes in penalties assessed in the game which Winnipeg Jets won 10-3 over Quebec Nordiques.

Poile said Robert Frampton, league director of officials, will be in Winnipeg today to meet with officials of both clubs and any players directly involved.

Fourth Deadlock In Big Six Duel

At least one more game will be needed to settle the best-of-seven Big Six Hockey League playoff final between London Boxing Club and Victoria Western Homes Buckaroos.

The teams battled to a 5-5 deadlock Thursday night at Pearkes Arena for their fourth tie of the series, which Boxers lead 3-0 because league officials have rules that ties do not count.

An eighth game is scheduled for 8:15 p.m. Monday at Memorial Arena.

Jerry Blanchette scored two goals to spark Boxers, who held period leads of 3-1 and 4-3. Single LBC tallies were fired by Brian Hamilton, Rugs Pritchard and Al McLaren.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Built at Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1891, she started her seagoing career as the pinnace aboard HMS Rainbow, which was to become HMCS Rainbow and Canada's first naval vessel in 1910 when we bought her from the British for 50,000 pounds.

This pinnace was converted to a ketch in 1930, becoming a familiar sight in these waters until the Miles decided to take off for foreign ports.

The 85-year-old Rainbow is certainly proving a well-built boat that has a lot of living in her, especially when she's tended by loving hands.

If you have a monohull keel sailboat, have never raced, don't belong to a yacht club but would like to try your hand at racing, the Royal Victoria Yacht Club gives you your chance this weekend.

The club will hold its spring championships at Cadboro Bay and this is one event you don't have to belong to a club to enjoy. There'll be a Saturday race starting at noon and two the next day, beginning at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Registration forms are available at local yacht clubs and the Oak Bay Marina. You can also register prior to the first race on Saturday. Registration fee, to cover prizes, is $3.

Many of the boats that sailed in the Turkey Head Sailing Association's two races on Sunday are expected to take part.

John Booth's Umpka won the first sailout, being followed by John Watson's Drambuie, Gerry Porter's Sunshine, Sven Donaldson's Tatoosh, Rod Andrews' Encounter, Randy Carter's Sungould, Glen Higgins' Freeway, John Dewey's Shuttlecock, Ross Sinclair's Swallow and Bob Craig's Ailsa-Craig.

Ailsa-Craig placed first the second time around, beating out Encounter, Ed Cushing's L'Alouette, Eric Dowell's Ariel II, Tatooosh, Sunshine, Freeway, John Malleson's Sunday, Dennis Davis' Freya and Gerry Jacobi's Salty Dream.

In spite of this weekend's racing, THSA members are expected to turn out in good numbers for the club's dance, to be held at the White Eagle Hall 9 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets will be available at the door for those who've forgotten to get them from members of the executive.

Out at Sidney, the Canoe Bay Sailing Club has a 12-miler to D'Arcy Shoals and back planned for Sunday. The start gun goes at 9 a.m.

Forty-five boats took part in last Saturday's six-miler but 21 were unable to finish within the time limit because of light airs and strong tides.

The big winner was Willi Fahning's Dominique. She edged out Al Nelson's Lucifer, Greg Oliver's Distant Drummer, Cam Thomson's Cal-Lori, Holger Brix's Caliante, Gordie Inglis' Water Melon, Roger Vale's Temenos, Daryl Foster's Tzonqua, Bill Martin's Georgia Girl and Louis Lindholm's Carolina.

Also at Sidney, the Saanich Peninsula Sailing Association has a 1:30 p.m. start planned for Saturday's dinghy racing.

Members took time out last Sunday to stage a sailathon and raise roughly $300 for a community centre in Tulista Park.

Laser sailors of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will be out racing again Sunday, beginning at 1 p.m. Last week's top sailors were Bob Britton, George Kirkwood and Colin Nichols.

Tony Rose cleaned up in laser competition at RVYC last Saturday, beating out Tim Roots and Jeff McBride for top spot. Tied in fourth position were Rick Townshend and Ian Pickles.

The Victoria Canoe Club has a jaunt around Prospect Lake scheduled for Sunday. Gathering time is 1 p.m.

JABBAR HURLS 'RACIST' CHARGE

BOSTON (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Los Angeles Lakers' all-star centre, again has blasted officiating in the National Basketball Association, this time saying he believes a referee is racist.

Referee Bob Rakel called a sixth foul against Abdul-Jabbar in Boston on Wednesday night and the Celtics then won the game 92-89.

"It's just my opinion, but I think he's a racist," said Abdul-Jabbar. "He may not be, but I know he doesn't like me. That's the situation."

With the score tied, Abdul-Jabbar reached over Dave Cowens' shoulder and Abdul-Jabbar claimed he touched "nothing but the ball."

Rakel called a foul which put Kareem out of the game with 48 seconds left.

"It didn't matter what I did, he was going to call something," said Abdul-Jabbar.

The 7-foot-2 centre shouted "racist" at Rakel after the game and then had to be restrained from going after fans who yelled derogatory remarks.

Cowens commented after the game: "That wasn't much of a foul. It embarrassed me even though it went in our favor. I just don't know what we're dealing with — maybe personalities. I do know Kareem is having a rough time."

A year ago, while playing with Milwaukee, Abdul-Jabbar called official Jerry Loeber incompetent and was fined by the league for his outburst.

"When I blasted Loeber last year, Rakel was the other official," said Abdul-Jabbar. "He and Loeber must be friends. He didn't like what I said about Loeber after the game and what was reported in the press. He bears a grudge from that."

CHURSKY TO JOIN SOUNDERS

SEATTLE (AP) — Three players including Canadian national team goalkeeper Tony Chursky, signed Thursday with Seattle Sounders of the North American Soccer League.

Chursky, 22, told the Canadian Socceer Association that he will pass up the 1976 Olympics to play professional football.

Also signing were Matt O'Sullivan, an all-American defender from Chico State and the Sounders' first-round draft choice, and Ward Forrest, a University of Washington standout and the team's second-round pick.

The Sounders purchased Tom Jenkins, a veteran British midfielder for Swindon Town, Wednesday.

Rugby Leaders Romp

Oak Bay Barbarians and St. Michael's University School maintained their one-two positions atop the East Division of the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League on Thursday afternoon by collecting easy victories.

Barbarians blanked Spectrum 17-0 and St. Michael's romped to a 58-4 decision over Belmont in makeup matches.

Brent Udell, Paul Leslie and Paul Monahan scored the Oak Bay tries while Pat Trelawny kicked a drop goal and a conversion.

Tom Blades sparked the St. Michaels' attack with three tries and four conversions. Bruce Moore also scored three tries, Grant Jones managed two tries and single four-pointers were contributed by Tom Hosie, Dave Cousins, Rick McRae and Bill Hope. Mike Jawl booted another conversion.

Parkland Wins

Parkland, led by a two-goal effort from Leanne Aitken, tripped visting Reynolds 3-1 in a Greater Victoria High School Girls' Soccer League match Thursday.

Vera, Wally Lead City Fivepin Reps

Vera Lysne and Wally Weinberger will head up seven-member squads to represent Victoria in the Pacific Coast fivepin bowling championships May 22-24 at Town and Country Lanes.

Mrs. Lysne led women qualifiers during recent 18-game trials by posting a 4,332 total. Completing the women's team are Moe Wood (4,189), Marg Vickery (4,138), Dot Krimmer (4,129), Marie Fisher (4,051), Barb Hyde (4,051) and Inger Schlutter (3,963).

Weinberger set the pace for male fivepinners with 4,861 and will be joined on the team by Mike Thompson (4,692), Bill Cool (4,565), Bob Waller (4,474), Jake Jacob (4,473), Jim Lebold (4,357) and Brian Peddlesden (4,330).

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is nothing spectacular, fancy, or clever about South's play of a slam contract in today's deal. What is significant is the way in which a good player, having encountered a horrendous division of the adversely held trumps, went about fulfillinf his contract. The deal came in a team-of-four match.

NORTH
♡ A K J 3
◇ A K 7 3

WEST
♠ J 9 8 7 4
♡ 10 7 4
◇ Q 10

EAST
♡ 9 8 6 2
◇ J 9 5 2

SOUTH
♡ Q 5
◇ 8 6 4
♣ A 10 9 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	5 NT	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

East put up the club queen on the opening lead and South captured the trick with his ace. He next ruffed a club with dummy's duece of trumps, after which he returned to the South hand via the ace of trumps. On this lead East discarded a club, declarer learning to his sorrow that West had been dealt the five outstanding trumps. Declarer now ruffed another club, leaving dummy with the singleton queen.

Next came a heart lead to South's queen, and this was followed by another heart lead to the board's ace. On the king of hearts South discarded his losing diamond. Declarer now took a time-out to examine the situation at hand.

He came to the winning conclusion that his contract was unmakable unless he could cash both the ace and king of diamonds. That is, if West had been dealt a singleton diamond, South felt that he was predestined to defeat. So, with perhaps some trepidation, dummy's ace and king of diamonds were played next. Declarer breathed a sigh of relief when West followed suit to both diamond leads.

West's hand was now an open book: five spades, three hearts, three clubs and two diamonds. And West's four remaing cards were the J-9-8-7 of trumps.

After cashing the board's queen of trumps, dummy's jack of hearts was played, South discarding his remaining club. West had no choice but to ruff this trick, after which he was compelled to lead away from his remaining J-9 of trumps into South's K-10, giving declarer the last two tricks. Thus by a bit of tightrope walking, declarer chalked up his small slam, his only loser being a trump trick.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by SYDNEY OMARR

Saturday, March 13

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Creativity, change, children, travel and romance all could be highlighted. Imprint style. Stand tall for beliefs. Refuse to be intimidated by one who seems to have weight of authority as ally. Member of opposite sex pays compliment — and means it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Dialogue at home should be encouraged. Exchange thoughts — remember clash of ideas is far more exciting than clash of firearms. You may find that note written at home has intriguing implications. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on versatility, humor, short journey. Taurus, Libra individuals are in picture. Domestic adjustment is necessary. Relatives and close neighbors express their feelings. Be diplomatic. You can win rather than force your way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If you stand up for rights, you'll add to possessions. Income picture is brighter — cash flow resumes. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently. Your opinions are sought — you are asked how to refine and streamline techniques. Be sure you're properly compensated!

LEO July 23 - Aug. 22): Cycle high — organize priorities, take initiative. Emphasize personality, appearance. You are able to direct events, to dance to your own tune. Emotional involvement indicated and you will benefit. Cancer, Capricorn persons may be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You solve dilemma. You gain access to "special information." Be discreet. If you keep a confidence, you'll be given key to advancement, greater prestige. Visit one who is confined to home, hospital.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on emotional responses, desires, fulfillment of wishes. A friend returns favor. Creativity is highlighted. New start, project is favored. Leo, Aquarius individuals could figure prominently. Member of opposite sex makes you feel more alive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on what to do about achieving goal. Key is to follow through, to build on solid base, to deal with Cancer individual. What seems to be an obstacle is actually a healthy challenge. Refuse to be intimated by one who is mediocre, envious, restless and less than honest.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can "See beyond," are able to perceive trends and project fugure possibilities. Accent on study, travel — and very much on communication. Publish, publicize, advertise and distribute. Element of luck or timing is with you. Broaden horizons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone may be "kidding you on the square." Look behind the smile. Be willing to accept a valid hint. Emphasis on settling accounts. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could be involved. Check facts, figures — be on alert for loophole.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on public, on partnership and marriage. Be ready for change of view, publicity, an arrangement that leads to writing and travel. Gemini, Virgo, Leo persons could be in picture. Let others state their case — listen and formulate your own program.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Adjustment within family circle would be constructive. Diet, work and health figure prominently. Your hours become subject for discussion. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Maintain moderate pace.

IF MARCH 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you will travel more this year — and there will be greater opportunity for self-expression. Very early, you knew meaning of disappointment, survived a "family split" and emerged a sensitive, creative individual. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons play important roles in your life.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"You were out a long time," declared Susan. "I called the office several times and they said you'd be back for sure, but they didn't know when."

Charlie smiled. "That's right, I was out nearly six hours; he replied. "When I got back the hour hand of our clock was right on the minute mark where the minute mark had been when I left, and the minute hand was exactly four minutes past where the hour hand had been."

How long was he out that afternoon.

New Day May Dawn for Public To Probe Ottawa's Accounting

By MARGARET PITON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Treasury Board has finally taken upon itself full responsibility for government financial management and thus for control of government expenditures, in response to recommendations of a special study by the auditor-general.

This study pointed out what is obvious to almost anyone in Ottawa — that parliamentary, and through Parliament public, control of government spending is at best cursory.

Treasury Board now has complete control over the form of the estimates and public accounts, and will hopefully implement some changes to make them more informative to the general public.

The main estimates book is a good example of government obfuscation. In a book which approaches the size of the Montreal or Toronto telephone book, the government sets out the amount of money it intends to spend in the next year for various programs.

The very size of the government makes it difficult to give much detailed information about any particular program, admittedly.

The auditors general's study sets out some rather complicated accounting changes which they say would make the estimates more informative.

In addition to these, there would seem to be some relatively minor changes which would make the estimates more useful from the point of view of public control of spending.

The first and most important of these would be to require that government departments divulge to the press detailed spending information on request.

Until it was announced last year that first-class travel by bureaucrats would be banned as part of cost-cutting measures, most people were unaware that many bureaucrats were travelling first class.

Program expenditure figures labelled "transportation and communications" in the estimates can hide a multitude of first-class plane tickets to questionable destinations.

While there could be some cases, particularly with regard to defence spending, where withholding information could be justified on grounds of national security, these cases would be very few.

Currently there are no requirements that departments give detailed spending information, and many are extremely reluctant to do so for obvious reasons.

Public scrutiny of the details of government spending would clearly be one of the most effective means to exercise downward pressure on this spending.

Another change that could be useful is to specify in the estimates the number of full-time, part-time and contract employees on any given date.

Currently the terms "total man-years authorized" and "planned continuing employees" are used.

These may be meaningful to personnel analysts, but they have little meaning for the average reader of the estimates, or even the average writer about them.

Since the hiring of employees on contract is a well-known dodge for departments under spending and manpower restraint, figures on contract workers could indicate when departments are trying to get away with something.

There are definite advantages to contract employees — the principal one is that they don't receive the high pensions and fringe benefits of civil servants. Still, it seems departments should be required to disclose the use they make of them.

It would also be interesting to know the salary and wage costs of various categories of employees.

Currently the estimates break down employees by category — executive, administrative support, etc., and number, but the salary and wage figures are given as a lump sum.

Instead of answers to simple questions like these, when the main estimates are released the government bombards us with things like press releases trying to show that 70 per cent of federal spending isn't really spending at all — it's transfer payments.

Another booklet called How Your Tax Dollar Is Spent, said federal spending has risen only .29 per cent per year on average in relation to the total economy.

U.K. Cash Aid Seen For Press

LONDON (CP) — State aid to newspapers, long shunned as the enemy of a free press, is to be offered on a limited basis to help Britain's ailing national press gain a sound commercial footing.

Under pressure from the Labor government, a royal commission on the press is bringing out an interim report recommending such aid so that the necessary sums can be provided as quickly as possible. Details of the recommendations have been widely reported here, although the report wont' be made public until next week.

The scheme involves concessionary government loans at least four per cent below current commercial rates of 12 per cent to help needy newspapers cure the age-old problem of over-manning and to convert to new, computer-based technology.

The government's demand for a hasty interim report followed an appeal from the Newspaper Publishers Association (NPA) describing the industry's finances as "disastrous."

In their joint submission to the commission, newspaper unions and the employers suggested they cannot undertake the vital conversion programs without outside financial help.

Reports suggest the government will emphasize that it remains opposed to permanent subsidies.

The loan scheme will apply only for a limited period and for specifid use in modernization — not to subsidize papers in financial difficulties for other reasons, such as falling advertising revenues and soaring newsprint costs.

No Island Ferry Fare Preference

Preferential fares will probably be continued for Sunshine Coast residents using B.C. Ferries, Transport Minister Jack Davis said Thursday.

However, he said, the government has no intention of extending preferred ferry fares to residents on Vancouver Island or the Gulf Islands.

Earlier this month Davis indicated ferry fares would be increased but he declined to say by how much. An announcement is expected to be made early in the coming legislative session which starts March 17.

City Would Exempt 14 Staff

Victoria will apply to the Labor Relations Board to have 14 city employees transferred from the bargaining unit of the Canadian Union of Public Employees to the ranks of City Hall's administrative, union-exempt staff.

The list, approved by city council Thursday, includes four supervisory staff from the city engineer's department, six from the parks department and four senior secretaries.

Parks administrator Cliff Bate at present is the only member of that department not included in the CUPE unit. He was particularly hard-pressed during last year's civic strike-lockout, relying heavily on volunteer help to save thousands of plants from perishing.

In instructing the city solicitor to apply for the exemptions, council also instructed him to oppose the application by CUPE Local 388 to broaden the union's jurisdiction by embracing certain exempt personnel in the bargaining unit.

Comley Wins Acquittal

Gordon Norman Comley was found not guilty in Victoria county court Thursday of a $19,000 armed robbery in Saanich almost a year ago.

Comley, also known as Damon Gregory Horne, was jointly accused with Robert Joseph Gelineau of holding up the liquor store in the Gorge shopping centre April 12, 1975.

The jury's verdict was directed by Judge Leslie Cashman and came in the ninth day of the trial.

Gelineau's trial, meanwhile, was to continue today. The Crown has closed its case.

Cashman told the jury the case against Comley was based entirely on circumstantial evidence. He said it is a rule of law in circumstantial evidence that it must not only be consistent with guilt but inconsistent with any other rational explanation.

He said he had concluded that the nature of the evidence against Comley would be inviting a verdict based on suspicion and conjecture and therefore he was directing the jury to find a verdict of not guilty.

Comley's only words as he was acquitted were "thank you very much your honor."

Comley defended himself at his trial. Gelineau is represented by Vancouver lawyer Gordon Hayes. The Crown's case was presented by D. H. Gray.

Baby Bike Seat Hazards

By LYNNE GORDON

Victoria Times
THIRD SECTION
family

As spring approaches, more and more parents are either taking their children with them on pleasure excursions or looking for ways to keep them occupied while they do their chores.

Some accessories have value, others should be looked at with a critical eye, for both emotional and physical safety.

ADD-ON BICYCLE SEATS

No doubt the high cost of gasoline has played a role in the increase of bicycles and add-on bicycle seats for children. The attraction is obvious: A parent can take a child up to 40 pounds along on a shopping or pleasure excursion.

The federal consumer affairs department and the Canadian Medical Association are studying the safety of these seats and have discovered serious danger. While a cyclist who loses control of a bicycle may be able to clear away when it falls, she will not have time to release the safety strap that holds the child in the seat that's bolted on to the bicycle.

The Consumer Union in the United States has tested add-on bicycle seats and found that while handling difficulties depend on the expertise of the cyclist, an overwhelming number of seats tested had inadequate foot protection. If a child's foot gets caught in a turning wheel, injuries can be serious. To prevent this, look for a seat that has sufficient foot protection for your child.

Thin plywood or plastic can be used to make homemade foot guards.

Babies who cannot sit up by themselves should not be transported on bicycles.

Some parents prefer the front installations because they can keep an eye on the child — and it's easier to walk a bicycle with a front attachment.

Rear seats, however make manoeuvring easier and they can be used for children up to 40 pounds, while the front attachments are limited to 30 pounds.

An interesting footnote: The Highway Traffic Act makes it illegal for two people to ride on a bicycle designed for one. In some jurisdictions, police feel that this makes add-on child seats technically illegal.

PACIFIERS

Parents who worry about using pacifiers for their babies, can relax. Most pediatricians don't object to them and say that they're better than letting the baby suck their thumb or constantly feeding to satisfy their need to suck.

Thumb-sucking can create later dental problems (dislocate the jaw) and over-feeding may result in overweight as an adult. The number of fat cells a person will carry through life are determined during the first year. Once the fat cells are there, they can't be reduced in number, only in size, and the person may find it hard to stay slim.

One pediatrician is concerned about the air a child sucks in with a pacifier, which causes discomfort for the baby. She feels that a child's need for sucking can be satisifed during feeding time if the hole in the nipple is small and the liquid comes out slowly.

PLAYPENS

Being realistic, a mother can't follow a baby around all day and may need a confined spot to put the child for short periods.

But playpens should be used sensibly, since restriction in movement limits a child's experience with his environment — the tasting and touching that's part of crawling. Some children have an intuitive dislike of confinement and may react with tempertantrums.

The federal government has been working with industry in drawing up regulations for mesh playpens. The mesh sides are safer than the old-fashioned type with bars where arms and legs can be caught or loose nuts and bolts can be swallowed by a child.

But even the mesh types are under investigation, since it's possible for buttons (although few children's clothes today have buttons) to get caught in the holes of the mesh and can leave children trapped in strange or dangerous positions.

LITTLE INTEREST IN QUINT DOLLS

LONDON (CP) — Dolls representing the Dionne quintuplets, offered as a star attraction at an auction here almost 42 years after their birth in Ontario caused a world-wide sensation, did not find a buyer.

Spokesman for Phillips, the auctioneers, said today the dolls did not reach the minimum reserve price of 100 pounds ($200) at a weekend sale. The highest bid was 60 pounds ($120) and the dolls again will be offered at a sale June 4.

The dolls, owned by an unidentified person in Ontario who sent them to a relative for sale here, are of German make, about three inches long and nestled in a basket under a blanket.

INDOOR GARDENS

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel:

I recently got a Norfolk Star Pine and am having all sorts of trouble. Basically, the lower branches are falling off and I can't seem to stop it, even with talking and singing. A friend of mine told me the problem is that the Start Pine is really an outdoor plant. Is that true?—M.F.

DEAR M.F.:

Yes and no. Forgive the wishy-washy answer, but the Auricaria, or Star Pine, does very well indoors in some climates and not at all well in others. A cool, humid, well-lighted situation should keep it going strong indoors, but don't except too much if you live in a hot, dry, western-type clinate.

Outdoors, the tree, planted in the ground, can grow 40 or 50 feet tall, so if you eventually do have to plant yours outside, better get a megaphone for the talking and singing.

Nurses Told To Say No

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Many nurses in Canada are handling medical duties they are not competent or qualified to perform, Richard Piner, chairman of secretarial sciences at Fanshawe College, said.

He told a nursing seminar sponsored by the college that the federal government's economic restraints, a lack of hospital equipment and a shortage of physicians are forcing nurses to perform duties they normally do not accept.

Piner said nurses should avoid accepting such duties, adding that there is an increasing number of malpractice suits being filed against medical staff each year.

"Nursing associations should be alert to the danger of delegation of work dictated solely by economic necessity," he said.

Death Accidental

RICHMOND (CP) — A coroner's jury has ruled the death in January of David Wong, 31, a CP Air mechanic from Vancouver, was accidental but it recommended several steps to improve brakes on electric trucks used at airports. Wong had been pinned between his electric truck and a 737 jet. Witnesses testified the brakes had failed.

Quintuplets Non-Identical

TOKYO (UPI) — Quintuplets born Jan. 31 to the wife of a Japanese journalist are non-identical, a rare event in medical history, doctors said.

Dr. Eichi Sato, professor of medicine at Kagoshima University, said five separate ova in the mother were fertilized at the time the children were conceived.

The children were born in Kagoshima City on Japan's southern island of Kyushu to Mrs. Noriko Yamashita, 27. She had been childless for five years after her marriage to Yorimitsu Yamashita, 32, and had been taking a fertility drug.

How to Trade Away The High Cost of Living

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

Monday! There's nothing quite so hard to hang on to these days!

Even though you may have tired new ways to save money (by growing your own food and producing your own power, for instance), ways to spend money more wisely (by tearing up those credit cards and putting yourself on a pay-as-you-go basis), and ways to earn additional money (by starting your own little home business) . . . it's a good bet that the old elusive "green" still slips out of your pocket almost as easily as ever.

So why not try to avoid money entirely or partially — and still get all the things you and your family need and want — by putting into practice the all-time grand-daddy budget buster of them all: barter!

Barter?

Don't laugh. I know that, if you're like most modern folks, the idea probably seems as outdated as pickle barrels and the Saturday night bath. In fact, I'd be the first to admit that the old "I'll swap you my milk cow fer that purty little mule" kind of trading our forebears carried on doesn't exactly fit into today's urbanized society.

On the other hand, neither does spending your hard-earned but inflated dollars when other forms of "capital" could do just as well. And there's nothing better than barter, 1970s style, for stopping that unnecessary drain on your pocketbook.

Janet Kingdom of Lake Orion, Mich., recently sent me a letter that illustrates rather nicely the usefulness of barter in here-and-now America. Janet, it seems, had visited her dentist and discovered she needed work that would cost a whopping $750. "Needless to say," writes Janet, "that sum was nothing less than astronomical for my husband and me. But when we approached the dentist and asked if he'd be willing to trade his services for my man's time as a bookkeeper, he agreed, we shook hands . . . and that's all there was to it!"

The real beauty of "horse tradin'," you see, is (and always has been) its complete and utter economic simplicity. No moeny — and no profit-seeking middleman — is ever involved when two neighbors or acquaintances get together and mutually agreed to exchange goods or services. The transaction takes place on a personal, item-for-item basis. And — because the "prices" involved are negotiated beforehand, with no retail mark-ups or fluctuating currency standing in the way — each barter partner usually ends up feeling as though he got at least as good a deal as his counterpart.

And if you'd like further proof that barter is better than "money madness," consider the wondrous fact that person-to-person exchanges eliminate mankind's most irritating institution: taxes. As Charles Morrow Wilson so aptly states in his fine book, "Let's Try Barter," "Barter stops sales taxes the way hanging stops the horse thief . . . and it stops capital gains taxes the way a Union Army cannonball stopped my Great-Uncle Luke at the battle of Pea Ridge, Arkansas."

Yes sir. There's simply no better way to beat outlandish tariffs and devaluated dollars than with barter. And if there was ever a better time to put the practice in action than right now, I'll eat my historical hat.

Chances are, you'll find more folks willing to trade today than ever before. (We're all in the same inflationary boat, you know.) And it's easy for everyone to get into the act!

Like any wise businessman just starting out, you should first take an "inventory" of your assets . . . only in your case, all you probably have to do is look around your home. I dare say there's no household without its share of unnecessary — but perfectly tradable—items.

How about that old black-and-white TV that needs (but will probably never get) "minor repairs"? Or all the unwanted gifts you-re received that have been stacking up in your dresser's bottom drawer? Or the bike your daughter used to ride (before she got her driver's license)? Once you open your eyes, the possibilities will pop up from every corner!

Most folks who keep a backyard vegetable patch swap surplus produce with their gardening neighbors on a regular basis, but — if you have a green thumb — why not take that idea one step further?

If there's a "mom and pop" corner grocery in your area, you may be surprised to discover how willing the owner is to trade milk or eggs (or whatever) for a supply of your fresh, garden-grown tomatoes (which he knows will sell better than the usual hothouse variety. And those rural roadside stands that are so popular today might be open to barter, too . . . just make an offer!

Don't forget there's irreplaceable wealth in skills and talents, too. If you're a craftsperson, carpenter or mechanic . . . or if you can offer your time as a baby-sitter, tutor or all-around handyman (or any other useful "occupation") . . . you'r very likely to find plenty of friends and neighbors eager to exchange your services for something you can use. I know a fellow in our area who hasn't paid a penny for auto tuneups in years. Instead, he has an acquaintance come over to do the job occasionally . . . and in return provides the man's children with a ride to school every day!

Professional people — bookkeepers (like Ms. Kingdom's husband), doctors, lawyers and others— shouldn't overlook their potential trading "value," either. Ann-Zavala of Northridge, Calif., is an advertising copywriter. One of her fondest dreams, however, had always been to become acquainted with the skills involved in stained-glass art. A local shop offered lessons in the craft, but the fee was far too expensive for her budget. So Ann worked up a series of ads for the store and swapped 'em for the price of the course and all necessary tools!

"Now," says Ann, "I have even more barter power than before: I can offer people my copywriting know-how—or my newly acquired glassmaking expertise—in exchange for things I need!"

Yep. When you get right down to it, the possibilities for modern-day barter are virtually limitless. And once you've started trading in earnest, you'll find (as Ann Zavala did) that one thing just naturally leads to another.

I can't think of a better example of barter's "chain reaction" effect than the story Dorothy Lockard of Greenville, Pa., recently sent my way. "Take a tour with me around my home," says Dorothy, "and I'll show you what barter can do: That beef in our freezer was swapped for some maple syrup that had been traded for an antique that was once exchanged for some baby-sitting. The jars full of jelly in our cupboard were a reward for running some errands. In fact, the cabinets themselves came as payment for a stock watering tank that we didn't need and had come by one time when . . . well, I'm not sure just what we traded for that tank. But I'm certain we didn't buy it!"

Now I don't know about you, but Mrs. Lockard is a regular inspiration to me. And her letter is typical of dozens I get every week from "tradin' fools" who've found the best way of all to beat high prices and ever-present taxes . . . and who have made a lot of new friends in the process!

So c'mon! Open your eyes to the many opportunities for modern-day barter, and when you find one, speak up, and make an offer!

Wrong Way to Handle Young Bed-Wetter

DEAR ABBY: This is my first "Dear Abby" letter, and I'm counting on your help.

Our son, who is almost 3, is about to drive me crazy with wetting his pants. I realize that little boys do have their accidents, but surely not all the time!

Abby, we've tried whipping him, shaming him and even keeping him from going hunting with his Daddy (which he loves to do) until he quits wetting his pants and starts acting like a big boy.

Nothing we do seems to help one bit. I'll be having our second child soon, and I would give anything for our first child to be potty-trained once and for all. Please suggest something. — EXHAUSTED MOTHER.

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Whipping and shaming your child is exactly what you should NOT do! Your pediatrician is the one who is qualified to advise you. Ask him today. Your son may have a physical problem that needs treating.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to the same man for 30 years. When he picked a wife, he said he wanted a church-going girl who didn't smoke or dance — one who was quiet, modest and not sexy.

I was that girl. I gave him two children who are both married. Now my husband has decided that he no longer loves me, and he's taken up with a younger woman who is sexy and can "turn him on." He doesn't care if she smokes or drinks, either.

Behind my back, he had divorce papers served on me. He never let me work because he wanted me to stay home and be a full-time wife and mother, so I have no skills. I don't want a divorce and am contesting it. I left my home and am living with my daughter. I attend church regularly.

The lawyers say we could live separately, and come and go as we please, but that's against my way of life. I don't believe in divorce, and I still love him, regardless. What is your advice? We are both 50. — MARRIED FOR LIFE.

DEAR MARRIED: You may prevent your husband from getting a divorce, but you can't force him to live with you or to love you. Perhaps if you hang on long enough, he'll change his mind and return to you, but you have no guarantees.

In the meantime, find something constructive to do. Go back to school or get involved in civic and volunteer work. Good things are more apt to happen to people who forget themselves and think of others. Try it. It works!

DEAR ABBY: I am presently dating a divorced woman who has a small child. When we go out, am I expected to pay the babysitter? — Wondering

DEAR WONDERING: If she "expects" you to pay the sitter, she's presumptuous. But if you can afford it, it would be generous to offer.

Teen Drinking 'Near Crisis'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Alcohol abuse among teenagers is reaching near crisis proportions and abuse of amphetamines and barbiturates by women over 25 is a growing problem, the U.S. permanent advisory council on drug abuse control has warned.

"Alcohol abuse," the council said a report, ". . . is becoming a problem of near crisis proportion for a growing number of teen-agers."

"Our statistics also indicate that there appears to be a growing problem among women over 25 years of age abusing amphetamines and barbiturates," the council said.

"The problem with alcohol abuse with those under 18 years of age is very acute, and is seriously complicated by multiple drug abuse and the use of automobiles while high," it said.

It recommended raising the drinking age to 21 for retail sales but permitting persons under 18 to drink alcohol "in a licenced facility if they are accompanied by a parent or other adult."

"Prohibition no more works for young persons than it did for adult," it continued. "The key is to allow for consumption to occur in controlled situations where the ingestion of large quantities of alcohol is not the required social norm."

Among other recommendations here:

—A $1 million increase in state treatment and prevention funds for drug abuse.

—Beefed-up self help programs in local communities and harder-hitting drug education programs in the elementary and junior high schools.

—Probition by the federal communications commission of over-the-counter drug advertising on television before 9 p.m.

—A high health tax on all alcohol directly slated for alcoholism treatment and prevention programs.

'SPACED-OUT GRANDMA SYNDROME'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Drug abuse may be more serious among the elderly than among the young, causing what one psychiatrist called the "spaced-out grandma syndrome."

Dr. Sidney Cohen, clinical professor of psychiatry at UCLA medical centre, says drug abuse in the elderly is becoming more common. Some older persons, he said, use drugs in an attempt to escape from loneliness and boredom.

These problems, he said, have received less attention than drug abuse by younger persons.

Elderly patients are often overtreated for symptoms common to old age, such as insomnia, high blood pressure, arthritis and mood changes, according to Dr. Wendell R. Lipscomb, a Berkeley, Calif., psychiatrist.

Doctors often prescribe multiple drugs to treat the different symptoms, Lipscomb said, causing a strange mixture of drugs in the patient's system. Many older patients develop "spaced-out grandma" symptoms, he said.

Also, he said, elderly persons often respond to drugs differently than do younger people because of changes caused in the body by the aging process.

Some problems include lack of certain enzymes to metabolize drugs and increased body fat that dilutes the effect of some drugs and causes slow release of others.

Older people also may forget to take certain medicines, forget proper dosage or when the medicine was last taken or take medicine only when they think they need it.

Religious Cults 'Soon To Disappear'

ATLANTA (UPI) — A University of Toronto psychiatrist says the assortment of religious cults which recently have drawn youths from homes and colleges across the country will disappear over the next few years.

But Dr. Saul V. Levine, an associate professor of psychiatry at the Canadian school, says the cults will be replaced by other religions or new experiences and phenomena.

Levine outlined his findings in a paper entitled "Youth and Contempory Religious Movements: Psychosocial Findings" delivered at the 53rd annual session of the Orthopsychiatric Association of America.

He said interviews with 106 members of the nine fringe religious groups showed that the phenomenon is temporary, "one that will not cause long term severe consequences to most individuals."

Levine said the interviews took place over a six-month period and most were conducted in Toronto, although a few were done in Boston and Montreal. The groups included Hare Krishna, Divine Light, Process, Foundation, 3HO, Jesus People, Unification Church Children of God and Scientology.

"It is our feeling that a significant number of the members could have been described as neurotically anxious or depressed prior to their 'conversion' or less frequently, as borderline or personality disorders," he said.

The principal reason given for joining was a feeling of loneliness or rejection, Levine said, and most stated they remained with the religious groups because of a sense of security.

Levine said a major aspect of the religious cults "is a belief system, enabling a member to turn over all his or her dilemmas to both a high being and a new system of 'logic.' Everything that was confusing becomes comprehensible or at least no longer threatening."

The cults also have rigid rules and regulations, he said. "It is paradoxical that in the swinging seventies these religions espouse a rigid puritanism, and attract thousands of young members to moral codes with strict prohibition of drugs and restriction of sexual activity," Levine said.

HEART PUT INSIDE TOT

A second successful operation, which expanded Christopher's chest to make room for his heart and lungs, has freed him from a mechanical lung. He has been breathing on his own for several days the hospital's chief surgeon said.

NO MORE BATHS FOR MINISTER

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Energy Minister, Dennis Timbrell, says he has given up taking baths in order to conserve electrical energy.

"I know it sounds funny," Timbrell said in an interview, adding that he has changed to taking showers because bathing uses too much hot water.

Trimbrell said he was following the advice of Robert Taylor, Ontario Hydro chairman, who said in a news conference that most households use too much energy for heating water.

Taylor said that if a bath is preferred to a shower, then two or three members of a family could take short dips in the same water.

Timbrell was asked whether that suggestion was not going too far.

"I don't know whether people can go too far," he said. "As a kid there were two or three of us in a tub. It's up to the individual."

Dr. W. Harding LeRiche of the University of Toronto, an expert on hygiene, said he could not see any harm if two or three persons in a family used the same bath water.

"If all are well and healthy, it's fine," he said. "A family shares each others bacteria so they get accustomed to it."

Dr. LeRiche said a bath takes between 40 and 50 gallons of water, while a shower only used three or four gallons.

Welch Medical Report

By DR. W. J. WELCH

Thirty odd years ago, when the miracles wrought by penicillin were new and untarnished, when there was less evidence of its adverse side reactions and before we were aware that some micro-organisms susceptible to its effects would develop resistance, a distinguished professor of medicine made a sweeping half-serious, half-jocular proposal.

He had spent a lifetime in a great medical school studying the treatment of syphilis and gonorrhea, and with the advent of the curative properties of penicillin, it suddenly seemed feasible to him, as to others, that both diseases could be treated out of existence.

His proposal was, quite simply to bare the backside of every man and woman in the United States on a day to be specified as P-Day (P for penicillin).

On that designated day, over every quivering buttocks in the land, including his own, since he did not intend to play favorites, there would poise a hypodermic needle attached to a syringe containing an appropriate number of millions of units of the magic bullet, penicillin.

He was understandably vague as to exactly how those millions of needlings would be managed, but he envisioned that in one massive transaction as those millions of needles were plunged home, our land would be rid forever of the gonococcus of gonorrhea and the spirochete of syphilis.

The promise of the miracles of penicillin loomed so large in those long-gone days that his proposal seemed to some to be more than half-serious.

But were he alive today, he would surely be sobered to learn that, although we possess sure cures for both diseases and the ravages of full-blown syphilis are rarely seen, yet today veneral disease in this country is so rampant and epidemic as to make his proposal seem not only deadly serious but practical, necessary and anything but jocular.

Moreover, if we were indeed to make that same proposal today, he would discover that to fulfill the mission of such a national transaction, his call would have to go out not just to every man and woman in the country, but, unfortunately, even to many children.

The lamentable fact of our times is that we tolerate sexual promiscuity at all but the tenderest ages and such varieties of what we are pleased to call "life styles" that it is doubtful whether any epoch has known a more permissive public attitude or a more extensively and variously diseased population.

When veneral disease was primarily an occupationl hazard of professional promiscuity, and the several varieties of sexual deviation were less happily tolerated as acceptable options of the socially adventurous, the national population of gonococci and spirochetes were more or less strictly confined in relatively categorizable social enclaves.

There were, of course, sporadic seedings outside these recognized pools of infection but with the widespread acceptance at all social levels of barnyard-mating principles, with the avid encouragement, or at least toleration, of 'teen and preteen participation in sexual activity as recreation and the doggedly permissive release of the once closet-bound, the seedings of the gonococcus and the spirochete are no longer sporadic. Veneral disease has now become epidemic, with no social or economic group able to claim immunity.

Ignorance, irresponsibility and a specious insistence that "swinging" is a buoyant and happy way of life contrive to perpetuate the joyless and dreary progress toward what one cynical observer, disregarding for the moment the ravages of gonorrhea, has called "American syphilization."

New Date for Alpine Garden Show

A new date and location have been announced for the annual show of Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society.

For your later reference it would be a good idea to keep these facts recently received over the signature of the society's Show Manager Mr. W. A. Forbes

The Society's Annual Show date has been changed to April 9 and April 10, and the location changed to St. Mary's Church Hall, 1701 Elgin Road, Victoria.

The new location will afford much more space for exhibits than we have been accustomed to see in previous years at the Christ Church Memorial Hall. It is hoped that new garden owners who have been acquiring collections of rock and alpine plants will feel the urge to exhibit some of their treasures at the April show.

Just four weeks away, there is time to get a show schedule from Mr. Forbes at 3431 Bonair Place, with information on entering exhibits.

An amazing number of plants that we commonly grow in ordinary garden beds and borders are true alpines; the incomparable blue Gentiana acaulis is one, the aubrietas in their better forms and named colors are acceptable too. It is the high alpines, native to deep snows for prolonged periods which are the challenges here on the Pacific Coast at this latitude.

Naturally dwarf-growing conifers are seen at these shows, a few inches high at considerable age, for some grow as little as half or a quarter of an inch during a year.

Contrasts are the exquisite dwarf forms of narcissus and tulip, known as species, which grow well here though most are native to hilly shores of the Mediterranean.

Although this year's show is two weeks earlier than usual, it is likely that many of these show regulars will be ready. The winter weather apart from last week's low overnight temperatures has brought along the early spring plants in good shape.

Dwarf rhododendrons from four inches to 12 inches in height are a never failing attraction. Now that smaller gardens are becoming a necessity in crowded areas and tub gardens are the jay of balcony gardeners, the dwarf rhodos have a "rosy" future.

Patio gardens, sundecks and roof gardens depend on container grown plants. You can't live forever on the five month splash of petunias and geraniums.

Dwarf rhodos, dwarf brooms, andromedya, jasminum, and potentilla all have something to offer the year round besides their flowering period. Dwarf willow is an astonishment to most visitors to the show although some of these are found in high alpine meadows of sub Arctic regions north of British Columbia.

For perfection of design, few plants can beat the Saxifrage family. Likirig rocky crevices into which they thrust their roots, these variable plants rarely thrive in a flat moist garden, though occasionally producing a breathtaking mass of small flowers before succumbing to a mild wet winter.

Where ledges of natural rock are part of the home property, and outcropping rock forms tiny meadows of shallow soil, the gardener can discover how these apparent drawbacks may be transposed into blessings. The Rock and Alpine Garden Society will open a new way of gardening, one most suited to Vancouver Island which is after all largely a place of rocks with fir trees holding them in place.

IN MEMORIAM

FLETCHER — In loving memory of Harry Fletcher who passed away March 12, 1969.
Like falling leaves the years have passed by.
But love and memories never die.
Precious forever our memories of you.
Today, tomorrow and all life through.
—Always loved and sadly missed by his wife, daughter and sons.

GARDNER — In loving memory of Dennis Hill Gardner who lost his life on March 12, 1975 while working for Dundurn Development at Cook and Fort.
—Sadly missed by mother and dad and family.

HARVEY—In Loving Memory of June Harvey, March 12th, 1975.
The angels escorted our mother away.
A Heavenly mansion was her destiny
Leaving behind her unselfish warm love
For us all was to be.
Every day of our life we give thanks.
—Husband Ralph and Family.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Thomas, who passed away March 12, 1968.
Not dead to us who loved him,
Not lost, but gone before:
He lives with us in memory and will forever more.
—The Family

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

Two Burst Into Jail, Free 11

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP) — "I heard someone shout 'Freeze' and then they opened the cells and we headed for the river," said Paul Nesinson.

"We had to sleep with our clothes on because there was no privacy," said Karl Kristine Jorgenson. "So we were ready. We just ran." Miss Jorgenson had been held five weeks on marijuana charges.

They were among 11 U.S. citizens freed from a Mexican jail Thursday by two hooded men who burst into the jail with guns and overpowered the guards. Five Mexican prisoners took advantage of the situation. They said they were Americans and escaped with the others.

The breakout was at the jail in Piedras Negras, directly across the Rio Grande River from Eagle Pass, a West Texas town about 140 miles west of San Antonio.

Two unidentified men burst into the prison about 3 a.m. The men tied up the five guards on duty and then broke the locks on the cells where most of the U.S. men and women were held on drug charges.

Nesinson, from Minneapolis, four other men and one woman, made it across the river Thursday morning and were later arrested by U.S. authorities. They spent the night in the Maverick County jail while officials determined whether any charges were pending against them in the United States.

Sheriff Bean Salinas said he would release the six today. All are U.S. citizens and cannot be sent back to Mexico in this type of case, the state department said.

Others with Nesinson were Pascual Narvaer Uriegas, 20, Ozona, Tex.; Jeffrey Andrew Garafola, 24, of San Francisco; Dale Chenoweth, Moss, Tex.' Miss Jorgensen, 23, Denver; and Jim Rodgers, 26, Denver.

The whereabouts of the other escapers was unknown. Maverick County Deputy Alfredo Menchaca said police were "searching along the river" where they found an M-1 rifle and a sawed-off double-barrel shotgun apparently used by the two men who freed the prisoners.

Had Right to Break Law—Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring he really did not have to explain his actions, Richard Nixon has spelled out his view that a president has a "sovereign" right to break laws in the name of national security.

The former president Thursday told his lawyers to release 34 pages of sworn answers to 77 written questions from the U.S. senate intelligence committee on a variety of intelligence related issues.

The committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church (Dem.—Idaho) had forwarded the questions to Nixon in preparation for its final report on abuses of the intelligence agencies.

Church denounced Nixon's "sovereign" concept as "pernicious and dangerous."

In a preface to his responses, Nixon said neither a president nor a former president could be compelled to testify concerning the conduct of his office, but that he would answer voluntarily.

Asked whether he believes that "actions, otherwise illegal" could be taken under presidential authorization to protect the national security, Nixon said:

"It is quote obvious that there are certain inherently governmental actions which if undertaken by the sovereign in protection of the interest of the nation's security are lawful but which if undertaken by private persons are not."

It would be "naive to categorize activities a president might authorize as 'legal' or 'illegal' without reference to the circumstances, he said, and added:

"In short, there have been — and will be in the future — circumstances in which presidents may lawfully authorize actions in the interests of the security of this country, which if undertaken by other persons, or even by the president under different circumstances, would be illegal."

It was the second release of Nixon testimony in as many days. A civil suit deposition, in which Nixon discussed wiretaps on 13 government officials and four reporters in 1969 to find who leaked word of secret U.S. bombing raids on Cambodia, was published Wednesday.

Nixon said in Thursday's answer that he as president had sanctioned:

—A covert CIA operation in Chile in 1970 to prevent the election of Marxist Salvador Allende as president, although he claimed no part in the intervention which resulted in the 1973 coup in which Allende was killed.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Air France and British Airways, challenging the authority of New York and New Jersey, say they intend to begin federally approved Concorde supersonic flights to Kennedy Airport next month.

But the port authority of New York-New Jersey, which operates the airport, said Thursday it will use "every legal means" to bar the Concorde until completion of a six-month brial at three other airports.

The airlines, citing authorization from transportation secretary William Coleman Jr., sent a telegram to port authority chairman William Ronan saying they intend to schedule flights into and out of Kennedy "beginning on or about April 10, 1976, and to initiate training flights next week."

The airlines told Ronan that "in our opinion," Coleman's order "constitutes a federal authorization to operate the Concorde into and out of John F. Kennedy International Airport in accordance with its terms and conditions."

"Our counsel advises that the port authority does not have the legal right to refuse to allow us to operate at Kennedy Airport in the light of the permission which has been granted by the federal government," the airlines said.

Coleman ruled Feb. 4 that the Concorde should be given a 16-month test of two round trips a day into Kennedy and one round trip at Dulles near Washington.

The port authority's board of commissioners Thursday unanimously passed a resolution barring the plane until "at least six months of operating experience" at Washington's Dulles, London's Heathrow and Paris' DeGaulle airports was evaluated.

"We would hope they will not want to test the decision of the board of commissioners," the port authority spokesman said. "But if they do, we will take every legal means to prohibit the landing of any SST aircraft, including the Concorde, at Kennedy Airport."

HEARST

PATTY HAS FLU, TRIAL DELAYED

Times News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — Despite delays caused by Patricia Hearst's attack of influenza, the judge at her bank robbery trial hopes to wind things up next week.

U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter gave the jury the day off today so the newspaper heiress could recuperate at her suburban jail cell from an ailment diagnosed as "a strain of the flu."

But he told the panel of seven women and five men that they could still expect to receive the case sometime next Thursday or Friday.

In an effort to meet that timetable, Carter ordered attorneys into his chambers today for discussions on the legal guidelines he will give the jury before its starts deliberations.

He recessed the trial until Monday after Miss Hearst arrived at the federal courthouse Thursday running a temperature, suffering from chills and having difficulty with breathing.

Car Part Charges 'Absurd'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A General Motors Corp. executive said today it is an "absurdity" to say that GM is attempting to recover some of its losses due to lagging car sales through disproportionately higher costs for car parts.

In testimony before a U.S. senate consumer subcommittee, Michael Neehan, in charge of GM's service parts operation, said the public was being misinformed and misled about price increases.

On Monday, Edward Heiden of the U.S. office of consumer affairs, told the same panel that automakers and dealers may be jacking up their prices to cover car sale losses, and an investigation should be launched.

Sales of parts to replace those damaged in accidents now run between $1 and $3 billion each year and insurance companies say they are a big reason for higher auto insurance rates.

"Some have foolishly suggested that General Motors has been attempting to recover through crash parts price increases, the costs we are unable to recover through increased car prices," Meehan said.

SHARKS MOVE IN, BATHERS ARE OUT

JUNO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Authorities say schools of sharks that forced bathers out of the water at beaches along Palm Beach County Thursday are "probably still there".

Bathers were ordered out of the water at Jupiter Beach and Carlin Beach Thursday following several sightings of the deadly fish close to shore. At Jupiter Beach, a shark was seen swimming just 10 feet off the beach.

No attacks were reported Thursday, but a sheriff's spokesman said the department's helicopter would probably patrol the beaches again today.

A group of "700 to 1,000 decently large" sharks were sighted Wednesday by Jack Miller, a World Aviation Co. mechanic, while making a test flight along Palm Beach inlet.

"We have had large shark concentrations here for the last four or five years," one official said. "They move in close to shore about this time of year. I don't know why, though."

All or Nothing, Jackson Shut Out

WASHINGTON (WP) — Sen. Henry Jackson, after demanding all-or-nothing support from Ohio's liberal labor coalition, has been rejected by the group in favor of Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall in the state's May 3 presidential primary.

The coalition has decided to withhold all support from Jackson after its offer to back him in nine of Ohio's 23 congressional districts was turned down and Jackson countered with the all-or-nothing demand.

The development could have far-reaching implications in that it may signal a clean break between Jackson and the so-called liberal reform unions in about 16 industrial states in which a labor coalition has been formed to work for presidential candidates.

In Ohio congressional district slating scheduled Friday night, the coalition now plans to back Carter in 10 districts, Udall in nine and local favorite sons in the remaining four.

The group met Wednesday and offered Jackson support in nine districts, Carter in seven and Udall in three. Spokesmen for Carter and Udall accepted, but Jackson's representative, Jerry Grant of Colorado, after conferring with Robert Keefe, the Jackson campaign director here, insisted on statewide support or none at all. The coalition then re-apportioned its support, cutting Jackson out entirely.

FORD TO HELP IN AIR PROBE

TOKYO (AP) — President Ford has given a pledge to Premier Takeo Miki to cooperate in the Japanese government's investigation of alleged payoffs by Lockheed Aircraft Corp., providing the relevant materials are kept from the public until the investigation is completed.

The United States president said this in a letter to Miki, the gist of which was released by the foreign ministry today. The letter was dated March 11.

The letter apparently made no mention of names of officials alleged to have been involved in the payoffs, one piece of information Miki specifically requested.

While the White House was announcing Ford's response to two-week old inquiries from Japan, the Boeing Co. said Thursday it also made payments to foreign government officials but gave no details on amounts or countries and said it believed none of the recipients "had the authority to . . . approve the purchase of the company's products or services." Boeing's statement was filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and reversed its position of Feb. 13 when it denied making payments to foreign government officials.

"I like to cook. But when I first started, it was awful!

Spaghetti and meatballs so loaded with oregano my friends suddenly got full on one mouthful. Now, I can create a feast because I took the time to learn how. I'm not afraid to make mistakes. Because I am me. And Alka Seltzer works fast!"

Drury Resigns

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Works Minister C. M. (Bud) Drury resigned from the federal cabinet today and apologized with "much regret" for calling a Quebec judge during the process of hearing a contempt of court charge against a cabinet colleague.

Drury's announcement followed tabling of a report by Chief Justice Jules Deschenes of Quebec Superior Court on charges of interference by three cabinet ministers.

Prime Minister Trudeau later told the Commons he had not accepted the resignation immediately but it was "under consideration at this time."

He said he would make a statement later in the day on whether he will order a public inquiry into the conduct of his ministers and the standards to which they should adhere.

"I very much regret taking the action I did," Drury, a senior minister for almost 13 years, told a quiet, tense Commons. "I sincerely and deeply apologize . . ."

Treasury Board Chairman Jean Chretien and Health Minister Marc Lalonde, also alleged to have improperly contacted judges on other cases, also offered statements of apology and regret, but neither resigned.

Drury told the Commons March 3, he had not made any attempt to influence the decision of Mr. Justice James Hugessen who was presiding over a contempt charge against Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet.

Deschenes said he considered Drury's action improper.

"I have long respected and sought to protect the independence of the judiciary," Drury, a lawyer, said. "I deeply regret this action which the chief justice considers improper. I therefore tendered my resignation to the prime minister."

Progressive Conservative opposition leader Joe Clark called for a full public inquiry.

Clark said the former army brigadier had taken the honorable course in resigning. But he renewed a call for a full public inquiry into the allegations.

Clark said the opposition still will insist on determining the exact nature of the involvement in the Ouellet affair.

Ouellet was then facing a contempt of court charge brought by Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay of the Quebec Superior Court for remarks that Ouellett had made about Mackay court verdict finding three sugar companies not guilty of price collusion in Eastern Canada. Ouellet was subsequently convicted in the contempt case.

Lalonde said today he spoke to a Quebec judge after the external affairs department asked the prime misister's office for assistance in determining the end of a 1970 trial involving 10 Trinidad students.

Lalonde told the Commons that Prime Minister Trudeau was visiting the Arctic when Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad asked when a verdict could be expected for the students, charged after a computer-smashing spree at Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Chief Justice Deschenes said he did not know Lalonde's version of the 1970 incident and would not pass judgment. He said it was not worth reopening the case after six years.

In the Chretian case, he quoted Quebec Judge Harry Aronovitch as saying Chretien's call to him was not proper but "I did not consider it to be interference or intervention calling for formal protest."

Chretian today admitted calling superior Court Judge Harry Aronovitch but said he was only trying — as MP for the riding of St. Maruice — to confront the problem of unemployment in the constituency.

He told the Commons that by contacting Mr. Justice Aronovitch in the case he had acted in good faith but he is sorry if the judge was annoyed.

Leak No Accident

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard Holden, special prosecutor in the contempt-of-court case against Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, said today that copies which he possessed of correspondence between Quebec Superior Court Justice Kenneth Mackay and Justice Minister Ron Basford were leaked intentionally to the press.

Holden had previously told Mackay sent him copies of the letters because they concerned his role as prosecutor in the contempt case.

"They were not marked confidential," he said. "There was nothing to indicate I couldn't use them any way I wanted."

Holden had previously todl reporters his secretary made the letters available to Globe and Mail reporter Richard Cleroux by mistake.

He said today he wanted the public to know "that Mr. Justice Mackay had nothing to do with making the letters public."

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial health department has slashed $13.3 million — 60 per cent — from the proposed $22.3 million hospital building budget of the Capital district for this year.

The move jeopardizes all hospital plans from Sooke to the Gulf Islands and has left Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, "flabbergasted."

"When a budget's cut by 60 per cent in an area where everyone, including the provincial government, agrees we're so far behind, I just find it unbelievable," he said today.

Among the projects which may be stopped cold or drastically curtailed:

—A new 300-bed hospital to replace the largely obsolete Victoria General Hospital. ($2.5 million had been budgeted for a site.)

—A 75-bed acute care addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital, a $3.1 million item in the capital budget.

—A 150-bed extended care addition at Glengarry Hospital, for which $2.6 millions had been set aside.

—Renovations and equipment purchases at Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals worth about $6 million.

The state of Victoria's two general hospitals is "deplorable" now, Young said, and a tremendous flow of funds is needed just to bring them up to standard.

What the provincial spending decisions means in effect, he said, is: "You'd better not get sick — and if you do, you'd better go somewhere else."

Of the $9 million left in the budget, Young said "there's so much to be cut most programs won't even be started."

The provincial government should have been ready to borrow if necessary because the need is so great in the health care field, he said.

The budget was prepared by the regional Hospital and Health Care Planning Commission, to which Young also belongs, and it meets next Wednesday.

"We're going to have to sit down and decide which of the hospital's desperate needs they can't have."

The decision of the province on the region's capital budget was received late Thursday and one of the commission's advisory committees met on it this morning.

John Clark, regional director of hospital planning, said following the meeting that it appears the committee will be recommending expenditures of only about $1.7 million on the planned $6 million for equipment and renovations.

The $22.3 million budget does not mean that amount would have been spent this year but that projects ultimately costing that would have been started, and some completed, this year.

The province has not specified which projects to cut, apparently leaving that to the commission.

SHELL SHOCK came for Mrs. Rose Lakeland of 4141 North Road in Saanich when she shucked oyster while harvesting molluscs with her sister Mrs. Hazel Grindlay on Ladysmith beach. Mrs. Lakeland found 51 pearls in one oyster. She said the pearls may be used to make a brooch.

Drastic Rule Changes Set for AIB Appeals

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Appeal procedures under the Anti-Inflation Act will be drastically changed under legislation introduced in the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald.

The amendments to the Anti-Inflation Act will broaden access to the administrator for employees, companies and other parties subject to decisions by the Anti-Infaltion Board.

The existing law permits only the Anti-Inflation Board or the cabinet to refer a case to the administrator for a decision.

In future, any party directly affected by a decision of the Anti-Inflation board, and dissatisfied with the decision, may have the case referred to the administrator by making a written request to the Board.

The amendment is designed to remove one of the most serious complaints about the anti-inflation program.

Parties entitled to demand a referral to the administrator under the revised law would be the company involved in an AIB notification concerning prices or profits; the employer or employer organization, employee organization or "designated employee" in a compensation case; and, in the case of a dividend, the declaring or paying body.

Another amendment stipulates that a party directly affected by an order of the administrator, whether named in the order or not, may appeal the order to the anti-inflation appeal tribunal.

BUGS FOR SMUGGLERS URGED BY SCIENTISTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bugging airports with real live insects might expose smugglers, drug pedlars and potential hijackers, a retired scientist said Thursday.

Dr. R. H. Wright said in an interview that mutants of fruit flies could be developed that attracted to explosives, narcotics and other smuggled goods.

"You could just have the flies loose in the airport with somebody watching to see where they cluster," said Dr. Wright who has worked at the British Columbia Research Council and has conducted numerous studies using insects.

His suggestion has been published in the prestigious science magazine, Nature, in London, England.

$1 MILLION HEIST

LONDON (AP) — Two armed men dressed as airline officers got away with at least $1 million in cash, gold bars and gems in a warehouse holdup at London's Heathrow Airport late Thursday night, police reported.

They also grabbed five automatic pistols and revolvers with 50 shells, a spokesman said.

Detectives were still working out the full value of the stolen items today. A police source said it might reach as much as $2 million.

Most of the haul was in used U.S. banknotes totalling $516,600, the spokesman said. The bullion was valued at $180,000 and polished diamonds taken at $120,000.

Police estimated the other items were worth at least $300,000. These included emeralds, pearls, uncut stones and British banknotes.

"We believe the raiders had inside information about the packages stored in the warehouse strongroom," the spokesman said.

The raiders pulled pistols and ordered the duty clerk to open the strongroom safe. They tied him up with a sack over his head, then spent a half hour loading packages into an airline panel truck.

Pr. Rupert Studied As Oil Port

SEATTLE (AP) — A proposal to build an oil port in Prince Rupert, and ship oil to the midwestern United States is being considered by Trans-Mountain Pipeline Co., the firm's president said Thursday.

Kenneth Hall said an engineering firm is presently studying the technical, economic and environmental problems of building a terminal at Prince Rupert, about 600 miles northwest of Seattle. The company now delivers Canadian crude oil from Alberta to the state's four major refineries on Puget Sound north of Seattle.

He said he was not dismayed that the Northern Tier Piepline Co. has applied for permits to build an oil port in Port Angeles as the western terminus of a 1,500-mile pipeline to Minnesota.

"This is the fourth time in the last eight years that plan has been proposed," Hall said. "We took a look at that once, ourselves.

Election Results Jolt U.K. Labor

The Wilson government bounced back Thursday from a humiliating defeat in the house of Commons to win a confidence vote by an unexpected 17-vote margin on its proposal to slash $10 billion in public spending. The vote was 297-280.

But after winning the showdown, the Wilson government was shaken by a spectacular hammering today in by-elections in Carshalton, a bedroom community near London, and Wirrall, near Liverpool.

The voting showed an eight per cent swing away from Labor, the Conservatives retaining both seats, but winning by greatly increased majorities compared with the 1974 general elections.

Wilson and Lord Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey virtually bludgeoned Labor's left wing rebels back into line in the confidence vote, accusing them of dealing with the opposition threatening to call a general election that Labor might lose.

Several ill Labor members were brought in for the vote — including Peter Doig, who was carried in on a stretcher.

Beirut Rebels Claim Control

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Moslem rebels seized two army barracks in southern Lebanon today, claiming complete control of all military posts in the southern region. The leader of the army rebellion said he was winning the struggle for power.

New shooting flared in Beirut between rival factions. Police sources said at least 20 persons were killed and more than 30 wounded in the capital in the past 24 hours.

Brig. Gen. Aziz Ahdab, who proclaimed himself "acting military governor" Thursday, said his rebel forces were winning and ignored President Suleiman Franjieh's refusal to resign.

Supporters of Franjieh claimed the takeover had fallen through, but it was not clear if the embattled Christian president had the necessary military support to stay in office.

In a surprise move, the ultranationalist "Guards of the Cedars" — a small but volatile Christian force — announced support for Ahdab's revolt. "We are placing our capabilities at his disposal," a spokesman for the guards said.

In southern Lebanon, Moslem rebels of the "Lebanese Arab Army" seized the army barracks of Sidon and Tyre, thus gaining complete control of all military posts in the southern region, reports said.

(In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defence Minister Shimon Peres warned of Israeli countermeasures if Lebanese developments threatened the chain of Jewish settlements along the border. Military sources said the Israeli army went on increased alert along the northern frontier with Lebanon.

Businessmen Willing To Gamble on Centre For City Conventions

Victoria Times
SECOND SECTION

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria business associations said today they are willing to take the gamble that a convention centre would be successful, despite the pessimism of Mayor Mike Young.

In separate statements they presented a united front, saying there was evidence a convention centre could attract tourist and delegate dollars to the city in the off-season.

Young had said a convention centre would lose money because delegates would prefer to go to warmer climates in the winter months. If they don't select Victoria for a holiday they won't come here for a convention in the winter months.

—Vancouver is flooded with conventions in the winter months, while Victoria is losing out because facilities are lacking here for conventions larger than 800 people. The Vancouver Tourist and Convention Bureau has 30 pages of conventions on its books for 1976 alone.

—The chamber of commerce has had to discourage many groups enquiring about winter conventions because the groups were too large to be accommodated in Victoria.

—Hotels like the Empress Hotel have had to turn away business because they were booked solid in the off-season. (Empress manager Ted Balderson said this was true of some periods in the fall and spring months but convention business tended to be slack in winter.)

—The mayor's argument that conventions would only select Victoria in the summer months and not in winter (because tourists flock here only in summer and not in the other months) could be challenged on the grounds that people take holidays when their children are out of school but can go on conventions at any time of year. The tourist flow would always be highest in summer and Easter when families could travel.

Organizers More Nationalistic

—Convention organizers are becomeing more nationalistic and prefer to meet in Canada, rather than going to Hawaii or Las Vegas. In Canada, Victoria has the best winter climate.

—In addition, there are tax advantages for Canadian companies to meet in Victoria rather than the United States. A company can write off as a business expense the full cost of an employee's convention expenses for a maximum of two meetings each year but the conventions must be held in Canada.

—Victoria can be successfully promoted as a fun city in the winter months because of its golf facilities and skiing, which is about 150 miles up-Island at Green Mountain. Golf can be played almost any day of the year but is particularly attractive in fall and spring. Fishing and sailing are also available in winter.

—Convention centres may be failures in Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Winnipeg but that does not prove it would fail here. Nobody would select Calgary for a winter meeting but many prairie people would be happy to be in Victoria in the winter. Temperature in Calgary Thursday was minus 14 while it was 7 here.

—The flow of winter visitors is increasing each year. A check of out-of-province licence plates in Victoria today would confirm this.

In addition to these arguments that the convention centre could very well show a profit, the business groups said it would be worthwhile even if it operated at a loss.

The businessmen said the facility should be though of as a civic centre and not just a convention site. Therefore, it would add to the enjoyment of local citizens for the following reasons:

—Many touring cultural and musical events have to bypass Victoria (although they appear in Vancouver) because there is no suitable large hall in this city. The Memorial Arena is not suitable for opera, for example.

—If the civic centre does lose money, it is still worthwhile, because it will attract tourist dollars to the city that benefits the whole community. Delegates often take holidays in association with a meeting.

—A civic centre is as important as a road or park. It provides a service but it is not essential that it show a profit, although it may.

The businessmen reiterated that they would be willing to have their business tax increased one per cent to provide a starting fund for the civic centre.

Class Bumped By E and N For Americans

The Canadian Transport Commission hearing was told today a reserved E & N dayliner trip for a group of Victoria students was scuttled by inept and impolite railway officials.

The story of the tour that didn't go was told by George Olsson, principal of Sundance elementary school.

Olsson said he arranged a class trip to the forest museum at Duncan via the dayliner. There would be 108 students and about 20 adults travelling in two groups and he inquired of the railway if they could handle such a group.

Assured by the central booking office that this could be done he bought tickets ahead of time for the first trip Setp. 10, 1974, and got to the station in Victoria in plenty of time that date.

"But as the train pulled in a tour group of senior citizens from the U.S. arrived and began to go aboard," Olsson said.

He learned this was a package bus tour and the station agent who had been unaware of the bus tour was still selling tickets to other passengers arriving for the dayliner.

Olsson said only half the children and no parents were able to board the dayliner and he reluctantly decided that all would go back to the school and forgo the trip.

"I told them what I thought of it," Olsson said, and he said he rebooked the tour for the following week.

Olsson said he wan't asked. "He said 'make up your mind, either get on or get off.'"

The CTC was also urged to consider Transport Minister Otto Lang's national transportation policies before deciding on whether to suspend the E and N's rail passenger service.

OLSSON

Cowichan - Malahat New Democrat MLA Barbara Wallace said Canadian Pacific Railway was asking a great deal of the commission in view of Lang's intention of making an encompassing review of Canadian rail passenger services. (See also Page 13)

The E and N has applied to abandon its dayliner service north of Victoria and drop trackage between Parksville and Courtenay.

Wallace argued the CTC does not have jurisdiction to order discontinuation of service and that the maintenance of railway service on Vancouver Island is inherent in the terms of union between B.C. and the parliament of Canada.

Ask The Times

Q. I believe former premier W. A. C. Bennett holds a degree from an eastern Canadian university. Could you please list his academic achievements above the secondary school level.—R.J.H.

a. The former premier was largely a self-educated man. He holds five university degrees but all are honorary and were awarded to him after he became premier. He took his elementary and secondary education in New Brunswick and Alberta respectively. His honorary degrees were from University of B.C. 1958, Notre Dame University at Nelson, B.C., 1965, Simon Fraser University 1966, University of New Brunswick 1966 and McGill University 1967.

Tight Look At Loans To Students

The department of education said Wednesday it is intensifying procedures for checking post-secondary student loan applications which are numbering 20,000 a year.

Spokesman John Walsh said more staff has been approved for the student services branch which administers the financial assistance programs, including loans, grants, special assistance for part-time study and federally-funded bilingual awards.

More than $25 million in federal and provincial funds will be loaned to students this year.

Walsh said there would be no cutback in the aid program but applications will be reviewed more carefully for possible errors.

He said that over the past few years the number of student assistance applications has tripled yet at the same time staff hired to process the applications has remained relatively constant.

Undue Influence? Not Likely

Victoria Mayor Mike Young said Thursday he wouldn't have accompanied Victoria realtors on a trip to Scottsdale, Arizona, if he felt there was "any possibility they were going to unduly influence me."

Young and Saanich Mayor Ed Lum accepted invitations to attend a six-day seminar in Arizona, at the request of Scottsdale city officials and the real estate boards of Victoria and Scottsdale.

In reply to reporters' questions following Thursday's city council meeting, the Victoria mayor said he could see no reason why anyone should object to his visit.

He said one or two local radio stations had asked who paid for the trip itself and his own accommodation, and the answer was that the only person who had not paid was the city taxpayer.

Young said the invitation was extended by the Victoria Real Estate Board which had paid for the charter flight and tours in Scottsdale, but he paid his own hotel bills.

"I don't know whether to ask the taxpayer to reimburse that or not," he added sarcastically.

Under further questioning, on whether it was advisable to accept the hospitality of a vested interest group, the mayor said: "I don't know what you're talking about."

When one reporter noted that the particular vested interest could be summed up in the single word "development," Young replied that very few of those board members on the trip "are into the development game."

And to the best of his knowledge the only property the board owns in the city is its business office.

CKDA Innocent

Radio station CKDA did not carry any stories critical of the two local mayors, Mike Young and Ed Lum, for going to Scottsdale, Arizona, with the Victoria Real Estate Board, a spokesman for the radio station said today.

The station was responding to a statement by board president Eric Charman that radio stations in Victoria had been critical of the mayors. Charman today confirmed that, to his knowledge, there had been no criticism on CKDA. Most of the criticism originated at C-FAX, Charman said, with a milder stance taken in stories carried on CJVI.

Stay-at-Home Research By Linguistics Head

University of Victoria department head Dr. Harry Scargill will go on a year's sabbatical this summer to research the history of Canada in words—all without leaving town.

Unlike most academics who have to seek out scources in far-flung libraries, museums, government offices or in the field of their particular studies, Scargill has his sources at UVic, which is home of the Lexicographical Centre he helped to found.

Scargill is head of UVic linguistics department, one of two heads who will go on sabbatical in the coming academic year to do research aided by Canada Council grants.

The other is political science chairman Dr. Walter Young, whose work on the life of M. J. Coldwell, an early leader of the CCF (now NDP) will take him to the National Archives in Ottawa, the Saskatchewan provincial archives and to interview former Coldwell colleagues in various places.

But like Scargill, much of Young's work will be done in Victoria. He has already gathered a good deal of material on Coldwell, including interviews with the ex-teacher who became a farm political leader in Saskatchewan, a pioneer of the CCF, its wartime leader in the House of Commons and national leader in 1942.

. . . year off

Eventually, he said, he will write a book on the life and career of one of Canada's more notable socialists.

Young said he planned to take the year off at the time he came to UVic two years ago and applied for the sabbatical a year ago.

Scargill said his research will examine how various economic and social features peculiar to the Canadian fabric have contributed words to the language of English-speaking Canadians. He will locate the use of certain words, outline their origin and why they have come into use.

Such Canadianisms as "red chamber," "fur trade," "riding" and others have played a part in the history of Canada.

"Words are just as important—more important—than archaeological ruins in telling how people got to be the way they are," Scargill said.

One of his chief sources will be the Dictionary of Canadianisms, on which he worked before and after coming to UVic.

Scargill said he had not yet chosen a title for his new history book, but toyed with the idea of Acadia to Zeballos—A History of Canada in Words.

Spearfishing Prohibited At Ogden Pt. Breakwater

The federal fisheries department has closed the waters off Ogden Point breakwater to spearfishing in an attempt to conserve certain species of fish being depleted by the underwater hunters, a department spokesman said today.

Victoria fisheries officer Larry Duke said the closure order, which takes effect midnight Sunday and is "pretty well permanent," forbids the spearhunting of ling cod, octopus, wolf eel, abalone and scallops.

"The intent is to conserve these species from being depleted. They are vulnerable to spearfishing," Duke said.

The order comes after about two years of pressure from local diving clubs to have the area made into a marine park.

The waters off Ogden Point, the divers say, are a perfect classroom area for novice divers, but the marine stock was being depleted by spearfishermen.

Duke said making the area into a marine park was a problem in provincial-federal jurisdiction.

"There is a split in jurisdiction in an area like that. The foreshore and inter-tidal area is provincial," Duke said, but the water itself is federal.

The creation of a marine park would also prohibit sportfishing off the breakwater, Duke said, "and that wouldn't go down too well."

But the department can impose closure orders for certain species of fish and that solves the problem, at least for a while.

"This was an effort to do something right away," he said.

Tim Stevens, vice-president of the Victoria Pacific Sea Searchers termed the action "super."

"Maybe we can see it recover to what it was 10 years ago."

Stevens said the closure order also prohibits specimen-taking from the water.

The closure boundaries run from Ogden Point Pier A, to Breakwater light, to Brotchie Ledge light to Holland Point.

It is the third preserve area in the Victoria area. The other two are at Ten Mile Point and Land's End.

Visiting Stopped At VGH

The flu epidemic has forced Victoria General Hospital to stop visits to patients exept in special cases, starting today.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital, visiting will continue but the public has been asked again to stay away from patients if they have symptoms of cold or flu.

Dr. D. R. Carlow, assistant executive director (medical) at Victoria Geseral, said Thursday that about 25 per cent of the nursing staff and 40 or so patients have been hit by flu.

Elective surgery had to be cut by half Thursday and today, he said.

Among special cases where limited visiting will be allowed is parents visiting their children in the hospital, Carlow said.

Wanted: 500 Volunteers . . . Now

Volunteers to work with young people's groups, recreation, cultural, environmental and conservation organizations are badly needed in Greater Victoria.

And many are needed to help the sick and the aged, according to Barbara Hay, a member of the Victoria Volunteer Bureau which tries to find people to help struggling groups.

"At least 500 could be used in various community jobs, such as on executives of various organizations, instructors in crafts and as leaders of youth organizations," she said.

A survey conducted two years ago estimated there were between 4,000 and 5,000 volunteer workers, but Hay thinks this is a conservative figure as it did not take in all aspects of community work.

"We are deluged with requests for help," she said. "Some of the help required would take little of a person's time — one or two hours a week."

She said most offering their services are between the ages of 18 and 30.

"While we still need people in this age group, we would like more older citizens—retired people with skills and administrative experience," she said.

People are needed to drive the handicapped to doctors and to shopping and recreation centres, to work with children and senior citizens and to help feed the sick in hospitals.

"We even have one request for someone to construct learning toys for children," she added.

In youth work, she observed, the shortage of volunteers is acute.

"The demand is for people with skills to teach crafts and outdoor activities and to serve as leaders."

The Boy Scout Association has had to disband two groups because of the lack of leaders.

But apart from leaders, the association needs men and women with business and executive experiences to serve on group and district committees and the council.

Tony Hawkins, vice-president of the scout region, said Victoria has many retired people with managerial and executive experiences, but so far few have offered their assistance.

"We are not asking them to run a group of boys," he said. "We need them to help out at the executive, organizational and administrative levels," he explained.

Trudeau Says No

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he will not accept the resignation submitted by Works Minister C. M. Drury.

Trudeau also ruled out a public inquiry into the intervention with a Quebec judge that led to Drury tendering his resignation earlier today.

Trudeau said he agreed with the conclusions in Chief Justice Jules Deschene's report tabled in the Commons today.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Works Minister C. M. (Bud) Drury resigned from the federal cabinet today and apologized with "much regret" for calling a Quebec judge during the process of hearing a contempt of court charge against a cabinet colleague.

Drury's announcement followed tabling of a report by Chief Justice Jules Deschenes of Quebec Superior Court on charges of interference by three cabinet ministers.

"I very much regret taking the action I did," Drury, a senior minister for almost 13 years, told a quiet, tense Commons. "I sincerely and deeply apologize . . ."

Treasury Board Chairman Jean Chretien and Health Minister Marc Lalonde, also alleged to have improperly contacted judges on other cases, also offered statements of apology and regret, but neither resigned.

Drury told the Commons March 3, he had not made any attempt to influence the decision of Mr. Justice James Hugessen who was presiding over a contempt charge against Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet.

Deschenes said he considered Drury's action improper.

"I have long respected and sought to protect the independence of the judiciary," Drury, a lawyer, said. "I deeply regret this action which the chief justice considers improper. I therefore tendered my resignation to the prime minister."

Progressive Conservative opposition leader Joe Clark called for a full public inquiry.

Clark said the former army brigadier had taken the honorable course in resigning. But he renewed a call for a full public inquiry into the allegations.

Clark said the opposition still will insist on determining the exact nature of the involvement in the Ouellet affair.

Ouellet was then facing a contempt of court charge brought by Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay of the Quebec Superior Court for remarks that Ouellet had made about Mackay court verdict finding three sugar companies not guilty of price collusion in Eastern Canada. Ouellet was subsequently convicted in the contempt case.

Lalonde said today he spoke to a Quebec judge after the external affairs department asked the prime minister's office for assistance in determining the end of a 1970 trial involving 10 Trinidad students.

Lalonde told the Commons that Prime Minister Trudeau was visiting the Arctic when Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad asked when a verdict could be expected for the students, charged after a computer-smashing spree at Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Chief Justice Deschenes said he did not know Lalonde's version of the 1970 incident and would not pass judgment. He said it was not worth reopening the case after six years.

In the Chretien case, he quoted Quebec Judge Harry Aronovitch as saying Chretien's call to him was not proper but "I did not consider it to be interference or intervention calling for formal protest."

Chretien today admitted calling superior Court Judge Harry Aronovitch but said he was only trying — as MP for the riding of St. Maruice — to confront the problem of unemployment in the constituency.

Leak No Accident

MONTREAL (CP) — Richard Holden, special prosecutor in the contempt-of-court case against Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, said today that copies which he possessed of correspondence between Quebec Superior Court Justice Kenneth Mackay and Justice Minister Ron Basford were leaked intentionally to the press.

Holden said Mr. Justice Mackay sent him copies of the letters because they concerned his role as prosecutor in the contempt case.

"They were not marked confidential," he said. "There was nothing to indicate I couldn't use them any way I wanted."

Holden had previously told reporters his secretary made the letters available to Globe and Mail reporter Richard Cleroux by mistake.

He said today he wanted the public to know "that Mr. Justice Mackay had nothing to do with making the letters public."

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

The provincial health department has slashed $13.3 million — 60 per cent — from the proposed $22.3 million hospital building budget of the Capital district for this year.

The move jeopardizes all hospital plans from Sooke to the Gulf Islands and has left Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, "flabbergasted."

"When a budget's cut by 60 per cent in an area where everyone, including the provincial government, agrees we're so far behind, I just find it unbelievable," he said today.

Among the projects which may be stopped cold or drastically curtailed:

—A new 300-bed hospital to replace the largely obsolete Victoria General Hospital. ($2.5 million had been budgeted for a site.)

—A 75-bed acute care addition to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital, a $3.1 million item in the capital budget.

—A 150-bed extended care addition at Glengarry Hospital, for which $2.6 millions had been set aside.

—Renovations and equipment purchases at Royal Jubilee and Victoria General Hospitals worth about $6 million.

The state of Victoria's two general hospitals is "deplorable" now, Young said, and a tremendous flow of funds is needed just to bring them up to standard.

What the provincial spending decisions means in effect, he said, is: "You'd better not get sick — and if you do, you'd better go somewhere else."

Of the $9 million left in the budget, Young said "there's so much to be cut most programs won't even be started."

The provincial government should have been ready to borrow if necessary because the need is so great in the health eare field, he said.

The decision of the province on the region's capital budget was received late Thursday and one of the commission's advisory committees met on it this morning.

John Clark, regional director of hospital planning, said following the meeting that it appears the committee will be recommending expenditures of only about $1.7 million on the planned $6 million for equipment and renovations.

The $22.3 million budget does not mean that amount would have been spent this year but that projects ultimately costing that would have been started, and some completed, this year.

The province has not specified which projects to cut, apparently leaving that to the commission.

Clark said the provincial move does not mean that funds will not be made available in future years for the proposed projects. At the same time, regional hospital planners have no guarantee that money will be made available to finish projects which have been started.

SHELL SHOCK came for Mrs. Rose Lakeland of 4141 North Road in Saanich when she shucked oyster while harvesting molluscs with her sister Mrs. Hazel Grindlay on Ladysmith beach. Mrs. Lakeland found 51 pearls in one oyster. She said the pearls may be used to make a brooch.

Drastic Rule Changes Set for AIB Appeals

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Appeal procedures under the Anti-Inflation Act will be drastically changed under legislation introduced in the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald.

The amendments to the Anti-Inflation Act will broaden access to the administrator for employees, companies and other parties subject to decisions by the Anti-Inflation Board.

The existing law permits only the Anti-Inflation Board or the cabinet to refer a case to the administrator for a decision.

In future, any party directly affected by a decision of the Anti-Inflation Board, and dissatisfied with the decision, may have the case referred to the administrator by making a written request to the Board.

The amendment is designed to remove one of the most serious complaints about the anti-inflation program.

Parties entitled to demand a referral to the administrator under the revised law would be the company involved in an AIB notification concerning prices or profits; the employer or employer organization, employee organization or "designated employee" in a compensation case; and, in the case of a dividend, the declaring or paying body.

Another amendment stipulates that a party directly affected by an order of the administrator, whether named in the order or not, may appeal the order to the anti-inflation appeal tribunal.

NEWS BRIEFS

Nigeria Executes 32 for Coup Try

LONDON (UPI) — Thirty-two persons have been executed by a firing squad in Nigeria for their involvement in last month's abortive coup, Lagos Radio reported today.

Gallagher: 10 Years

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Irish guerrilla Eddie Gallagher was sentenced to 20 years jail Thursday for kidnapping Dutch businessman Dr. Tiede Herrema. The girl who helped him in the abduction last October, Marian Coyle, was jailed for 15 years.

Heat Off Pound

British currency began to slide again today, dropping to $1.9305 at the opening, but then rallied strongly to $1.9360, prompting a dealer from Barclay's International Bank to remark that "the heat seems to be off."

New Mine Disaster

PARTRIDGE, Ky. (UPI) — Eleven persons, including three federal inspectors, were found dead today 13 hours after an explosion ripped through the same Kentucky coal mine where 15 miners were killed in a methane gas explosion two days ago, the governor's office reported.

BUGS FOR SMUGGLERS URGED BY SCIENTISTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bugging airports with real live insects might expose smugglers, drug pedlars and potential hijackers, a retired scientist said Thursday.

Dr. R. H. Wright said in an interview that mutants of fruit flies could be developed that are attracted to explosives, narcotics and other smuggled goods.

"You could just have the flies loose in the airport with somebody watching to see where they cluster," said Dr. Wright who has worked at the British Columbia Research Council and has conducted numerous studies using insects.

His suggestion has been published in the prestigious science magazine, Nature, in London, England.

$1 MILLION HEIST

LONDON (AP) — Two armed men dressed as airline officers got away with at least $1 million in cash, gold bars and gems in a warehouse holdup at London's Heathrow Airport late Thursday night, police reported.

They also grabbed five automatic pistols and revolvers with 50 shells, a spokesman said.

Detectives were still working out the full value of the stolen items today. A police source said it might reach as much as $2 million.

Most of the haul was in used U.S. banknotes totalling $516,600, the spokesman said. The bullion was valued at $160,000 and polished diamonds taken at $120,000.

Police estimated the other items were worth at least $300,000. These included emeralds, pearls, uncut stones and British banknotes.

"We believe the raiders had inside information about the packages stored in the warehouse strongroom," the spokesman said.

The raiders pulled pistols and ordered the duty clerk to open the strongroom safe. They tied him up with a sack over his head, then spent a half hour loading packages into an airline panel truck.

6 Rescued As Packer Hits Rocks

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Six persons were rescued today after their storm-whipped 85-foot packer crashed into rocks in Fitzhugh Sound, 275 miles northwest of Vancouver.

A search and rescue spokesman said five of the six abandoned the ship Canfisco in an attempt to make it to shore, while a sixth remained on board.

Four of the five made it to the rocky coast, where they were rescued by a search and rescue helicopter. The fifth failed to make it to shore and was picked up, along with the sixth person, by the fishing boat Gail Bernice.

The spokesman said two of the men were in hospital at Bella Bella, and the other four were receiving treatment. He said all six were suffering shock and possible hypothermia.

The vessel, also with six persons aboard, was being towed to Prince Rupert by the search and rescue vessel Lumba Lumba.

Election Results Jolt U.K. Labor

The Wilson government bounced back Thursday from a humiliating defeat in the house of Commons to win a confidence vote by an unexpected 17-vote margin on its proposal to slash $10 billion in public spending. The vote was 297-280.

But after winning the showdown, the Wilson government was shaken by a spectacular hammering today in by-elections in Carshalton, a bedroom community near London, and Wirrall, near Liverpool.

The voting showed an eight per cent swing away from Labor, the Conservatives retaining both seats, but winning by greatly increased majorities compared with the 1974 general elections.

Wilson and Lord Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey virtually bludgeoned Labor's left wing rebels back into line in the confidence vote, accusing them of dealing with the opposition threatening to call a general election that Labor might lose.

Several ill Labor members were brought in for the vote — including Peter Doig, who was carried in on a stretcher.

Beirut Rebels Claim Control

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Moslem rebels seized two army barracks in southern Lebanon today, claiming complete control of all military posts in the southern region. The leader of the army rebellion said he was winning the struggle for power.

New shooting flared in Beirut between rival factions. Police sources said at least 20 persons were killed and more than 30 wounded in the capital in the past 24 hours.

Brig. Gen. Aziz Ahdab, who proclaimed himself "acting military governor" Thursday, said his rebel forces were winning and ignored President Suleiman Franjieh's refusal to resign.

Supporters of Franjieh claimed the takeover had fallen through, but it was not clear if the embattled Christian president had the necessary military support to stay in office.

In a surprise move, the ultranationalist "Guards of the Cedars" — a small but volatile Christian force — announced support for Ahdab's revolt. "We are placing our capabilities at his disposal," a spokesman for the guards said.

In southern Lebanon, Moslem rebels of the "Lebanese Arab Army" seized the army barracks of Sidon and Tyre, thus gaining complete control of all military posts in the southern region, reports said.

(In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defence Minister Shimon Peres warned of Israeli countermeasures if Lebanese developments threatened the chain of Jewish settlements along the border. Military sources said the Israeli army went on increased alert along the northern frontier with Lebanon.

Pin-Up Girl (xx), on 2 at 2 p.m. A 1944 wartime musical starring Betty Grable about a romance between a showgirl and a Second World War hero. John Harvey and Joe E. Brown co-star.

Our Little Girl, on 11 at 2. A 1935 Shirley Temple drama about a child caught in a floundering marriage of a doctor and his wife. Joel McCrea and Rosemary Ames portray the couple.

Fahrenheit 451 (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. Award winning French filmmaker Francois Truffaut directed this 1966 adaptation of the fascinating Ray Bradbury science-fiction novel about a futuristic society where books are banned, starring Julie Christie and Oskar Werner.

A Run for Your Money (xxx), on 9 at 8. Alec Guinness and Donald Houston are excellent in this delightfully amusing 1949 British-made comedy about the misadventures of two Welsh coal miners on a London holiday.

DRAWING ROOM COMEDY at its best is the 1952 British-made film version of Oscar Wilde's, The Importance of Being Earnest, starring Dame Edith Evans (above), Sir Michael Redgrave and Margaret Rutherford, to be telecast on Saturday at 10 p.m. on Channel 9.

Today's Movies

Western Union (xxx), on 2 at 9. An entertaining 1941 western epic about the laying of the first transcontinental Western Union wire, starring Randolph Scott, Robert Young and Dean Jagger.

Dynasty, on 5 at 9. An unpreviewed 1976 made-for-television drama adapted from a novel by James Mitchener, which follows the pioneering Blackwoods family from their 1820 beginnings as Ohio scrub farmers to their emergence as a ruthless family dynasty just before the Civil War. The story focuses on Jennifer Blackwood, the woman who is the driving force behind the family's rise to power. A fine cast includes Sarah Miles, Stacy Keach and Harris Yulin.

The Entertainer, on 6 at 9. Jack Lemmon heads a fine cast in this 1976 version of the acclaimed John Osborne play about the rise and fall of a third-rate vaudevillian whose life is spent in seedy burlesque houses during the 1940s, and whose prime ambition is to survive, no matter what the cost. Academy Award-winning composer Marvin Hamlisch wrote the score for this excellent drama, which co-stars Ray Bolger and Sada Thomson. (Sir Laurence Olivier played the role in the 1960 British film version.)

Serpico (xxx), on 8 at 9 and 6 at 11:20. A strong performance by Godfather star Al Pacino highlights this excellent 1973 crime-drama, based on the true-life experiences of Frank Serpico, a New York City undercover detective who, in 1971, played a major role in exposing widespread graft and corruption in the New York City Police Department.

The Importance of Being Earnest (xxx), on 9 at 10. Sir Michael Redgrave and Joan Greenwood head a flawless cast in this faithful 1952 film version of Oscar Wilde's satire of manners, romance and mistaken identity in 19th century England.

Rosie (xx), on 7 at 11. A somewhat tasteless 1968 comedy-drama starring Rosalind Russell as a wealthy eccentric whose daughters plot to have her declared insane so they can collect her money. Others in the cast include Brian Aherne, Sandra Dee and Audrey Meadows.

Konga, on 11 at 11. No rating available on this 1961 British-made thriller about a serum-injected monkey terrorizing London.

Serpico (xxx), on 6 at 11:20. (See earlier this evening for details.)

Firecreek (xx), on 12 at 11:30. James Stewart and Henry Fonda head a fine cast of supporting players in this predictable but entertaining 1968 western about a part-time sheriff defending his town against five killers.

The Gatling Gun, on 4 at 11:45. No rating available on this 1971 western about Union soldiers vs. Apache Indians in the 1870 Southwest, starring Guy Stockwell, Woody Strode and Barbara Luna.

The Dentist, on 9 at 11:45. An early (1932) talkie starring W. C. Fields as a golfing dentist whose practice is as much below par as his golf score is above it. Film buffs will note that this movie has been restored to its original tint.

Man's Favorite Sport (xx), on 2 at 12:15. Rock Hudson and Paula Prentiss star in this lightweight but entertaining 1964 comedy about a fishing authority who has never touched a rod and reel and is forced into an angling contest by an aggressive lady reporter.

Some Will, Some Won't, on 8 at 12:30 a.m. No rating available on this 1970 remake of the hit 1951 comedy Laughter in Paradise, about heirs who must fulfil unusual conditions to inherit a fortune. This version stars British actor Ronnie Corbett.

Five Branded Women (xx), on 5 at 1 a.m. A clumsy, unpleasant 1960 drama set in Nazi-occupied Yugoslavia, about five women who are brutally treated by the townspeople for consorting with the Germans. Cast includes Silvana Mangano, Vera Miles, Barbara Bel Geddes, Jeanne Moreau and Van Heflin.

On a Clear Day You Can See Forever, on 6 at 1:50 a.m. No rating available on this lavishly-produced 1970 musical based on the Broadway hit about an eccentric coed with ESP. It's directed by Vincente Minnelli and stars Barbra Streisand.

B.S. I Love You, on 8 at 2:30 a.m. No rating available on this 1971 spoof of the advertising world starring Canadian actor Peter Kastner as a girl-crazy director of television commercials.

Today's Highlights

Silent Comedy Classics, on 9 from 3 to 5 p.m. In conjunction with PBS's Pledge Week, several silent comedy classics will be shown including Buster Keaton's Cops and One Week from 3 to 4 p.m., and Charlie Chaplin's The Tramp and Easy Street from 4 to 5 p.m. (2 hrs.)

Festival of Lively Arts for Young People, on 7 and 12 at 1. Ailey Celebrates Ellington, with choreographer Alvin Ailey's young workshop company dancing to the music of Duke Ellington. (60 mins.)

Good Old Days of Radio, on 9 at 5. Steve Allen hosts this tribute to 50 years of radio which includes audio recordings and film clips of such performers as Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen and Fred Allen. (60 mins.)

National Geographic, on 9 at 6:30. A repeat telecast of the award-winning documentary, The Incredible Machine, which examines the human body through microphotographic techniques and medical data. (60 mins.)

Cartoon Special, on 12 at 7:30. A trio of Dr. Seuss, stories in rhyme — The Zax; The Sneetches; and Green Eggs and Ham. (30 mins.)

Rolf Harris, on 8 at 8:30. Debut of a new Vancouver-produced musical-variety series, hosted by the popular Australian entertainer Rolf Harris. Tonight's guest is puppeteer Shari Lewis. (30 mins.)

Star Trek, on 11 at 10. Return of this popular science-fiction series about the journey of the star ship Enterprise on a five-year exploration of deep space, starring William Shatner as Capt. James Kirk and Leonard Nimoy as Science Officer Spock. (60 mins.)

Sammy and Company, on 12 at 10. Host Sammy Davis Jr.'s guests tonight include Bill Cosby and magician Mark Wilson. (90 mins.)

Saturday Night, on 5 at 11:30. Tonight's edition of this highly-rated variety series is co-hosted by actor Anthony Perkins and comedienne-actress Diane Keaton. (90 mins.)

Awards-show Mania Grips Networks

By LEE MARGULIES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The way things are going these days, it may not be long before a television camera zooms in one some starlet to see her pull a card from an envelope and announce:

Television is in the grips of award-show mania. Already this year we've watched the Golden Globe Awards, the American Music Awards, the Entertainer of the Year Awards, the People's Choice Awards and the recording industry's Grammy Awards.

Still to come are the film industry's Academy Awards March 29, the Comedy Awards on April 10, the theatre's Tony Awards on April 18 and a double dose of TV's own Emmy Awards — daytime categories on May 11 and prime-time on May 17.

Where did they all come from? Some of the presentations — the Academy Awards, the Tony Awards and a few others — have been around for years and would continue even without television coverage. But the others have sprung up over the last three years specifically as television entertainment.

ABC actually commissioned development of the American Music Awards and the Comedy awards. The People's Choice Awards and the Rock Music Awards — which hasn't been scheduled yet this year — were brought separately to CBS by independent producers.

What would happen if television interest was withdrawn? Dick Clark, creator and executive producer of the American Music Awards, says: "There would be no reason for it. It's devised solely as a television program."

Doesn't that seem unusual?

"Not at all, because I'm in the television business," answers Clark. "It's as valid as any premise. You have to have a commercial reason for it. To have a banquet in New York for 10 people and say here are the results of this poll wouldn't serve a very big purpose."

Award shows make good television, in other words.

"I think there are two reasons," says Edwin Vane, national program director for ABC Entertainment. "One, it's a competition, and that makes for good television; and two, it attracts the major stars, and star-watching has always been a great pastime of the American people.

"Now you combine that with some entertainment and comedy and the program figures to by very popular."

Today's Movies

Roll, Freddy Roll (xx), on 6 and 8 at 2:30. An amusing 1974 made-for-TV comedy starring Tim Conway as a divorced father who goes to extraordinary lengths to impress his young son.

Waltz of the Toreadors (xxx), on 9 at 2:20. Peter Sellers and Margaret Leighton star in this well-acted 1962 film rendering of Jean Anouilh's whimsical play about the romantic misadventures of an eccentric, retired general.

Run Silent, Run Deep (xxx), on 3 at 3. Burt Lancaster and Clark Gable are excellent in this well-directed 1958 drama about a clash of wills aboard a Second World War U.S. submarine on a search-and-destroy mission.

Mara of the Wilderness, on 11 at 3. No rating available on this 1965 outdoor adventure about a girl raised by wolves who discovers a whole new world when she saves the life of an anthropologist.

Bye Bye Birdie (xx), on 7 at 3:30. An entertaining 1963 film version of the hit Broadway musical about the pandemonium caused by the drafting of a rock and roll star, starring Dick Van Dyke, Janet Leigh, Ann-Margret and Maureen Stapleton.

The Wizard of Oz (xxxx), on 7 and 12 at 7. Another showing of the classic 1939 fantasy that made Judy Garland a star and remains forever a most popular family film. Songs include the Oscar-winning Over the Rainbow, and that trio of comedy greats Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr and Jack Hayley.

High Plains Drifter, on 4 at 9. Clint Eastwood directed and plays (once again) the mysterious stranger with no name in this violent 1973 western revenge tale, filmed in the style of the Sergio Leone epics (but not nearly as good.)

Mutiny on the Bounty (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Postponed from last week, the classic 1935 sea epic, starring Charles Laughton, Clark Gable and Francot Tone. Mr. Laughton won an Oscar for his brilliant performance as Captain Bligh and Gable matches him every step of the way as Fletcher Christian. Recommended.

My Favorite Brunette (xxx), on 4 at 11:30. A better-than-average 1947 Bob Hope comedy about a photographer who turns private detective to help a pretty lady out of a jam. A great supporting cast includes Dorothy Lamour, Peter Lorre and Lon Chaney.

Harper (xxx), on 5 at 11:30. Paul Newman plays a cynical private eye hired to find a missing millionaire in this stylish 1966 mystery highlighted by a good supporting cast that includes Lauren Bacall, Julie Harris, Robert Wagner, Arthur Hill and Janet Leigh.

The Truth About Spring (xx), on 2 at 11:45. A leisurely-paced, entertaining 1965 romantic drama about the young daughter of an eccentric seaman experiencing the first pangs of love with a young American, starring John Mills, his daughter Hayley Mills and James MacArthur.

Some Will, Some Won't, on 6 at 11:50. No rating available on this 1970 re-make of the hit 1952 comedy Laughter in Paradise, about a group of heirs who must fulfil unusual conditions to inherit a fortune. This version stars British actor Ronnie Corbett.

On A Clear Day You Can See Forever, on 8 at midnight. Vincente Minnelli directed this lavish 1970 musical based on the Broadway hit about an eccentric young coed with ESP, starring Barbara Streisand.

The Bravados (xx), on 7 at 1 a.m. A rambling 1958 western drama about a man out to revenge his wife's murder, starring Gergory Peck, Joan Collins and Stephen Boyd.

B.S. I Love You, on 6 at 1:50 a.m. No rating available on this 1971 spoof of the advertising world, starring Canadian actor Peter Kastner as a girl-crazy director of television commercials.

THE WIZARD OF OZ — the timeless family classic starring Judy Garland as Dorothy, Jack Haley as the Tinman, Ray Bolger as the Scarecrow and Bert Lahr as the Lion, will be re-telecast on Sunday at 7 p.m. on Channels 7 and 12.

Today's Highlights

Laurel and Hardy Film Festival, on 9 from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Excerpts from Laurel and Hardy silent comedies including Love 'Em and Weep; Putting Pants on Philip; The Battle of the Century; Do Detectives Think?; Flying Elephants and You're Darn Tootin'. (2½ hrs.)

The Magnificent Adventure, on 9 at 1 p.m. No rating available on this 1952 drama which tells the story of St. Paul's conversion to Christianity and his missionary work, starring Nelson Leigh. (70 mins.)

Jacques Cousteau, on 4 at 7. A repeat of a 1971 documentary about the much-maligned octopus. Film sequences include an octopus intelligence test; a mating ritual; and scenes of a mother defending her eggs. (60 mins.)

Documentary Special, on 9 at 7. A German-made film about the Bajaka Pygmies who inhabit the African rain forests from Zaire to Cameroun. (45 mins.)

Irish Rovers, on 2 and 6 at 7:30. On location in Northern Ireland with guests singer John Watt and the De Glin Academy of Dancers of Londonderry. (30 mins.)

Sonny and Cher, on 8 at 8. Actor Raymond Burr guest stars on tonight's show. (60 mins.)

Nova, on 9 at 8. The Williamburg File, a documentary examining the restoration of the Colonial Virginia city, hosted by archaeologist Ivor Hume who explains how the 18th-century buildings are reconstructed. (60 mins.)

Performance, on 2 and 6 at 9. A drama entitled, What We Have Here is a People Problem, about a stubborn old farmer who won't move off his land despite an expropriation order. Cast includes George Waight, Sandy Webster and Heath Lamberts. (60 mins.)

Colombo, on 5 at 9. Tonight's episode finds Columbo (series star Peter Falk) on the trail of an aging song-and-dance star (Janet Leigh) suspected of killing her wealthy husband in order to finance a Broadway comeback. (2 hrs.)

Mitzi Gaynor Special, on 7 at 9. Carl Reiner, Ken Berry and Linda Hopkins join host Mitzi Gaynor for Mitzi — Roaring in the '20s, a musical salute to the era of flappers, speak-easies and jazz. (60 mins.)

Kojak, on 8 at 8. A repeat episode guest starring Academy Award-winning actress Ruth Gordon as a spiritualist who dreams of women being strangled, and discovers her dreams coming true. (60 mins.)

Nature of Things, on 2 and 6 at 10. A repeat telecast of a CBC documentary examining the wildlife on the islands of Canada's Arctic, including sea birds, walruses and beluga whales. The program focuses on the necessity of protecting the marine and land environments to ensure the survival of the animals. (60 mins.)

Salute to William Wyler, on 7 at 10. The American Film Institute and a group of guest celebrities honor three-time Academy Award-winning film director William Wyler. The program is highlighted by film clips from Wyler's 50-year directing career and top guest presenters including Audrey Hepburn, Barbra Streisand, James Stewart, Greer Garson, Merle Oberon, Charlton Heston, Henry Fonda and special guest First Lady Betty Ford. (90 mins.)

W5 Inquiry, on 8 at 10. A documentary special examing the problems of declining student competency in basic skills and lack of curriculum continuity in the Canadian educational system. (60 mins.)

Bill Moyers' Journal, on 9 at 10:30. Host Bill Moyers talks with famed American composer Aaron Copland. Interspersed with the interview are scenes with Copland conducting in rehearsal and in performance. (60 mins.)

.THE TIMELESS COMEDY OF LAUREL AND HARDY is revived in a new PBS series of 10 programs highlighting 26 of their early films, beginning this Sunday from 4:30 to 7 p.m. on Channel 9. Two of the world's most original clowns, Laurel and Hardy turned hapless accident into comedy greatness in films that spanned the silents to the talkies.

Decline of the Three R's

Education is in a state of crisis. This is the finding of A W5 Inquiry (Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channel 8), into our schools, colleges and universities where disturbing numbers of students say they are not getting the quality of education that society appears to demand. Much of it has to do with the multiplicity of systems in Canada, the failure to define objectives with clarity and the scarcity of universal standards within the various jurisdictions.

The Inquiry unit found that schools have been subjected to widespread experimentation in curricula, teaching methods and the general approach to learning.

"There's confusion at all levels," said Associate Producer Jeff Fry, "over what the schools are supposed to be doing for students. Some educators feel that students should merely be exposed to as many learning experiences as possible. Others are coming back to the insistence on basic skills."

The confusion is showing up among the students. Many feel they have been short-changed by the permissive philosophy of education that swept the country in the 1960s and 1970s. Most point to declining competency in the three R's and to lack of continuity in the curriculum. A W5 Inquiry spoke to students who are begging for more direction, skilled guidance and tougher challenges.

"Universities are blaming high schools," said Fry. "High schools are blaming elemenhigh schools," said Fry. "High general tendency for all the institutions to blame home environment."

Original research has been conducted for the Inquiry unit to indicate the extent of public concern over education and to get an idea of where the system is failing.

A W5 Inquiry, with Reporter Robert Reguly, is produced by Jack McGaw and Associate Producer Jeff Fry for CTV's News, Features and Information Programming Department with research by Beverley Straight.

Film Industry Honors Wyler

Three-time Oscar Award-winning director William Wyler has been selected to receive the fourth annual Life Achievement Award from the American Film Institute for his five decades devoted to the American motion picture history. The presentation of the Award, featuring clips selected from Wyler's finest films and appearances by noted members of the film industry, will be broadcast as a special on Sunday, March 14 (10:00-11:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

Among Wyler's most prominent credits are his Oscar-winning films "Mrs. Miniver," "The Best Years of Our Lives" and the epic-scale drama "Ben Hur." In addition, Wyler has received nine other Oscar nominations for films such as the classic version of the Emily Bronte tale "Wuthering Heights," the taut Lillian Hellman drama "The Little Foxes" (a film that is noted by the industry for its technical innovations as well as fine acting performances), "Friendly Persuasion," the warm and sensitive story of a Quaker family, and the delightful romance "Roman Holiday."

More recently, Wyler has directed the gripping psychological drama "The Collector" and the box office hit "Funny Girl." In announcing the Award, AFI Director George Stevens Jr. stated: "William Wyler has maintained an unsurpassed standard of artistry and taste throughout half a century of moviemaking. The titles of his films are a roster of distinguished achievement and the trustees of the AFI wish to celebrate his uncompromising craftsmanship as well as the humanity of his work which has enriched the culture of our country."

Wyler has worked with some of the finest actors and actresses in film history and has helped many of them achieve honor and recognition. Among the stars he has directed are: Audrey Hepburn, Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, Barbra Streisand, Shirley MacLaine, Charlton Heston, Gary Cooper, Gregory Peck and Laurence Olivier. Wyler, who was selected by a vote of the AFI Board of Trustees, follows three other life achievement award winners: the late John Ford, James Cagney and Orson Welles.

THE CLASSIC 1935 film version of Mutiny on the Bounty, starring Clark Gable (above) and Charles Laughton, which was pre-empted last week, has been re-scheduled for this Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 12.

OZ CO-STAR TROUPES ON

When you're built like a scarecrow and you move like a scarecrow and you even look a little like a scarecrow, there isn't usually much type-casting available.

But Ray Bolger lucked out.

Scarecrows were suddenly at a premium when MGM began casting for The Wizard of Oz, the 1939 motion picture that was destined to become a classic and that launched a relatively unknown youngster named Judy Garland on The Yellow Brick Road to stardom.

The durable fantasy, starring Bolger as the Scarecrow in search of a brain, with Miss Garland, Jack Haley, Bert Lahr and Frank Morgan as his compatriots in the mythical land of Oz, will be rebroadcast as a special Sunday, March 14 (7:00-9:00 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network.

The equally durable Bolger (who, at 72, remains an indefatigable headliner) still considers The Wizard of Oz a singular high point in his long and illustrious career.

"It is a self-renewing hit," he says of the classic film. "It has been seen over and over again through the years, and with each showing it picks up a new audience. Kids whose parents were small children when the movie was first released and whose grandparents and great-grandparents were enthralled with the story when it was published in book form, are 'discovering' the wonderful world of Oz for the first time."

Bolger gives full credit for the property's longevity to "Oz" author L. Frank Baum, whose original story was printed in 1900.

The basic philosophies behind Baum's Wizard of Oz reflect human values that have never changed and will never change, Bolger believes.

"The Tin Woodsman who yearns for a heart, the Scarecrow who quests for a brain, the Lion who seeks courage — they are all of us who long to exchange our weaknesses for strengths," says Bolger.

"And the little girl who discovers, after all her fabulous adventures in a far-off world, that there is really no place like home, has learned a timeless lesson."

Today's Movies

Warning Shot (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Routine 1967 made-for-TV crime-drama starring David Janssen as a police detective trying to clear himself of a manslaughter charge. Supporting cast includes Lillian Gish and George Grizzard.

The Passionate Thief (xx), on 11 at 1. An uneven 1962 Italian-made comedy about a small time actor who inadvertently keeps thwarting the attempts of a pickpocket on New year's Eve, starring Ben Gazzara, Anna Magnani and European actor Toto.

Run, Simon Run (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Burt Reynolds gives a strong performance in this interesting 1970 drama about a modern-day wronged Indian who returns to the reservation after serving a long prison term for a murder he did not commit. Inger Stevens portrays a socialite-turned-social worker with whom Reynolds falls in love. Better than most made-for-TV movies.

Cesar and Rosalie, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1972 French-made drama about a scrap dealer and a cartoonist in love with the same woman, starring Yves Montand and Romy Schneider.

In Broad Daylight (xx), on 12 at 10. Richard Boone, Stella Stevens and Suzanne Pleshette star in this 1971 crime-drama about a blind ex-matinee idol plotting to murder his wife. Interesting characterization by Boone.

The Legend of Lylah Clare (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A somewhat uneven but intriguing 1968 melodrama about a sexy young starlet who resembles a flamboyant star of the thirties (who died mysteriously and tragically on her wedding night) and gets the chance to star in a film based on the life of the late actress. History repeats itself as the director of the film is the husband of the dead star and he falls in love all over again. Kim Novak stars but Peter Finch is outstanding as the tormented husband-director.

Lifeboat (xxx), on 2 at midnight. Alfred Hitchcock directed this 1944 drama about emotions under stress, developed within the confines of a lifeboat occupied by members of a torpedoed ship and by a U-boat commander. Hitchcock's experiment with a restricted setting comes off well, thanks to a fine cast that includes John Hodiak, Tallulah Bankhead, Walter Slezak and William Bendix.

Secret World, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1968 French-made melodrama about a withdrawn child who falls in love with his uncle's pretty young mistress, starring Jean-Francois Maurin as the child and Jacqueline Bisset as the object of his affection.

Sebastian (xx), on 8 at midnight. A lightweight but entertaining 1968 comedy-drama about the adventures of a bachelor in charge of an all-female decoding branch of British intelligence, starring Dirk Bogarde, Susannah York, Lilli Palmer and John Gielgud.

The Man Behind the Gun (xx), on 7 at 12:30. Randolph Scott plays an undercover agent out to smash a revolutionists' plot to make California a separate state, in this 1952 western.

Town Tamer (xx), on 6 at 2 a.m. Routine 1965 western about a frontier lawyer out to revenge his wife's murder, starring Dana Andrews.

The Pursuit of Happiness, on 8 at 2:05 a.m. No rating available on this 1971 drama about youth vs. the Establishment, starring Michael Sarrazin, Barbara Hershey and Arthur Hill.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN — the epic television adaptation of Irwin Shaw's mammoth novel, concludes in a special two-hour presentation on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4. In this scene, Rudy and Marsh (Peter Strauss and Van Johnson) share a jubilant political victory.

Today's Highlights

American Revolution, on 9 at 6:30. Debut of a new PBS telecourse examining America's struggle for independence from colonization through the adoption of the Constitution. (30 mins.)

What Is Truth?, on 8 at 7. Canadian actress and radio-television personality Barbara Hamilton discusses various aspects of women's lib on tonight's program. (30 mins.)

Reach for the Top, on 2 at 7:30. Tonight's contest is between Victoria Senior Secondary and North Island Senior Secondary of Port McNeill. (30 mins.)

Rhoda, on 2, 6 and 7 at 8. Award-winning actress Ruth Gordon guest stars in tonight's repeat in which Rhoda and Joe's apartment is burglarized. Miss Gordon plays Carlton's eccentric mother. (30 mins.)

Ragtime America, on 9 at 8. Max Morath, in a one-man show, recalls turn-of-the century America, offering wry and wistful memories of ragtime musicians and playing some of their tunes, including some by Scott Joplin and Jelly Roll Morton. (40 mins.)

M-A-S-H, on 12 at 8. Tonight's episode is a repeat of the one in which Col. Sherman Potter (Harry Morgan) takes over command of the 4077. (30 mins.)

Rich Man, Poor Man, on 4 at 9. The series expands to two hours for the final episode. Cast includes Peter Strauss, Nick Nolte, Susan Blakely, Van Johnson and Dorothy Malone. (2 hrs.)

Piccadilly Circus, on 9 at 9. A zany version of a children's fairy tale, performed by The Goodies, a trio of British satirists. (60 mins.)

Juno Awards, on 2 and 6 at 9:30. Televised from Toronto's Ryerson Theatre, the Canadian Recording Industry's annual Juno Awards, hosted by John Allan Cameron with scheduled presenters including Randy Bachman, Liona Boyd, Tommy Hunter, Susan jacks, David Clayton Thomas and Sylvia Tyson. Awards include Best Female Artist, Best Male Artist, Best Group, Composer and Folk Singer. (90 mins.)

Birth Without Violence, on 9 at 10:30. A documentary examining the work of French obstetrician Frederick Leboyer, who specializes in teaching techniques minimizing the trauma of childbirth. The film shows Leboyer's method of delivery, which involves placing the newborn infant on the mother's stomach and massaging the child for several minutes. (30 mins.)

Homosexuals: Out of the Shadows, on 4 at 11:30. David Frost hosts this program, first shown in 1975, which includes a survey of how homosexuals have been depicted in films; treated by the media and discriminated in jobs. Frost talks with several members of the Gay Lib movement and interviews a homosexual couple. (90 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Sitting in for Johnny tonight is McLean stevenson who talks with actress Lee Grant. (90 mins.)

Tribute Paid to Women Gold Medalists

Elizabeth Robinson, Mildred Babe Didrickson, Jean Shiley, Eleanor Holm, Fanny Blankers-Koen, Shirley Strickland, Betty Cuthbert, Micheline Ostermeyer, Wilma Rudolph, Wyomia Tyus: each of these women holds the distinction of winning one or more Olympic gold medals.

Women Gold Medal Winners, the third episode in the Olympiad series, will be aired March 16 at 9 p.m. on the CTV Television Network.

Although the modern Olympics were revived in 1896, women were not allowed to enter competition. It was not until the 1912 Stockholm Olympic Games that women were, for the first time, allowed to compete in swimming and tennis events. In this Olympiad 42 women entered swimming and 15 competed in tennis. Fanny Durack set a new world record in the 100-metre freestyle race and became the first woman to win an Olympic gold medal.

In 1922 women held their own track and field competition, "The Women's World Games," following a refusal to participate in the 1924 Olympics. Women from five countries competed in 11 events. Six years later the Olympic committee reversed their decision and at the ninth Olympiad in Amsterdam women were admitted to track and field gymnastics.

The first event, the 100-metre, ended in a virtual tie for three women and after minutes of discussion officials awarded the gold medal to Elizabeth Robinson of the United States. Canadians Fanny Rosenfeld and Ethel Smith were given the same time as the winner, but had lost the honor of being the first woman to win an Olympic track and field championship.

In 1932 Mildred "Babe" Didrickson was the name on everyone's lips. Previous to the 1932 Los Angeles Olympic Games she had established herself first in basketball, and then as a winner in the broad jump, shot putt, high jump and javelin. Olympic rules permitted females to participate in only three events. In her first two events, the javelin and the 80-metre hurdles, she established new Olympic records. She and her teammate, Jean Shiley, shattered the existing high jump record. However, because she went over the bar head first Babe had to settle for a silver medal. Following Olympic competition Babe became a golfer, winning all the world's major tournaments. Babe Didrickson is recognized as the greatest all-round woman athlete of our time.

Eleanor Holm, after winning the gold medal for her backstroke performance in the 1932 Olympics, was the favorite to win in 1936. However, Avery Brundage suspended her while she was en route to Berlin, for drinking aboard ship. It was another American, Marjorie Gestring, at the age of 13 years and 9 months, who won the gold medal.

Not until after the Second World War was the 14th Olympiad held. The 30-year-old Dutch-born Fanny Blankers-Koen became the oldest woman athlete to compete in the 1948 London Olympic Games. Entered in the 100-metre, 200-metre, 80-metre hurdles and 400-metre relay, Fanny returned home to a hero's welcome, the winner of four gold medals. Today, Fanny is the only woman in track and field history to have won four gold medals in one Olympic competition.

Melbourne, 1956, Australian Shirley Strickland won the 80-metre hurdles and became the first woman to win successive gold medals in the same event. Another Australian, Betty Cuthbert, won both the 100-metre and 200-metre runs, to repeat what had been done in Helsinki by her fellow-countrywomah, Marjorie Jackson.

For the first time in 1960 hundreds of millions of people were able to enjoy the spectacle of the 1960 Rome Olympic Games when over 100 networks were granted television rights to broadcast the Games.

In the women's athletic events, the U.S. won only three gold medals, all of them by Wilma Rudolph, a 20-year-old black athlete known as the "Black Gazelle." A polio victim in childhood, Wilma at the age of 10 was unable to walk without braces. Her record time in the 100-metre was not recorded because she achieved it with the help of a strong wind.

Micheline Ostermeyer is one of Europe's renowned concert pianists. In 1948, next to Fanny Blankers-Koen, she was the most outstanding competitor in the 1948 Olympic Games, winning gold medals in the shot putt and discus and a bronze medal in the high jump. Micheline continued to compete in national competition for two years after the Olympics and then returned to the concert stages of the world.

In Mexico, 1968, Wyomia Tyus won the 100-metre dash, fulfilling a commitment she had made in Tokyo to be the first athlete, male or female, to win consecutive gold medals in the 100 metres.

In 1964 the game of volleyball was introduced into the Olympic Games. Although it began in the United States, the world's greatest volleyball teams have come from the Soviet Union and Japan. These two teams have won every gold medal contested in Olympic competition. A women's team, the Kaizuka Amazons, were chosen to represent Japan. In preparation for the 1964 championship their coach set up a training program which defied the imagination and to many was an insult to human dignity with its militaristic rules. To those who could survive, he promised an Olympic gold medal. Both Russia and Japan were undefeated, but in the final round Japan won three straight games.

Who can say whether the victory returned to them any part of what they gave? They are Olympic champions. They endured and they won.

MICHELINE OSTERMEYER — renowned European concert pianist and 1948 Olympic gold medal winner in shot putt and discus, is just one of several top female Olympic athletes profiled in a CTV special to be telecast on Tuesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 8.

Today's Movies

The Day the Fish Came Out (xx), on 8 at 12:45. The talented director Michael Cacoyannis (Zorba the Greek etc.) struck out with this muddled 1967 comedy-drama combining romance with a nuclear crisis in Greece. A good cast (Tom Courtenay, Candice Bergen and Sam Wanamaker) is wasted.

The Reluctant Spy, on 11 at 1. No rating available on this 1963 French-made espionage adventure about a European playboy pressed into the secret service by the security police. Cast is dubbed into English.

Can-Can (xx), on 5 at 3:30. (Part 1.) An unsuccessful 1960 film rendering of Cole Porter's hit Broadway musical about a lawyer who protects a cafe owner when she is accused of presenting the Can-Can, a supposedly lewd dance. The score isn't one of Porter's best and the script lacks true wit, however a top cast (Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier and Louis Jourdan) make it worthwhile. Conclusion tomorrow at the same time.

Hobson's Choice (xxxx), on 9 at 7. A wonderfully bright and entertaining 1954 British-made comedy about a widower whose plan to marry off his daughters backfires. Directed by David Lean with a brilliant performance by Charles Laughton in the title role. Others in a fine supporting cast include John Mills and Brenda de Banzie. Recommended.

The Prisoner of Zenda (xxx), on 12 at 7. A durable, entertaining old swashbuckler about a king's double who is called upon to do an impersonation when the royal one is kidnapped. Filmed in 1937 with a great cast that includes Ronald Coleman, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., David Niven and Madeleine Carroll.

The Smugglers (xx), on 11 at 9. A predictable 1968 made-for-TV drama with a good cast trying unsuccessfully to breath life into stereotyped roles and a routine plot about two American lady tourists who are used as decoys by an international smuggling operation. Cast includes Shirley Booth, Carol Lynley and David Opatoshu.

The House and the Brain, on 4 at 11:45. No rating available on this made-for-TV mystery about a young girl dominated by a sadistic guardian in league with the devil. Cast is unfamiliar.

Beware! the Blob (x), on 12 at 11:45. A 1972 sequel to the 1958 horror thriller about a shapeless mass of ooze that terrorizes mankind, starring Robert Walker, Godfrey Cambridge, Carol Lynley and Larry Hagman.

Two on a Bench (xx), on 6 at midnight. Patty Duke and Ted Bessell star in this lightweight 1971 made-for-TV espionage spoof about a mismatched couple mistaken for international spies. John Astin (Miss Duke's real-life husband) and Alice Ghostley co-star.

Wild in the Streets (xxx), on 8 at midnight. A provocative, inventive and fascinating 1968 drama about the fictitious takeover of the U.S. by a young rock singer who becomes the nation's first hip President. The new head of the country sends everyone over 30 to concentration-type camps, and there are other equally way-out plot developments. An intelligent screenplay enhances the performances of Christopher Jones, Shelley Winters and Hal Holbrook.

Illegal (xx), on 7 at 12:45 a.m. Edward G. Robinson stars in this well-acted but poorly scripted 1955 drama about the rackets and one couple's involvement in them. Nina Foch co-stars with a few brief scenes by Jayne Mansfield.

I Walk the Line (xxx), on 6 at 1:30 a.m. An offbeat but well-acted 1970 drama starring Gregory Peck as a righteous hill-country sheriff whose moral fiber is tested by a moonshiner's sexy young daughter (Tuesday Weld.)

Planet of the Apes (xxxx), on 8 at 2:05 a.m. An excellent 1968 movie adaptation of Pierre Boulle's classic science-fiction adventure about an astronaut who crash-lands on a planet governed by a race of civilized simians. Cast includes Charlton Heston, Roddy McDowall and Kim Hunter. The makeup people who devised the fantastic ape masks rate a special bow.

HOBSON'S CHOICE — a delightfully entertaining 1954 British-made comedy about the misadventures of a tippling Lancashire bootmaker with three marriageable daughters, will be telecast as part of Channel 9's Festival 1976 series, on Tuesday at 7 p.m. Cast includes Charles Laughton and John Mills.

Today's Highlights

Peanuts Special, on 7 at 8 p.m. It's Arbor Day, a brand new Peanuts adventure with Charlie Brown and the gang celebrating a new holiday. The music for this show was the last written by the late Vince Guaraldi. (30 mins.)

Olympiad, on 8 at 9. A documentary special highlighting women who have won gold medals. The program includes some film footage of the early years of women's competition, but the focus of the special is on more recent times and includes the victories of such top women athletes as America's Wilma Rudolph who overcame childhood polio to triumph at the 1960 Rome games; and the great Babe Didrickson, hurdling the 80 meters and throwing the javelin for gold in 1932. (See Page 7 for background article.) (60 mins.)

Tuesday at Nine, on Cable 10 at 9 p.m. Host Charles Barber presents the first part of a two-part broadcast of the lecture given by the internationally renowned thinker Buckminster Fuller last November in Victoria as part of the Menie Brereton Lectures. Fuller, called by some "the Leonardo da Vinci of the Twentieth Century", speaks on the mysteries and workings of our physical universe. (90 mins.)

Balloon Safari, on 12 at 9. A documentary special with wildlife filmmaker Alan Root and his wife Joan exploring East Africa in a hot-air balloon. The couple soar over the famed Serengeti Plain to film herds of wildlife; and over the peak of Mount Kilimanjaro — at 19,340, the highest in Africa. Actor David Niven narrates. (60 mins.)

City of Angels, on 2, 5 and 6 at 10. Tonight's episode finds Jake (series star Wayne Rogers) following an anonymous tip that reopens an old murder case in which two women were twice tried for, but never convicted. (60 mins.)

Family, on 4 at 10. In tonight's episode of this new drama series, Kate (series star Sada Thompson) discovers a lump on her breast, and the Lawrence family struggles through a tense weekend waiting for the Monday-morning results of a biopsy. (60 mins.)

Switch, on 7 and 8 at 10. Singer Wayne Newton guest stars as a Las Vegas entertainer whom Pete and Mac (Robert Wagner and Eddie Albert) are hired to protect from a killer in tonight's episode, which was filmed on location. (60 mins.)

Anyone for Tennyson?, on 9 at 11. Tonight's edition is the first of two programs featuring the works of Pulitzer Prize-winning poets from 1922 to 1950. (30 mins.)

Illinois Primary, on 4, 5, 7 and 12 at 11:30. Programs normally seen at this time will be delayed approximately 15 minutes to one-half hour for this special summary of today's voting results in the Illinois Primary.

Johnny Carson, on 5 at midnight. Sitting in for Johnny tonight is guest host McLean Stevenson. (90 mins.)

Today's Movies

Doctor in Distress (xx), on 8 at 12:45. An entertaining 1963 British-made comedy about the romantic misadventures of a pair of doctors, starring James Robertson Justice, Dirk Bogarde and Samantha Eggar.

The Little Nuns (xxx), on 11 at 1. A charming and tender 1965 Italian-made comedy-drama about the adventures of two nuns who go to the city to protest when the soundwaves of jets overhead threaten to destroy the ancient fresco of their convent. Catherine Spaak and Sylva Koscina star.

Can-Can (xx), on 5 at 3:30. (Part 2) See Tuesday Movies for details.

California Split, on 8 at 9. No rating available on this 1974 comedy about a pair of strangers with gambling fever who team to challenge lady luck in Reno. Directed by Robert Altman and starring George Segal and Elliott Gould.

The Garden of the Finzi-Continis (xxx), on 11 at 9. An Academy Award of Best Foreign Film of 1970 was won by this Italian-made feature directed by Vittorio De Sica. Set in Italy in 1938, the story focuses on one Jewish family at a time when Mussolini's anti-Semitic edicts begin to isolate the Jews from their communities. Cast includes Dominique Sanda and Helmut Berger.

Dead On Target, on 4 at 11:30. An unpreviewed 1976 pilot for a possible adventure series starring Ray Danton as super agent Derek Flint (a role played by James Coburn in the movie, Our Man Flint). In this story, the dashing agent serves as an intermediary in the ransom of an oil-company president kidnapped by members of a liberation group. Supporting cast includes two Canadians — Sharon Acker and Donnelly Rhodes.

The Rounders (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. An entertaining, well-acted 1965 comedy-western starring Glenn Ford and Henry Fonda as a pair of aging, itinerant cowboys in the modern-day west.

Four Men and a Prayer, on 2 at midnight. No rating available on this 1938 drama combining mystery and travel in a story about four sons attempting to clear their father's name. A large cast includes David Niven, Loretta Young, Richard Greene, George Saunders, Barry Fitzgerald and C. Aubrey Smith.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie (xxxx), on 6 at midnight. Maggie Smith won a well deserved Academy Award for her brilliant performance in this superb 1969 British-made drama about an extraordinary teacher who gives her pupils an unusual philosophy of life. An excellent film, well recommended for late night viewing.

For a Few Dollars More (xx), on 8 at 12:15 a.m. Fans of the so-called "spaghetti westerns" will enjoy this 1966 Italian-made effort, directed by Sergio Leone and starring Clint Eastwood as the violence-prone stranger with no name. One of three which were box-office smashes but panned by the critics.

Our Men in Bagdad (x), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. A low-budget 1967 Italian-made espionage adventure, set in the Middle East and starring Rory Calhoun.

Company of Killers (xx), on 6 at 2:30 a.m. A competent cast (Van Johnson, Ray Milland, John Saxon) highlights this 1970 made-for-TV crime-drama about a police hunt for a hired killer.

Today's Highlights

Young People's Opera, on 2 and 6 at 4:30. The Canadian Opera Company performs The Glove, a one-act comic piece inspired by the Schiller poem about a knight challenged by a princess to prove his love by retrieving her glove from the cage of a circus lion. (30 mins.)

Music Special, on 9 at 7. Swing, jazz and pop blend in a concert with Mel Torme, Woody Herman's band, and members of the Des Moines Symphony Orchestra. (60 mins.)

Drama Special, on 9 at 8. The Evacuees — a portrait of Second World War England seen through the eyes of two schoolboy brothers. In 1939, they and their classmates are evacuated from Manchester when war with Germany is declared and their hometown becomes a possible bombing target. Trying to cope with homesickness and adjust to the stern, aloof couple with whom they have been given refuge, the brothers come up with a most unusual plan to escape their unhappy situation. Written by Jack Rosenthal, the play is semi-autobiographical and was filmed in Manchester and Blackpool with locations specially chosen to look like 1939. This 1975 BBC production was an International Emmy winner. (90 mins.)

Documentary Special, on 9 at 9:30. Benito Mussolini, My Husband — a subjective and sympathetic portrait of Italy's Second World War dictator and leader of the Fascist regime, as seen through the eyes of his wife Rachele. The program states that it is by no means an apology or a partisan statement, rather it is a reconstruction, confirmed by testimony from authoritative political leaders of various countries, on events that changed the destiny of the world. (60 mins.)

NBC Reports, on 5 at 10. The Big Dog Track in the Sky — Plainfield Bets Its Future, a report on legalized gambling in the state of Connecticut. (60 mins.)

CBS News Special, on 7 at 10 and 12 at 10:30. The Second Battle of Britain, a report on the war being waged — and lost — on the socio-economic front in Great Britain. Correspondent Morley Safer call Britain "a nation going broke," and cites some key elements in its economic decline. Among those interviewed are Winston Churchill Jr., a Conservative member of Parliament; and author Malcolm Muggeridge. (60 mins.)

Decades of Decision, on 9 at 11. First in a series of programs dramatizing America's Revolutionary period, hosted by Henry Fonda. Each program is made up of two stories; tonight an incident at Valley Forge (1777-78); and one from Shays Rebellion (1786-87). (60 mins.)

That Cold Day in the Park (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Familiar Vancouver locations add some local interest in this otherwise boring 1969 psychological drama about a sexually-repressed spinster and the odd young man she admits to her home. Cast includes Sandy Dennis, Michael Burns and John Garfield Jr.

Bluebeard (xx), on 11 at 1. A 1963 French-made version of the story of Landru, the notorious killer who did away with lonely women during the First World War. European cast includes Charles Denner, Danielle Darrieux, Michele Morgan and Hildegarde Neff.

Son of Robin Hood (x), on 5 at 3:30. The son in question is actually a girl who arrives in medieval England to protect the Boy Prince from evildoers, in this 1959 children's adventure, filmed in England with a British cast.

The Candidate (xxxx), on 5 at 9. Robert Redford turns in an excellent performance in this fascinating 1972 film about politics, focusing on an idealistic legal-aid lawyer who gets lured into a dark horse campaign for the Senate, and tries to avoid selling out or resorting to demagoguery and back-room deals. Slick, penetrating, thanks to an Oscar-winning script, well handled by Redford. Recommended.

Union Station (xxx), on 11 at 9. A suspenseful, well-acted 1950 crime-drama about a police manhunt for the kidnapper of a blind girl, starring William Holden, Barry Fitzgerald, Robert Preston and Nancy Olson.

The Caretakers (x), on 12 at 9:30. The problems of patients and staff in a large mental institution gets crude and insensitive treatment with this melodramatic 1963 movie, starring Robert Stack, Joan Crawford, Polly Bergen and Janis Paige. It's a touchy subject which needs careful handling, which it doesn't get here. Of the cast, Miss Paige fares best.

Chandler (x), on 12 at 11:30. A muddled 1971 crime-drama, filmed in the style of the detective films of the 1940s. Warren Oates drags his way through the title role with a fine actress, Leslie Caron, wasted in the supporting cast.

The League of Gentlemen (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. An excellent 1961 British-made blend of comedy and suspense about a retired ex-army officer who recruits some of his former men to pull off a big robbery. The script is witty and stylish, the direction perceptive with fine performances by Jack Hawkins, Richard Attenborough and Nigel Patrick.

Sorry, Wrong Number (xxx), on 6 at midnight. The old radio suspense classic about an invalid woman who accidentally overhears her own murder being plotted on the telephone, gets good treatment in this 1948 movie rendering starring Barbara Stanwyck, Burt Lancaster and Wendell Corey.

Sweet November (xxx), on 8 at midnight. Sandy Dennis and Anthony Newley star in this poignant 1968 drama about an unusual relationship between a bohemian New Yorker and a staid Englishman she invites to share her flat in Brooklyn.

Woman's World (xxx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. An all-star cast headed by Lauren Bacall, Clifton Webb, June Allyson, Fred MacMurray and Van Heflin highlights this slick and sophisticated 1954 story about the behind-the-scenes competition for a top industrial job.

The Birdmen (xx), on 6 at 1:55 a.m. Routine Second World War story, filmed for TV in 1971 about a group of Allied PoWs plotting an escape from a top-security German prison, starring Doug McClure, Richard Basehart and Chuck Connors.

The Big Combo (xx), on 8 at 2:25 a.m. A slightly better-than-average 1955 crime-drama about policemen and their battle with the syndicate, starring Cornel Wilde and Richard Conte.

ROBERT REDFORD stars in The Candidate, an excellent political drama about an idealistic legal-aid lawyer who is lured into a dark-horse campaign for the U.S. Senate, to be telecast on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 5. An incisive portrait of a seldom-seen side of U.S. politics with a fine Academy Award-winning script.

Today's Highlights

Carol Burnett, on 2 and 6 at 8. A repeat telecast of the show featuring guest star Shirley MacLaine. (60 mins.)

Mac Davis Show, on 5 at 8. Return for a third season of this musical-variety series hosted by Mac Davis. Guests tonight include Dean Martin and rock star Tina Turner. (60 mins.)

The Way It Was, on 9 at 8:10. Tonight's edition of this sports retrospective series spotlights the 1955 horseracing match between Swaps and Nashua. Guests include Willie Shoemaker who rode Swaps, and Eddie Arcaro who was in the saddle for Nashua. (30 mins.)

Drama Special, on 9 at 9. Moon for the Misbegotten, Eugene O'Neill's last completed play is performed for television by the cast of the acclaimed Broadway revival — Jason Robards, Colleen Dewhurst, Ed Flanders and John O'Leary. The setting is a ramshackle Connecticut farmhouse in 1923, with the story focusing on three main characters — Tyrone, an alcoholic self-destructive actor; Josie, a coarse spinster; and Josie's cantankerous father Phil, who schemes to bring the couple together (2½ hrs.)

Maclear, on 8 at 9:30. Guns: The Fatal Freedom, a report on the increase in crimes involving guns in the United States and Canada. The program includes examples of the glorification of gun use in the movies; and comments on why some people buy guns. Host is Michael Maclear. (30 mins.)

Vancouver Symphony, on 2 at 10. A concert special with musical director Kazuyoshi Akiyama conducting the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra in works by Brahms and Bach. Soloist is pianist Denis Brassard. (60 mins.)

Harry O, on 4 and 8 at 10. Tonight's episode serves as a pilot for a possible spinoff series, with young criminologist Lester Hodges (Les Lannon in a recurring role) teaming with his college mentor to track down the killer who is systematically murdering member's of Lester's family. Guest cast includes Keye Luke, Anne Archer, Sorrell Brooke, Roddy McDowall, Stuart Whitman and Dean Jagger. (60 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. McLean Stevenson guest hosts for Johnny tonight. (90 mins.)

Book Beat, on 9 at 11:30. Host Bob Cromie talks with former New York Mayor John Lindsay, who talks about his first novel, The Edge, about a possible military takeover in the United States. Lindsay explains why he wrote the book and assesses the current political climate in America. (30 mins.)

LAVERNE AND SHIRLEY

ABC-TV's New Comedy Hit

Penny Marshall (Laverne) and Cindy Williams (Shirley)

By DON SHIRLEY

(WP) — What were Laverne and Shirley" laughing at recently? Get this — a man dressed only in his underwear walked unexpectedly into a room of mixed company. In 1959. Re-enacting a stunt from four years earlier.

This may not sound like the freshest act in town, but don't tell ABC. Laverne and Shirley, which first appeared on ABC, Jan. 27 (and is on every Tuesday at 8:30, Channel 4), is the quickest television hit since 1968.

"Faster than an Olympic skier," gasped the ad in Variety. "Able to leap over comedies, dramas and detective thrillers in a single bound. Look! Up in the ratings! It's no bird. It's no plane. It's ... Number 1 'Laverne and Shirley.'"

Half of the American television sets that were turned on (35 per cent of all American television sets) were turned to Laverne and Shirley on Jan. 27. Its ratings led the list of prime time programs that week.

Laverne and Shirley dropped to fourth place the following week, and skeptics predicted further decline the third week. For Fonzie — a popular character from Happy Days, the new show's parent — would disappear from Laverne and Shirley for the first time.

No sweat, as Fonzie might say. The ratings for Laverne and Shirley again led the pack. After four episodes, the new show's average rating was 30.9, its average share 45.

That means about 50 million people are watching a series about the spunky young women who work in a brewery and manage to have a barrel of fun on and off the job as they face life in Milwaukee in the 1950s," in the words of an ABC press release.

What's going on? Archie Bunker, Lucy, Mary Richards and the Happy Days gang are getting together.

"It seems to be time for blue-collar comedy," says Garry Marshall, chief writer for Laverne and Shirley and executive producer of it and Happy Days with Thomas L. Miller and Edward K. Milkis. Archie Bunker works on a loading dock, and a rash of blue-collar comedies, often ethnic, have followed in his name. So Laverne and Shirley work in a brewery (Marshall considered an ad agency but says "I couldn't find the humor in it"). And their families are Italian and Irish, respectively.

"I feel the country misses Lucy very badly," adds Marshall. So Laverne and Shirley get involved in Lucyish situations. But since the advent of Mary Richards, it's not cool for women on television to rely on a Desi to untangle their problems. So Laverne and Shirley are single, live together without men and rely on each other.

They do all this in 1959. Which is where Happy Days, from which Laverne and Shirley was spun off, comes in.

Happy Days is back in the '50s too, but the resemblance is more superficial than it looks. Laverne and Shirley were minor characters on Happy Days three times. They had only been on the show once when the decision was made to spin them off.

ABC programming chief Fred Silverman wanted a Happy Days spinoff, asked for Fonzie, got Laverne and Shirley and approved their show on the basis of a 10-minute tape of Penny Marshall (Laverne and Cindy Williams' (Shirley) chatting.

The actresses hadn't worked together before Happy Days, and weren't sure they wanted Laverne and Shirley. Two shows were being developed for Penny Marshall, who made her name on Garry Marshall's The Odd Couple and the Paul Sand series. Williams was aiming for a film career, rather successfully (American Graffiti, Travels With My Aunt, The Conversation).

The birth of Laverne and Shirley was a sudden decision, not the inevitable product of Happy Days, which is oriented around the suburbs, the high school, the family. Laverne and Shirley is in "A not-so-nice part of Milwaukee," says Garry Marshall. Its characters are three years out of high school and look older (Penny Marshall is 32, Williams is 28). Their parents are widowed or divorced.

"Laverne and Shirley is much hipper than Happy Days," says Garry Marshall. "They don't hang out at the malt shop. And the pizza Place (which Laverne's father owns) is full of servicemen and hard hats." There's even going to be a strike at the brewery.

Currently, Laverne and Shirley are much hipper than ABC, too. The network censors "don't like girls talking about sex," says Penny Marshall. A discussion of "putting out" was replaced with talk of "petting" and being "very . . . friendly." A reference to "wait-for-the-wedding-night Feeney" will probably have to go. "What could be cleaner than that?" asks Williams.

Penny Marshall points to the same problem in costuming. "I thought we should wear black neckerchiefs. tight pants and have our hair in rollers most of the time," she says. "But ABC wants two nice girls and the ability to say "Oh my, look at the situation they get in his week.'"

Neither star lived a life like Laverne's or Shirley's. The closest they've come to blue-collar work is a stint as a waitress on the graveyard shift for Williams and work as a department store clerk for Marshall. And they were a little young to appreciate the 50's youth culture.

Despite the trappings from television comedy of the '70s, though, Laverne and Shirley is rooted in a much earlier style. The stars know it and enjoy it.

EUGENE O'NEILL's A Moon for the Misbegotten, with Jason Robards, Colleen Dewhurst and Ed Flanders re-creating their acclaimed Broadway roles, will be telecast on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9.

Guns — The Fatal Freedom

A sign above the counter of a Boston gun store bears a quotation fron the U.S. Constitution: "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free State the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed". Most Canadians are all too aware of the violence which pervades many U.S. cities, but may not realize the extent to whih crimes involving guns have increased in Canada. Correspondent Michael Maclear examines the controversial subject of gun control legislation and the mentality of those who oppose it in the "Maclear" episode, "Guns: The Fatal Freedom," Thursday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 8.

In Montreal, armed robberies have tripled and murders have more than doubled within a year. An exgunman refers to Montreal as "holdup city of the world". The fear that makes the average citizen in cities such as Boston or Detroit afraid to leave his home after dark may be spreading across the border. A feeling of grim fatalism, that our cities will go the way of the States simply because of the number of guns available, may conceivably deter Canada from clamping down on violence until it's too late.

There are existing laws, which if enforced to the hilt, could reduce the number of crimes-with-guns. However, opponents to gun control legislation are fierce in their defense. There is the hunting enthusiast, the gun collector, the man who thinks he can defend his family and property ... in reality, five times as many family members die from household handgun accidents as those killed by intruding strangers. Boston Police Commissioner DiGratzia feels strongly that there is no legitimate reason to own a handgun ... "As far as I'm concerned, a handgun is a people killer ... a people hunter ... that's all it's for ... nothing else."

To a great extent, Canada is a "hostage of American federal policy", another U.S. observer tells Maclear. "The flow of handguns from loose states to tight states is tremendous" and the subsequent flow across the Canadian border limits Canada's options as long as U.S. "federal policy and enforcement are as lax as they are".

Film clips from violent movies, real-life assassination attempts, and scenes from the funerals of recent publicized victims of shootings reveal the irony of our society's romanticizing of fictional and historical crime and the actual tragic reality of gun-violence in today's world.

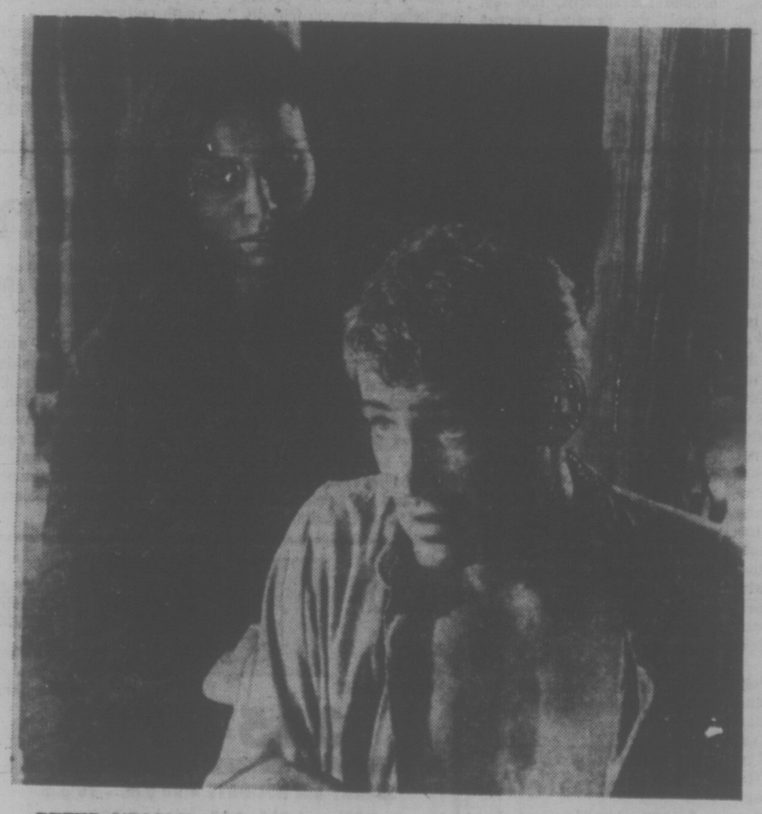
Today's Movies

Adventures of the Queen (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Robert Stack stars in this 1975 made-for-TV drama about a psychotic threatening to blow up a cruise ship. This movie was filmed aboard the Queen Mary, and co-stars David Hedison, Bradford Dillman and Ralph Bellamy.

Overland Stage Raiders, on 11 at 1. A 1938 John Wayne western, one of dozens he made during the thirties and early forties — all low-budget and most of them bad.

The House That Wouldn't Die (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Thriller fans will enjoy this well-produced 1970 chiller about a woman who inherits an old Pensylvania mansion said to be haunted. A competent cast includes Barbara Stanwyck and Richard Egan.



PETER O'TOOLE and Israeli actress Daliah Lavi star in the lavishly-produced 1965 adaptation of the Joseph Conrad novel about the adventures of a British seaman in the Far East, to be telecast on Friday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 12.

Time Travelers, on 4 at 9. An unpreviewed 1976 made-for-TV science fiction adventure, produced by Irwin Allen (responsible for The Poseidon Adventure, The Towering Inferno etc.) The familiar premise of time travel gets a new working in a story about two men who are transported back to 1871 Chicago — on the eve of the great fire. The story is highlighted by excellent special effects and a competent cast that includes Richard Basehart and Sam Groom.

The Skull, on 11 at 9. No rating available on this 1965 British-made thriller about the reincarnation of the skull of the notorious Marquis de Sade.

Busting, on 7 at 9:30. Robert Blake and Elliott Gould star in this 1974 made-for-TV crime-drama about a pair of over-zealous vice-squad cops working in the seamier parts of Los Angeles. (This film was a "quickie made just before Blake struck gold with his hit series Baretta.)

Lord Jim (xxx), on 12 at 9:30. Stunning on-location photography in Singapore, Cambodia and Hong Kong highlights this lavish-produced and well-acted 1965 film rendering of the Joseph Conrad novel about the adventures of a British seaman in the Far East. Produced, written and directed by the multi-talented Richard Brooks and starring Peter O'Toole, Eli Wallach, James Mason and Israeli actress Daliah Lavi.

The Vulture, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1967 thriller about a mutant terrorizing the Cornish countryside, starring Akim Tamiroff, Robert Hutton and Broderick Crawford.

Moon of the Wolf (xx), on 8 at midnight. David Janssen and Barbara Rush head a cast of familiar TV faces in this low-budget 1973 thriller about the search for a mysterious killer beast in Louisiana bayou country.

The Mad Room (xxx), on 7 at midnight. Thriller fans may enjoy this somewhat gruesome 1969 tale of insanity and murder, based on the classic horror story, Ladies in Retirement, and starring Shelley Winters, Stella Stevens, Beverly Garland and Michael Burns.

Walk on the Wild Side (xx), on 12 at 12:35 a.m. A botched-up 1962 film version of Nelson Algren's hard-hitting novel about the sinful side of life in New Orleans, starring Laurence Harvey, Jane Fonda, Anne Baxter, Barbara Stanwyck and Capucine.

The Thing with Two Heads, on 8 at 1:30 a.m. A bizarre 1972 made-for-TV thriller about human transplants, starring Ray Milland and ex-football star turned actor Rosey Grier.

Blood and Lace, on 6 at 1:55 a.m. No rating available on this gruesome 1971 thriller about mayhem and murder at a sinister country orphanage, starring Gloria Grahame.

Invisible Agent, on 7 at 2:20 a.m. A 1942 thriller about a U.S. spy in Germany who has a secret formula that makes him invisible to the Nazis, starring Jon Hall and Peter Lorre.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 12:30 and 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-host Barry Newman (star of Petrocelli) welcome among today's guests Steven Weed, co-author of My Search for Patty Hearst (and her former fiance); Loretta Switt (from M-A-S-H); and Frank Sinatra Jr. (90 mins. on 12; 60 mins. on 7.)

McCloud, on 8 at 7:30. The attempted assassination of a Sydney police officer brings McCloud (series star Dennis Weaver) to Australia in tonight's episode which was filmed on location. Guest cast includes Lloyd Bochner and Victoria Shaw. (2 hrs.)

Dr. Seuss Special, on 7 and 12 at 8. A repeat telecast of the popular, Horton Hears a Who, about the adventures of a good-hearted elephant who comes to the rescue of the microscopic land of Who-ville. (30 mins.)

Flip Wilson Special, on 7 and 12 at 8:30. A display of athletic skills and on-location filming in the Far East highlights this variety special hosted by Flip Wilson. Highlights include Flip getting a lesson on sword-smanship and appearing on a Hong Kong TV show; and taking a plane ride through the Grand Canyon. (60 mins.)

Police Story, on 2, 5 and 6 at 10. Repeat of the episode that takes a 24-hour look at various problems faced by members of the vice squad, with Paul Burke, Hari Rhodes, Ron Leibman and Janis Paige. (60 mins.)

Ellery Queen, on 6 at 10. Tonight's episode finds Ellery and his policeman father (series stars Jim Hutton and David Wayne) in Hollywood to see one of Ellery's books transformed into a movie. But the glamor of tinsel town wears off as the production becomes a hotbed for scandal and murder. Guest cast includes Vincent Price, Barbara Rush, Troy Donahue and Noah Beery. (60 mins.)

Skiing Free, on 4 at 10:30. Highlights from the Colgate Women's Freestyle Skiing Championships, held recently in Stowe, Vermont. Events include mogul; aerial or "hot dogging"; and ballet on skis. Top entrants include defending champ Genia Fuller, former Olympian Suzy Chaffee and Marion Post. (30 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Guest host McLean Stevenson welcomes jazz singer Cleo Laine and her musician husband John Dankworth to tonight's show. (90 mins.)

'Rita Joe' Author Profiled In Weekly CBC Radio Series

The first in a series of CBC Radio programs dealing with playwrights in the contemporary Canadian theatre, devised by drama critic and editor Peter Hay, chronicles the harsh and unpoetic circumstances which have moulded George Ryga into one of the leading dramatic poets in the literature of English Canada. This 90-minute profile, A Long Day's Journey into Light, will be aired on CBC Tuesday Night, March 16 at 8:03 p.m. (on CBC-FM's Encore, Sat., March 20 at 4:03 p.m.).

Ryga's 20-year career has spanned poetry, song, novels, TV and radio, documentaries, screenplays and the stage, all accompanied by fierce controversy among the critics, the public, the press and even in the House of Commons. He is still banned from the Vancouver Playhouse, which he helped to fame in the '60s, following the commissioning and rejection of Captives of the Faceless Drummer.

Half the program is composed of first-person accounts by Ryga of his childhood on a farm in northern Alberta, the marginal existence of his Ukrainian parents and the people around him, his meagre formal education, the shaping of his sensibilities in literature and his political views.

The rest is devoted to excerpts from his major plays, The Ecstacy of Rita Joe, Captives of the Faceless Drummer, Sunrise on Sarah, Grass and Wild Strawberries, and his latest, Paracelsus.

Ryga's work in the contemporary theatre as well as his human qualities are discussed and warmly recalled by actress Frances Hyland, director George Bloomfield, and two former artistic directors of the Vancouver Playhouse, Malcolm Black and Joy Coghill, all of whom were involved in the original creation of Rita Joe in 1967.

Rita Joe had a profound impact on the awakening struggles of native peoples. It has received dozens of stage productions, including London and Washington; the ballet version toured the world with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet; and in book form it can be considered a rare best seller.

Production of the March 16th edition of CBC Tuesday Night is by Don Mowatt in Vancouver.

BEST OF AIR FARCE AGAIN

Back by popular demand are highlights from the past three seasons on The Royal Canadian Air Farce broadcasts of March 14 and 28. The free-wheeling comedy series is heard Sundays at 7:03 p.m. on CBC-AM; the dates for the CBC-FM repeats are Saturdays, March 20 and April 3 at 8:03 p.m.

To date, the two sketches getting the most response are The Best of Viewpoint, starring soon-to-retire CBC announcer Earl Cameron as special guest, and one featuring a hilarious attempt by Robert Stanfield to deliver a speech written in French. Air Farce star Dave Broadfoot plays the retired P.C. leader struggling to deliver a speech in English which he's just discovered was written in French.

Sandwiched in between these two request shows on March 21 (March 27 on CBC-FM) is a salute to the American Bicentennial, which contains a few friendly digs at our neighbors to the south, including President Gerald Ford, the late Benjamin Franklin and Bert Parks.

But it's all in good fun, and not to be taken seriously. The laughter generated by Roger Abbott, Dave Broadfoot, Don Ferguson, Luba Goy and John Morgan is contagious. And, good news for all you Farce-o-philes out there. The Royal Canadian Air Farce continues until the end of the season in June, so there are lots more opportunities for the Sunday giggles on CBC Radio.

Trial Runs of a Writer

However much one may admire the evocative power of the printed word, there is one thing it simply cannot do. It cannot reproduce sound. Oh, a writer can always bash about in an onomatopoeic frenzy of honks, quacks, tinkles and booms. He can describe a specific impact on the air waves until purple ink flows from his ears. But he cannot, try as he may, transform a printed approximation into an audible reality.

Ordinarily, the reader is perfectly happy with this imperfect arrangement. After all, if it's mere sound he's after, he can easily satisfy a week's requirements by spending ten minutes in a room with a stereo set and a teen-ager who's not wearing earphones.

Very occasionally, however, a book will come along which virtually cries out for genuine sound accompaniment. McClelland and Stewart decided they had such a book in Margaret Laurence's novel The Diviners, which was issued to reviewers along with a 45-rpm recording of songs composed by its balladeer hero and his daughter. They were well done in a deceptively artless sort of way, and caught the spirit of the book so well that they became an important link between the reader and Margaret Laurence's story.

Now a new book from Macmillan, for all of its wealth of wit and wisdom, has left me heartily wishing for sound accompaniment. "This is James M. Minifie, speaking from Washington" — remember that famous voice enunciating (James M. Minifie did not "speak," he enunciated) that famous line? How I wish Expatriate, the second and last volume of Minifie's memoirs, could enunciate as well!

Expatriate takes up the Minifie story where Homesteader, his account of his prairie boyhood in Saskatchewan, leaves off. Expatriate chronicles Minifie's years as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, his short-lived and lively spell as a European tour conductor, and his career, both as a foreign correspondent and as a deskman, with the New York Herald-Tribune. We follow Minifie to Paris in 1930; to Barcelona, Madrid and Guernica in 1936, followed by three years in Mussolini's Rome; and to London in 1940 until the loss of an eye during the blitz brought him back to New York just in time for Pearl Harbor.

In 1942 Minifie left the Tribune and joined the Office of Strategic Services, Psychological Warfare Branch ("a bowl of the oddest fish I have ever seen assembled in one container"), which brought him to Sicily, Naples, Rome and Salzburg by 1945. At this point Minifie, who was now 45, suffered a severe heart attack and returned to the Washington bureau of the Tribune. From 1953 until his retirement to Victoria in 1968, he worked as full-time Washington correspondent for the CBC, bringing a characteristic note of sanity to the reporting of news from the eras of Truman, McCarthy, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

In 1974 James M. Minifie died, leaving his memoirs completed to 1953. The result is Expatriate, a 212-page collection of fact and informed opinion spanning 30 years.

Minifie's life was so full that compressing 30 years of it into 212 pages is a considerable feat in itself. He writes in a tight, densely-populated prose that demands close attention from his reader, and he has small space to spare for the details of his non-professional life. Consequently the reader is inordinately curious to know what became of the first Mrs. Minifie, who disappears from his pages without a trace. For that matter, all personal relationships are minimized in Expatriate, unlike Homesteader, in which they take pride of place. This would be a serious liability in almost any other memoir.

Expatriate, however, is too full for us to quibble long over what is left out. Minifie's first-person encounters with the great are hugely fascinating, as are his afterthoughts: "I repeated with J.F.K. the mistake I had made with F.D.R. and Truman, that of idolizing him, so I was blind to his faults, which might have been disastrous for his great office had he lived, for he was arrogant, tyrannical, and ruthless."

Minifie's many adventures included being captured by "Franco's Moorish auxiliaries," an interview with Mussolini, a hair-raising ride on an ancient destroyer on convoy duty (it ran into an "unidentified floating object" which turned out to be the Isle of Man), and a narrow escape at Pompeii, where Mt. Vesuvius was hurling out "socoriae the size of cowpats" and lava galore: "I had no mind to be a celebrity to be viewed for a dime."

Expatriate will amply repay the serious reader. I enjoyed it, both for what it contains and for what it recalls. But I would have enjoyed it still more if somehow it had managed to contain a sample recording which began, "This is James M. Minifie, speaking from Washington."

EXPATRIATE, by James M. Minifie. Macmillan, $11.95.

By JACK SCOTT

The magnificent, two-volume biography of Virginia Woolf by her nephew, Quentin Bell, following on the diary entries edited by her husband, Leonard Woolf, are, it turns out, only the beginning to an understanding of the finest woman writer of all time.

Much more insight lies ahead with the promised publication of her complete diaries, currently in the process of being edited by Olivier Bell, and now we have the first of no less than six volumes of Virginia Woolf's letters, edited by the well-known English biographer, Nigel Nicolson, assisted by Dr. Joanne Tautmann, an American professor and specialist in Virginia Woolf's life and her writings.

The question will naturally arise: Is there a danger in penetrating too deeply into the private, often tortured, world of a writer whose works of art remain monuments to beauty, clarity, brilliance and humanity?

The first volume of her letters, covering the early period until her 30th year when she married Leonard, is particularly vulnerable to that fear. Virginia's earlier letters were sometimes cloyingly girlish, — often they were to Ape, Toad, Billy Goat, Sparrow and other friends and relatives so nicknamed — and they brim with idle gossip, mock flirtations, whimsical weather reports, personal and precocious observations of people we'll never know, occasionally the babblings of a compulsive letter-writer who was more prolific than she might have been in the knowledge that these, someday — more than 30 years after her death by suicide, as a matter of fact — would be resurrected for public view. There are, as it happens, 638 letters in this volume alone, though she had yet to publish her first novel, The Voyage Out.

Yet Virginia Woolf, like other writers of genious, could hardly scribble a laundry list without making it eminently readable and, too, it's evident that, with few exceptions, these letters are trial runs for the ideas and the distinctive style that were her's alone.

As such, whether simply amusing or with her slowly-emerging gift for the profound, they offer a revealing look at the doubts, the searching, the originality that have made her novels as powerful today as they were when first published.

Any assiduous reading between the lines reveals that side of Virginia Woolf's character that sometimes obscures the master of her craft. The reader will find here, for example, the evidence of her intense relationship with older women, notably Violet Dickinson, her senior by 17 years, to whom most of these letters are directed; her boredom with most men and her status as a determined virgin when she married Leonard ("He interests me immensely, besides all the rest"); and, too, the evidence of those bouts of insanity that were to plague all her days and in the end, to take her life.

VIRGINIA WOOLF . . . a private world

But the Virginia Woolf that emerges in this first volume is more often the ebullient, teasing, warm-hearted child and young woman who escapes from her shyness with words and thoughts, whose imagination soared so often on wings of fantasy and whose life was motivated by a need to give and receive affection.

Nicolson, in an eloquent introduction, describes her letter-writing compunction as "a light kiss, a paper dart tossed in a friend's direction to be thrown away or playfully returned."

Many of these letters — and they begin when she was six — reveal the great natural talent of a descriptive writer. Thus, long before her work was put between covers, she could record a meeting with the stuttering Henry James that could hardly be more cruelly exact: "Henry James fixed me with his staring blank eye — it is like a child's marble — and said 'My dear Virginia, they tell me— they tell me — they tell me — that YOU — as indeed being your father's daughter nay your grandfather's grandchild — the descendant I may say of a century — of a century — of quill pens and ink — ink — ink pots, yes, yes, yes, they tell me — ahm um — that you, that you, that you write in short."

Even in her darker moods of the mental break-down that made so much of her life the life of an invalid, she wrote with admirable sensitivity. Thus, confined to a mental home, she could explain to a friend, "I have been in the garden for two hours and feel quite normal. I feel my brain like a pear to see if it's ripe; it will be exquisite by September." Nicolson, himself, pondering her phrase, "We laughed till the spiders waltzed in the corners and were strangled in their own webs," wonders of it is madness or genius that has created the fantasy.

Her own key to the beauty and timelessness of these letters came when she wrote, "I like thoughts in a letter, not facts alone." Again, to another friend, she reflected, "A true letter should be a film of wax pressed close to the graving in the mind" and "The way to get life into letters is to be interested in other people."

These are truisims, too, of the novels that lay ahead and it seems clear that many of her enduring achievements began in such simple, experimental writing. That alone makes this volume and the five to come nothing less than literary treasures.

THE FLIGHT OF THE MIND: The Letters of Virginia Woolf, 1888 to 1912, edited by Nigel Nicolson with Joanne Tautmann. Clarke, Irwin. $17.50.

The Way They Think It Was

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Here's a question which will not appear in any other item on this book page: Why a book page anyway?

Well, there's the obvious reason of reporting what's new in books. And then there's the fact that people are paid for writing, even book reviews. And also there's maybe even the reviewer who wants both of those and wants to make a point, as well.

Put this review in a fourth category — if you have a liking or even a shelf for show biz books, you might try A Pictorial History of Radio in Canada by Sandy Stewart, and Tube of Plenty by Eric Barnouw.

Stewart is a CBC backstage veteran who writes authoritatively and interestingly about his topic, which really is A Partly Pictorial and Mostly Verbal History of Pre-Rock Radio in Eastern Canada.

He left out such western stalwarts as newscaster Earle (Mr. Good Evening) Kelly and the builder of the first western Canadian newsroom and planner of Canadian Press radio news, Sam Ross. He also says TV killed radio and that's wrong, if you like hotliners or rock or sports or classical music, as you have every right to do.

Barnouw is a dramatic arts expert and U.S. TV producer and writer who has subtitled his book The Evolution of American Television and then blamed virtually every change in TV's 25 years on McCarthyism, blacklisting and similar fears.

Did I hear someone say that's picky? Wrong — it's basic. The thing today, as these books show, is not to tell it like it is but like you think it was.

There's less of that in Stewart's book so it goes on my crowded shelf of show-biz books while Tube of Plenty is headed for the next bazaar whose collectors come to the door. If you buy it, you can thank the fact that there's a book page.

The Unpleasant Truth

In 1934, when he was 41, Arnold Toynbee decided to distil his learning in a monumental work grandly titled A Study of History. His publishers, delighted with the idea, rashly included in their contract a promise to publish any further book he chose to write.

Twenty-seven years later, Toynbee produced the 12th and final volume of his Study, and as he was then 72 his publishers must have felt they were home free. To their dismay they were to discover that his prolificity increased with age and that his future work was filled with prophecies of doom and became increasingly unsalable. There was a palpable sigh of relief emitted by these long-suffering publishers when Toynbee laid down his quill just before he died last October at the age of 86.

Almost to the very end, Toynbee churned out books and long-winded essays on the same theme: each and every current event lent emphasis to his belief we were witnessing the decay of Western civilization. His sense of doom was undoubtedly correct but a litany requires responses and there were none. Anyway, if the public had heeded his warnings it would have demolished his thesis!

Toynbee's mantle has been inherited by Robert Nisbet, who embellishes the theme in Twilight of Authority. Comparisons are odious so let me state at once that Professor Nisbet, unlike the later Toynbee, is never despairful and that he cloaks his considerable learning in vibrant prose that rivets the reader's attention.

Nisbet argues that modern liberal democracy is not to be spared the kind of erosion and decay that both Plato and Aristotle declared endemic in all forms of state.

He maintains that the political community in the contemporary West has broken down, that the erosion of patriotism, the decline of political ideology, and the moribundity of political parties form the background for the eruption of executive power.

This is not, of course, an original argument (see Toynbee and others) but Nisbet brings a fresh view and trenchant attitude to this vitally important topic. His argument is so cogent that to read this book is to be reluctantly convinced that we are living in a twilight age where we are witnessing a political and cultural crisis similar to that preceding the fall of Rome.

The parallels are obvious to anyone well versed in history — when they are intelligently brought to our attention. The trouble is most of us prefer the ostrich-like tendency of refusing to relate present to past. Nisbet's salutary contribution is to compel us to face reality.

After reading the first few pages of Twilight of Authority I started to make notes with a view to quoting selected bridge passages to convey a general idea of Nisbet's total thesis. I gave this up when I found that his material was so valuable I wanted to quote from nearly every page.

After mentioning the growing interest of modern youth in communes and other worldly, often irrationalist faiths, he reminds us, in the space of only two pages, of the breakdown of the Alexandrian Empire in ancient Greece which was associated with precisely the same tendencies. And that Christianity took hold in circumstances of extraordinary political strain in the Mediterranean world. The rise of monasticism in the Benedictine movement dates from the sixth century when St. Benedict and others saw no hope in the established political order of Rome.

These and other facts stress the correlation between alienation of individual loyalties from dominant political institutions and the rise of new forms of community which are renunciations of and challenges to political institutions.

The pattern (with war punctuating each phase) has been feudalism, followed by religious dominance, followed by absolute monarchism, followed by revolution, followed by state control (democratic royalism), followed by attenuated feudalism and again religious dominance.

Today, Nisbet shows, we are approaching the end of a state control phase (with the added complication of absolute monarchies in the form of multinational corporations). Napoleon, he reminds us, actually encouraged obscenity and pornography (the circus syndrome) to take people's minds off his increasing demands for obeisance to the state. The same thing is happening today.

Elsewhere in the book Nisbet shows how traditional institutions have failed to exert their accustomed restraints; individualism has degenerated into egoism, historic culture has been degraded, and so the young and educated are progressively alienated.

The danger, Nisbet stresses, is that along with the decline of polity and the social bond is the rising power of the military. War society is replacing traditional, liberal society, and many are becoming attracted to centralized, collectivized powers that go with war and the military.

Twilight of Authority is essentially a doomsday book, despite the lengthy concluding chapter in which Nisbet suggests ways of offsetting the tides of erosion and breakdown — by decentralizing power, ending the tyranny of bureaucracy, returning to private initiative in family, neighborhood and village settings (the reversal of the Rousseau-Bentham-Marx system) and, surprisingly for an American, by restoring honors and ranks.

He makes a plausible case for turning the tide but one senses that he knows full well he'll have as much success as did Canute.

Twilight of Authority is not an academic treatise (there is no index and only one footnote) and is certainly not a difficult book to read. But one has to concentrate and frequently re-read passages to gain their full import.

It is a most important book, closely reasoned and incisively written, and I strongly urge you to read it because, if for no other reason, Nisbet brings intellectual substance and vigor to a vital discussion that has long lacked both qualities.

LAYTON . . . competes with himself

More is Less

The Darkening Fire is much more handsomely produced than the earlier Selected Poems 1945-68, but essentially this is the same book. If you have the earlier "Selected" it is not likely you will want to pay two dollars more, even with that superb lion-haired portrait of Layton on the cover.

The Darkening Fire, of course, does have some other differences. Curiously, this is a "Less Selective Layton" than the earlier edition. It has 45 more poems. This does give a slightly larger idea of Layton's scope, but mostly I find, to his detriment. Surely his recent massive Collected Poems would serve those who want to approach the "larger" Layton.

I find myself unable to come to terms with a man as prolific as Layton (over 20 volumes) who has such varied levels of excellence. He is a man of great energy and enthusiasm whose enormous talent is camouflaged in the debris of average work. The major problem is not that Layton's work does not stand up to other poets', but that Layton is his own fiercest competition. His best poems decimate the lesser poems that are packed around them.

It comes down to what a "selected poems" should be. Usually and hopefully, it is a presentation of the very best and strongest poems of a writer's career. It seems a shame that this view has not been taken here. If one volume of less than 100 pages were selected from Layton's work from 1945 to 1975, I believe it would do Layton's reputation immeasurable good, and the poems themselves would be unassailable.

THE DARKENING FIRE: Selected Poems 1945-68, by Irving Layton, McClelland and Stewart. $4.95.

Awareness of Injustices

Native Voices Say it Best

By DAVID DAY

They Shared to Survive is yet another sympathetic and well-intended view of the native peoples of Canada that manages to be both naive and pretentious at once. Like so many similar books, it draws a superficial and romanticized portrait of the many Indian cultures of this nation.

Selwyn Dewdney is undoubtedly a man who has tried to tell it the way he sees it, but what he sees is no surprise to anyone. Illustrated like a children's book about noble savages, it indulges in many over-simplified, semi-anthropological generalizations. It is a harmless enough book, but disappointing in its predictability. Its greatest insight seems to be the reduction of perhaps ten thousand years of Indian culture to the single aphorism: They Shared to Survive (and let that be a lesson to us.)

The White Man's Laws and Prison of Grass are two books which approach the same problem in opposite ways. The first is written and illustrated by the Alberta Metis Association, and the second by Dr. Howard Adams, past president of the Saskatchewan Metis Society. Both are written with clarity of purpose and unmistakable directness.

The White Man's Law is a simple book with simple aims. It was designed to instruct native Indian and Metis people in a mildly entertaining manner on the "white" legal system. It also gives some sense of the historical events that lead to the imposition of this system on the native population. It makes no pretense that the law is right, but rather that it must be known in order to be dealt with. The book accomplishes its aims with cartoon-like paintings and a simple story line; and with this child-like presentation proves to be far more sophisticated than They Shared to Survive.

Prison of Grass also deals with Indian and Metis civil rights and the historical evolution of their current status, but the approach is a scholarly one. It should be read as a corrective measure in every school that teaches the history of Western Canada. An amazingly good book, it is well researched and demonstrates that the native people are now well aware of the injustices imposed on them, maintained by a totally one-sided, racist view of this country's "official history."

Sub-titled Canada from the Native Point of View and dedicated to the author's great grandfather "Maxime Lepine, a guerrilla warrior who sacrificed his life in the struggle against imperialism," this book is unapologetically biased in its perspective. Adams has a strong personal investment in the political stance of this book. An angry man who is extremely articulate about his anger, he presents an avalanche of historical and contemporary justification for it.
